CARS TO USE POP-OUT BAGS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Auto makers will have to start tucking inflatable "air bags" under the dash boards of all new American cars made after Jan. 1, 1972, transportation secretary John A. Volpe said Wednesday.

The pop-out safety devices will be required first on the front-seat passenger side. Volpe said they "already have shown a potential for saving thousands of lives and greatly reducing serious injuries in crashes."

A crash sensor would trigger the system, inflating the air bag within milliseconds of a front-end collison.

The transportation secretary called the move particularly important because of recent studies indicating that only 25 per cent of the motoring public bothers to buckle seat belts.

Under the timetable announced Wednesday, the air bags will also be required on the driver's side of all passenger cars made after Jan. 1, 1974.

U.S. Recognizes Cambodia Regime

Times News Services

The United States said today it recognizes the new regime which ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the legal government of Cambodia.

The state department also said it had received a copy of a note sent to all foreign missions in Phnom Penh in which the new Cambodian government emphasized its determination to pursue a policy of "strict neutrality."

Members of Cambodia's National Assembly accused Sihanouk of corruption, murder, nepotism and protecting the Viet Cong before they voted to depose him, Camodian radio reported.

A broadcast recording of the debate Wednesday indicated many deputies joined in the attack before the unanimous vote of no confidence which overthrew the man who had ruled them for 29 years.

Deputy Trinh Hoahn, who called for the no-confidence vote, labelled the 47-year-old prince a dictator and said Sihanouk's wife and mother-in-law had made fortunes selling government jobs.

He accused Sihanouk of running a gambling casino for personal profit, "executing a large number of peasants without trial, wasting national funds and blindly following his wife's advice.

WIFE FLEES

Princess Monique, Sihanouk's wife, has been reported in Singapore, while her mother was in Europe with Sihanouk and arrived in Peking with him today. The resignation of his brother-in-law as police commissar was announced Wednesday.

Another broadcast said Sihanouk had "provoked" the political crisis during which crowds took to the streets of Phnom Penh last week in violent demonstrations against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops on the Cambodian side of the border with South Vietnam.

Radio Phnom Penh also said Assembly Chairman Cheng Heng, who was named acting chief of state, announced that Cambodia will continue to follow a policy of "independence, neutrality and territorial integrity" and the government will "recognize and respect" all treaties which had been formally concluded.

There are an estimated 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia.

Broadcasts said Cambodian peasants were pledging their support for the coup.

SEE GENERAL AT HEAD

It was believed that the assembly acted at the instigation of Gen. Lon Nol, the premier and chief of the 49,000-man armed forces who quarrelled with Sihanouk in 1968 over the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia. A report intercepted by the South Vietnamese government said Lon Nol and Sirik Matak, a high government minister,

TROOPS ON MOVE

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodia's new regime today was reported to be moving troops toward Viet Cong and North Vietnamese positions inside Cambodia.

No fighting was reported. The Hanoi forces use the northeast corner of Cambodia as a sanctuary for raids on U.S. bases in South Vietnam.

Tribesmen Around Base

Times News Services

VIENTIANE — Confused reports indicated the situation at the U.S. military base in the Laotian town of Sam Thong was still fluid today.

The U.S.-backed Meo tribesmen appeared to command the hills around the community in an area which had been believed overrun by North Vietnamese regulars Wednesday.

Sources here today said that only a small Communist Commando force hit Sam Thong when the Meo force withdrew and U.S. personnel flew out with hospital patients during the attack.

There were no indications of contact between the opposing forces today and U.S. aircraft were expected to resume ferrying supplies and troops into Sam Thong.

MERCENARIES

The Long Cheng headquarters of the "Cladestine Army" headed by Gen. Vang Pao, six miles southwest of Sam Thong, was reinforced by some 350 mercenaries flown from Thailand where they were trained by U.S. advisers. The situation in the Long Cheng area appeared stable although Vang Pao spent the night in Vientiane for briefings.

Unemployment Up Sharply; Highest Rate in 6 Years

CHINATOWN may become a chunk of real estate too rich to remain merely a quaint relic of the past. Today approximately 300 Chinese, most of them elderly, single men living on pensions, make their home in the century-old section of Victoria. The Times' Jack Scott, on Page 16, looks at Chinatown and comes up with the conclusion its days are numbered. (Times photo by Bill Halkett)

57,000 Jobless In B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — British Columbia alone went against the trend as unemployment jumped sharply across the country last month to 6.5 per cent of the national labor force, the highest point in six years.

But February figures released today showed the B.C. jobless rate was still above the national average although it declined to 6.7 per cent from the 7.3 per cent January level. A year ago it was 6.6 per cent.

The B.C. rate reflected an unemployed total of 57,000 persons last month, down 4,000 from the January total.

GREATER THAN USUAL

The federal manpower department said the nation-wide increase from 485,000 unemployed in January to 526,000 in February was greater than usual for this time of year.

Nearly 40 per cent of those unemployed had been without jobs for one to three months when the survey was taken.

There was little change in February from January figures on the total number of employed persons — 7,505,000, up from 7,499,000. But the total labor force grew by 47,000 to 8,031000.

PEAK LAST YEAR WAS 6

Unemployment reached 6.4 per cent of the labor force in February and March two years ago but then declined. The peak last year was six per cent in February.

The previous high was in the first three months of 1964 when unemployment ran to between 6.8 and seven per cent of the labor force.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, unemployment last month ran to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, the same as in December after dipping to 4.5 in January. This is the figure economists look to and that the government says might go as high as 5.7 per cent during its anti-inflation drive.

The latest employment picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Feb. 1970	Jan. 1970	Feb. 1969
Labor force	8,031	7,984	7,911
Employed	7,505	7,499	7,438
Unemployed	526	485	473

BLEAK ALL OVER

In terms of actual, rather than seasonally-adjusted, unemployment rates worsened in all regions of the country except British Columbia, and even there it ran slightly higher last month than a year ago.

The report said employment was down in construction and manufacturing but higher in community, business and personal services; in fire, insurance and real estate; and in transportation, communications and other utilities.

Employment declined from a year ago in the Atlantic region and the prairies.

Willy Brandt Cheered In East German City

ERFURT (CP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, after a tumultuous welcome by the people of Erfurt, said today relations between East and West Germany should be regulated in a special treaty but rejected the idea of full diplomatic recognition of the East Berlin government.

At the first session of the German summit meeting here, Brandt replied to East German Premier Willi Stoph's opening statement that a normal situation in the divided country depended on international relations on the basis of complete equality.

"The decisive issue," Stoph said, "is to achieve, in the interest of European security, a peaceful coexistence for the people of our states, a change in the relations between the East German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany."

But the West German chancellor called the common interests and quarrels between East and West Germany different from those between other peoples and said "they are directed toward the unity of the nation."

At the morning session, which lasted 1¾ hours, Brandt and Stoph agreed to hold a meeting in an undetermined West German town near the border. Brandt proposed they meet in May, though a specific date was not set.

Their historic meeting began promptly at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) after thousands of Erfurters had cheerd Brandt on his arrival from Bonn. Stoph himself was on hand to greet the chancellor at the railway station.

Thousands of East Germans, shouting "Willi! Willi Brandt!" broke through police barriers to greet the West German chancellor.

OTTAWA, QUEBEC RIFT MAY SCUTTLE NIGER PACT

NIAMEY, Niger (CP) — A rift in the Canadian delegation, with Quebec and Ottawa the main foes, threatened today to scuttle plans for the creation of an agency to promote cultural and technical co-operation among French-speaking countries.

New Brunswick and Manitoba, sympathetic to Quebec demands for an international voice, also expressed dissatisfaction with their roles at the conference.

Disagreements between Canadian representatives and France earlier forced delays in final approval of the charter to set up the agency. Approval was postponed to Friday.

The Canadian delegation includes representatives from Ontario, also dissatisfied with its minimal role.

Quebec delegate said the conference of 26 French-speaking countries may be near breakup over the issue.

PRICE INDEX JUMPS COAST TO COAST

Times News Services

Vancouver's price index rise of .4 for February was about average for the 12 Canadian cities in which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics keeps separate checks.

It rose to 121.4 in Vancouver from 121. Similar statistics are not kept for Victoria.

Edmonton and Calgary registered the smallest increases — just .2 for the month — and the bureau attributed this to steady food prices in those two cities.

The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100 rose to 121.9 in St. John's Nfld., from 120.9 in January, the biggest jump among the cities.

Welfare Jam Forces Move

A heavy increase in numbers of welfare recipients has forced the Victoria social welfare department to look for new quarters.

Welfare director Alex Davidson told the city's land's committee this morning that expansion is essential if the growing case load is to be handled efficiently.

The committee agreed to recommend to city council that the section of the welfare department handling male cases be moved to the ground floor of the old Victoria School of Music Building near the Century Inn on Pandora.

EXTRA STAFF

The move will take place as soon as possible after council approves the necessary expenditure of $30,000 to carry out renovations and provide for extra stafff.

Ald. Tom Christie backed the move terming existing conditions at the welfare office on Cook Street "terrible."

On Friday, Feb. 27, the Cook Street office handled 160 applicants for welfare — an all time high in Victoria. The average was 99 a day for the month and Davidson warned that with a minor recession already being felt the numbers could only increase.

"We have to do something," Christie told the committee. "If you go down to Cook Street on any given day you'll

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — Bells pealed this morning as the swallows returned to this historic mission right on schedule.

Some 2,000 of them landed on the 193rd anniversary of the day a Franciscan padre first gave them a home.

NDP Questions Benguet Role

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett suggested in the legislature Wednesday that "a criminal organization with a criminal record" might go to court with fraud charges against a B.C. company to recover a $1 million investment in the stalled Cypress Bowl project.

But the fact that the organization, Benguet Consolidated Inc., has not sued Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd. for fraud raises the question whether Benguet "knows something" about its future role in the West Vancouver ski development, Barrett said.

$1 MILLION DEAL

Benguet took over Alpine, original promoters of the development last fall in a $1 million deal that led to a storm of controvesy over the international firm's gambling connections in the Bahamas.

At the height of the furore in November Resources Minister Ray Williston ordered a halt to the development, still in the timber clearing stage, and write to Alpine saying Benguet was not welcome in the project, located on more than 600 acres of leased crown land.

An investigation was begun by the attorney-general's department into the background of the foreign company. Williston said Wednesday he has not had a final report from the attorney-general but has heard nothing to change his original view that Benguet was an unsuitable partner in the project.

Barrett, speaking during debate on Williston's departmental estimates, said evidence gathered by a Bahamian royal commission had established that Benguet was a criminal organization with "a record of buying politicians in other jurisdictions."

So what was taking so long in deciding once and for all whether Benguet could stay in B.C.? he asked.

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) asked whether the government was stalling on the question to give Benguet time to sell its land leases in the deal to another company to avoid a $1 million loss.

Williston said the legal advice he has received is that there are no leases held by the developers. An oversight—failure by the government to publish notice of the leases in the B.C. Gazette last year — invalidated the leases originally signed with Alpine.

Opposition MLAs then asked Williston what Benguet would have to sell if it didn't own the leases. There would be no assets to sell, it was suggested.

DIDN'T AGREE

Williston disagreed, saying the assets in Cypress Bowl are the clearing and right-of-way access work that has been done to date.

He was then asked if he meant that Benguet owns those assets.

He then agreed that in fact the government must own the assets because there are no leases giving anyone else control of the land.

Williston said there is a May deadline for Alpine to make other financial arrangements and proceed with the project. It had not been extended since the original letter to Alpine back in November, he said.

Barrett said that Williston has said in the past that "Benguet bought the Brooklyn Bridge" if it thought it was buying the rights to a major residential subdivision when it took over Alpine.

If that is the case, he asked, what is protecting Alpine from a suit at the hands of Benguet?

Could it be "the whisper of a hope" that delay in the affair will produce a happy solution for Benguet? Barrett asked.

At one point Williston disagreed with Barrett's claim that Alpine had made at least $250,000 out of logging the bowl area, ostensibly for the ski development.

'PR MAN'

Barrett snapped: "You spend more time being a PR man for Alpine than is warranted."

Barrett repeated earlier demands that the Cypress Bowl area be turned over to the regional parks board for development as a park,

Williams said the delay in settling the status of the companies in the bowl project means that Benguet might be able to sell its way out of the deal with Alpine. That would mean an unnecessary "$1 million price tag for admission to Cypress Bowl" for any developer who was prepared to go ahead with the badly needed recreational facilities.

Harley's brother, Keigh, was a kidney recipient in a transplant operation at VGH last May.

Hospital officials declined to release any information on the donors.

Bomb Threat Delays Game

A Vancouver Island Hockey League final game was delayed about 30 minutes Wednesday night at the Esquimalt Sports Centre while police checked for a bomb reported to be in the building.

Esquimalt police said the sports centre received a phone call from someone about 7 p.m. who said there was a bomb in the centre but nothing was found.

The game between Butler Brothers and University of Victoria Vikings went on after the delay with the Vikings winning 6-5 to tie the best of five series 2-2.

Saanich police earlier in the day cleared Lansdowne Junior Secondary for about an hour to check another bomb threat hoax.

Oak Bay Orders Plan To Clean Up Beach Sewage

Complaints stemming from effluent being discharged into the sea from septic tanks in one of Oak Bay's prime areas stirred action by Oak Bay Council's works committee Wednesday.

The committee decided to ask the municipal staff to draw up plans to combat the problem.

Ald. Brian Smith, after saying that the residents concerned should be notified as soon as possible and asked if they had any suggestions, added:

"This is something that should be tackled as soon as possible."

The area concerned is Satellite and Beach Drive, from Margate to Marine, where the municipality has no sewer system.

Most of the homes have individual septic tanks while a large hotel relies on a grease trap, cleaned at three-month periods by the municipality, to get rid of its kitchen refuse.

WHO WILL PAY?

Ald. Douglas Watts said, "It's a question of remedial means — what they're going to cost, and who's going to pay for them?"

Oak Bay householders may soon have restrictions levied on what they can store on improved and unimproved lots.

The committee will ask for the municipal solicitor's recommendations on changes in the zoning bylaw designed to curb clutter.

The bylaw currently restricts storage of vehicles on unimproved lots to seven days and limits the number on improved lots to a time allowance of 72 hours.

The committee wants the bylaw changed to have storage on unimproved lots to be permitted by permit only and the time limit deleted for improved lots.

STORAGE

The bylaw permits the storage of one unlicensed vehicle, one boat or trailer, one camper or camper body, in addition to items stored in garages.

Ald. Watts summarised: "That's a pretty generous allowance of miscellaneous impedimenta"

Ald. Smith described the bylaw as "an unenforceable absurdity — you could drive a truck through it," after Police Chief Walter Green said that, in trying to enforce the bylaw, his men had kept a six months survey of one area alone, making checks every three days.

Cost of water and garbage collections have accelerated said municipal engineer Geoffrey White, in discussing the 1970 estimates.

Water costs, he explained, would jump from about $6,800 to $17,900 because of apartment construction.

"The quantity of garbage," he said, "is increasing faster than the population and is now running at seven per cent above the corresponding months in 1969."

Smith asked if this, too, was due to apartment construction and was told that it was mainly caused by the use of excessive wrapping by retail outlets.

White said increases in estimates, particularly in the engineering section, were mainly due to inflation and labor costs.

Smith observed, "This appears to be a very restrained budget."

White warned that if his department's workload increased it might be necessary to hire another man or use consultant services.

"We are stretched to the limit now."

ment rate as a percentage of the labor force, rose to 11 per cent in the Atlantic provinces from 10 in January and 10.5 in February last year.

In Quebec, it rose to 8.7 from eight per cent in January and 8.4 a year ago.

In Ontario, it rose to 4.5 from 4.2 in January and 3.9 in February last year.

In the Prairies, the rate rose last month to 5.3 per cent from 4.6 in January and 3.9 a year ago.

GIVE BREAKDOWN

The report said that of the 526,000 persons unemployed last month, 228,000 were married men, 190,000 single men, 50,000 married women and 58,000 single women. Of the total, 97,000 were teen-aged.

The figures also showed that 165,000 were unemployed less than a month when the survey was taken for the week ended Feb. 21. Of these, 57,000 were on temporary layoff. The number unemployed for one to threee months when the survey was taken was 202,000, and 98,000 were unemployed four to six months.

There were 61,000 unemployed for seven months or longer — the so-called hard core of the unemployed.

The figures result from a sample survey of about 35,000 households representative of the civilian population in the 10 provinces. Excluded are residents of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, inmates of the institutions, and Indians living on reserves.

The February survey covered the week ended Feb. 21. The figures were compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and analysed by the department of manpower and immigration.

The unemployment rate has a history of moderate increases each year between January and February, though it did decline three times in the past 10 years.

in 1959, when it was riding high at 9.5 per cent of the labor force, and in 1965 and 1966.

Sihanouk, who received word of his ouster just before leaving Moscow, got a red carpet welcome in Peking today that indicated he still has China's support.

The official New China news agency referred to him as "Cambodian chief of state," and the welcoming delegation at the airport included Premier Chou En-lai, Vice-Premier Li Hsiennien, politburo member Hsieh Fu-chih and representatives of 42 countries, including the Soviet Union, France and Britain.

The Peking report made no mention of the assebmly action ousting Sihanouk.

An American Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Moscow said Sihanouk told the Cambodian embassy staff there that he would form a government in exile if the Russians and Chinese do not recognize the new regime. But he said if recognition did come from the two powers, he would be finished.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Unlike the beasts that our prehistoric ancestors tamed to serve them, or killed to feed them or let alone because they were too dangerous, earlier man didn't develop a body that could withstand a cold climate without clothing. Our ancestor used his common sense instead.

He used fire for heat, clothes for comfort and shelters with roofs to keep off the rain and to protect him from the weather in general. He kept his body, his hands and feet, warm by artificial means—with animal skins.

Scientists think that our ancestors probably originated in a tropical climate where they had a chance to develop all the things that protected them from the weather. They would have frozen to death in cold country before they had a chance to adapt.

When you quarrel with your wife or husband, do you think you're funny?

Canadian film producer Allan King says you are — at least some of the time.

And he's proved it with an actuality drama entitled A Married Couple, to be shown at Victoria's Coronet Theatre soon.

Without script or pre-conceived ideas, King and his three-man crew spent 15 hours a day for 10 weeks at the home of Billy Edwards, Toronto advertising man, and his wife, Antoinette.

They photographed everything the Edwards did — with certain reticences — and winnowed the takings into a 97-minute documentary on marriage.

When they saw the finished product, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards laughed most of the time. They didn't know they could be so funny.

"At first, they were self-conscious and tended to be melodramatic," King said today. "But, after a while they forgot the camera and played themselves.

"They got into some really terrific fights on such things as politics, welfare and child-raising and both dropped a few swear words. They're at their funniest when they are most vehement."

The Edwards' son, Bogart, and their dog, Merton, are also portrayed in this true-life film.

King used much the same technique in his film Warrendale, photographed in a Toronto home for retarded children. It has been shown all over Canada and the United States, England and many European countries, and won him two awards at the famed Cannes Film Festival.

Because of sympathy for the children, there was little humor and the film was banned by the CBC because of a four-letter word used by one of the youngsters.

King refused to delete this word and the film was censored only in Ontario.

"We're inclined to be more fussy in Ontario," said King, who lives in Toronto with his wife and eight-year-old daughter.

King said people seemed to get involved in Warrendale in a personal way, and this is so with A Married Couple. The film ran for 12 weeks in Toronto and 10 in Montreal and is soon to be shown in England and the United States.

"I don't think spontaneous film-making is the same as voyeurism. All you're doing is trying to get at the heart of things. It's not as if you're stealing something or tricking people.

"There's no hidden camera."

King said he chose Billy and Antoinette Edwards because he knew them well and did not consider them exhibitionists.

"An exhibitionist is covering something, and then you have the problem of getting past flamboyance. After a while, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards came to think of us as part of the household.

"In editing the film, I retained the material that seemed to ring true or meant the most. I'm conceited enough to believe this film has an important bearing on marriage today."

A Married Couple has been entered as Canada's entry in the Cannes Film Festival, May 2-15.

King is visiting Victoria and Vancouver in connection with the showing of his film.

His next project will be an actuality drama on 16 to 18-year-olds, portraying their dilemmas, confusions and the choices they have to make.

"If they co-operate as well as the Warrendale kids and Billy and Antoinette in A Married Couple, I'll be very fortunate," King said.

EXPO 70 ATTENDANCE WAY DOWN

OSAKA (CP) — Sparse attendance at Expo 70 in this Japanese centre indicates that Asia's first world fair is ailing.

By Wednesday night, 832,650 had been counted through the gates, compared with a projection of 1,030,000 before Emperor Hirohito opened the $2,300,000,000 fair Saturday.

Only 274,121 of a projected 530,000 came Sunday, first full public day. By contrast, 569,500 set a world record for one day when they visited Expo 67 in Montreal on its first Sunday, April 30, three years ago.

Japanese say the weather, with cold winds sometimes accompanied by freezing rain, is unseasonable.

Japan's famed cherry blossoms, symbol of the fair, are not to be seen around Expo grounds. In northern Hokkaido, snowstorms have blocked traffic and closed schools.

Newspaper Loss Felt Keenly by Vancouverites

OTTAWA (CP) — A quick-look study by a Toronto communications consultant says the shutdown of Vancouver's two daily newspapers has given an economic boost to other media and had a profound effect on the economic and social life of Canada's third-largest city.

The results of the one-man investigation by Walter Gray of Hopkins, Hedlin Ltd. also said the impact "is almost certain to become more onerous each day that the newspapers fail to appear."

Both The Sun and The Province, with a combined circulation of 368,533, ceased publication Feb. 15 during a contract dispute with their unions.

The 40-page Gray analysis was presented today to the special Senate committee on mass media which commissioned the study into the socio-economic effects of the absence of the two newspapers.

Mr. Gray, vice-president of his firm, based his conclusions on a personal look at the situation including a questionnaire sent to 125 Greater Vancouver residents.

He found most newspaper readers who use dailies as a major source of news appear dissatisfied with both the quantity and quality of news and information they now are receiving from other media which have sought to fill the gap.

OTHERS BENEFIT

The absence of news and information in the dailies is "directly affecting most sectors" of the economic and social life of the community. Other media in the community and beyond are getting increased economic benefits including advertising.

Adverse effects of this "most unpopular event" include a greater difficulty for the unemployed in obtaining jobs without job ads in the papers. Most affected are day-to-day construction workers.

Time between death and funeral service has grown longer as the family of the deceased need additional time to advise others of the funeral because of the inability to put a death notice in the paper.

Business at movies, theatres and nightclubs, all of which depend heavily on newspaper advertising to attract customers, has suffered a slowdown. Movie-house chains report a drop of from five to 20 per cent in attendance.

"Films requiring extensive promotion which have done well in other communities have failed at the box office," Mr. Gray said.

He also reported that businessmen generally were reluctant to blame any economic downturn totally on the absence of newspapers.

U.S. 'AIDING' ASIA RIGHTISTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George S. McGovern (Dem.-S.D.) said Wednesday there are "disturbing indications and reports that have come to us from time to time that the United States has been carrying on operations in Cambodia that are related primarily to right-wing groups in the country."

* * *

Although he said it is "premature at this point to say that we had anything to do" with the Cambodian assembly's ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk as chief-of-state, McGovern said right-wing groups seem to be involved in the trouble Sihanouk is having.

McGovern also said it is "premature to say that he's out of power for good."

"I would not be at all surprised to see Sihanouk reassert his leadership in Cambodia," he said in a television interview.

Conditions of Use

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT has set safety regulations to govern the voyage of the supertanker Manhattan into eastern Arctic waters next month. These cover certain obvious anti-pollution safeguards such as keeping the oil storage at a minimum and in tanks away from the sides of the ship, installing deck valves to permit easy removal of oil in case of emergency, dividing the hull into compartments, and other measures.

The procedure is designed to serve two purposes. One, of course, is to ensure as far as possible that the sea and islands will be protected against pollution by oil; the other is to add another item of evidence to support the claim that the northern seas are under Canadian jurisdiction and that Canadian standards of safety shall prevail.

The Humble Oil Company, operator of the Manhattan which last year passed through the Northwest Passage under Canadian escort, is believed to be in general agreement with the provisions, except for the size of a bond, which is still under negotiation. The Canadian retaliation in the absence of agreement is mild—we would withhold the services of Canadian icebreakers which were essential to last year's voyage. The matter of responsibility for pollution damage by ships is still an open legal question, but several precedents have been established in earlier instances in various parts of the world. It is apparent that the Manhattan's operators will accept the principle, at least.

Agreement on the Manhattan voyage assumes added importance in view of the recent inter-government talks in Washington, where Canadian and United States legislators and senate members discussed on an unofficial basis the whole field of Arctic sovereignty. There was a head-on clash of opinion regarding Canadian sovereignty over the northern waters—Canada claiming this control, the Americans holding that the waters were international. Ironically, the United States members were not so concerned over the possibility of losing the right to use the Northwest Passage, since Canadian co-operation in this regard would be assured. But they feared a precedent in the Arctic which might react to the disadvantage of the United States in other disputed waters elsewhere in the world.

In regard to anti-pollution control, the Americans recognized that regulations were necessary, but they urged that they could be effective only through international agreement. They felt that Canada should not attempt to assert unilateral measures, although bilateral agreements might be arranged pending an international agreement. This apparently is being done in the case of the forthcoming Manhattan voyage.

Canada clearly faces some difficult negotiating in the matter of Arctic sovereignty over the waters—there has been no dissenting voice in regard to the islands or the continental shelf. Particularly in negotiating bi-lateral or universal agreements on anti-pollution safeguards will it be necessary to make clear that Canada is not merely a party to agreement but the sovereign power negotiating the terms of entry into a Canadian possession. The peculiar nature of the Arctic—with the seas frozen for most of the year and an almost total lack of sea traffic in all the history of the continent—should remove any parallel with navigable offshore waters in other parts of the world which the United States may wish to preserve under international auspices.

But Canada will have to stand firm in this important test of nationhood. And no Canadian spokesmen who are not fully convinced of the Canadian case should be permitted to become involved in exchanges with other countries.

Illiterate and Jobless

CANADIANS, WHO PRIDE themselves generally on a reasonably high educational standard throughout the nation, learned earlier this month that the situation is not much to be proud of. A statement in the House of Commons said: "In Canada's adult population (20 years and over), according to the 1961 Census, there were 169,904 illiterates with no schooling (1.63 per cent of the population) and 828,597 who were functionally illiterate, with one to four years of schooling (7.93 per cent of the population."

With almost one in 10 Canadian adults in illiterate classifications at the beginning of the last decade, we have grounds for concern. The impact of that illiteracy on Canadian life is indicated in further replies to questions in the House. By the same census, 13.4 per cent of the unemployed aged 15 to 19, and 10.4 per cent of those aged 20 to 24 were functionally illiterate, having had less than five years of elementary education.

Extenuating circumstances can be suggested for the totally illiterate and functionally illiterate in a country of this size. A number of them were raised in places too remote to enjoy adequate educational advantages—some, no doubt, in the far north and isolated areas where population did not warrant schools. The next census should show a reduction in the number and percentage of Canadians educationally deficient. Certainly this should be the case among Indians, whose attraction to schools has strengthened noticeably in recent years.

The latest recorded figures, however, carry their own message on poverty. In general the more highly educated workers receive the best and best-paid jobs. The corollary may have even greater force: For those with little or no education there are frequently no jobs at all—a point to be remembered as more privileged Canadians engage in sophisticated arguments over the best that can be provided in education.

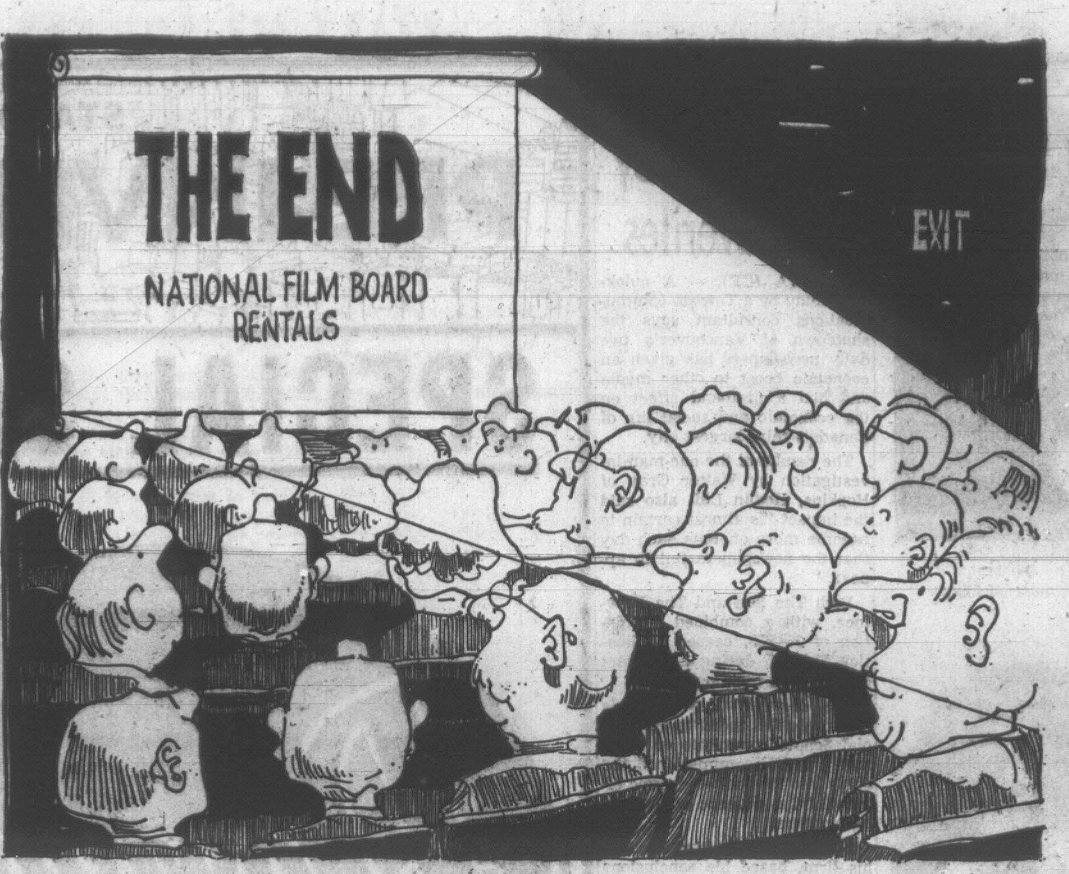
Old Soldiers Fade Away

UNITED STATES DEFENCE Secretary Melvin R. Laird's statement that "The first-term and career re-enlistment rates for fiscal year 1969 are the lowest reported by the services since fiscal year 1960" and that retention of officers was similarly discouraging will be widely interpreted as convincing evidence of disenchantment with the war in Vietnam. The ultimate costs of the trend may be less generally understood.

These are being weighed in terms of actual cash, of prestige and the effectiveness of the services which have shown dwindling magnetism. Every time the Air Force loses a pilot to civilian life, or the Navy loses a nuclear submarine officer, thousands of dollars more have to be spent to train a replacement. To offset this, the U.S. Defence Department plans to spend $340 millions in fiscal 1971 for proficiency pay and variable bonuses to retain skilled men. Pay increases are in prospect, better housing for families on military bases and improved schools for the children.

But this is only part of the price—and some observers believe it will not solve the problem. They see the services retaining the men less able, or less willing, to return to civilian life and meet the competitive challenges it provides, while the better members, confident of their ability to move ahead on civvy street, will continue the exodus. Because of the turnover, some authorities say, the experience level of leaders has dropped considerably—a factor not calculated to increase the confidence of the troops.

In a negative way at least, the attitude of those who decline to renew active service careers provides Mr. Nixon with just one more compelling reason to hasten the end of the conflict—and to avoid any others of a similar nature which would produce corresponding effects among the old soldiers who are fading away.



Unhappy Ending

SIHANOUK FORECAST

By C. L. SULZBERGER

The Dominoes Game Starts in S.E. Asia

THE most unpopular phrase in the United States nowadays is "domino theory" — a metaphor describing what might happen if South Vietnam is overrun by Hanoi's armies. Ever since the Eisenhower Presidency, when the phrase was first used, it has been employed to warn that if one Southeast Asian land is forcibly communized all the rest will follow.

Sulzberger

The U.S. mood is such that this theory is currently unacceptable in polite American society, but it has been less easily forgotten in the area affected. It was no surprise when President Thieu said in Saigon last week: "I maintain that the domino theory still applies. If South Vietnam falls into the hands of Communists, Laos, Cambodia, Thailand and the other countries in this part of the world also fall."

Many Americans, fed up with war and eager to accelerate "Vietnamization," regard Thieu as an unsavory character, more repressive and less benevolent than the late Ho Chi Minh. But another man, who is chic with those same Americans, happens to agree with Thieu.

He is Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who was ousted as Cambodian Chief of State this week, a shrewd statesman who has done his best to preserve his country by cottoning up to Hanoi and Peking while blasting Washington. Sihanouk says that if the U.S. withdraws completely from South Vietnam:

"In all Asia this departure would be interpreted, without exception, as a defeat, an avowal of the weakness of the American giant. And all Asia remains persuaded that the domino theory would come into play against the Americans . . . If the Americans quit Vietnam, Asia will stir, first the Philippines and Thailand: already the U.S.S.R. is installing itself in India more solidly than America; Pakistan still plays neutralist but becomes more and more friendly to China."

Hints of Confirmation

Although Vietnamization has barely begun, Sihanouk's analysis already shows hints of confirmation. Laos has been more than usually ravaged in the regular Communist pre-monsoon offensive and, as the weary U.S. public and its legislators warn against involvement in another battlefield, Hanoi edges toward control of this strategically placed little land.

Thailand, which finds the Laotian buffer getting thinner every day, has asked Washington for more arms. Singapore, further down the line of dominoes, announces that Soviet warships may for the first time use its enormous naval dockyards. Cambodia itself, shielded from war only by allowing Hanoi to use its territory as a military base, now teeters. Anti-Communist riots in Pnompenh could herald chaos.

Sihanouk, who can certainly not be called either hawk or pro-American, says flatly that if Nixon ever withdraws completely — which he doubts — Cambodia "would be obliged to opt for China" and become a "satellite." He hopes that North Vietnam will prove itself an Oriental Yugoslavia, standing up to China.

Fears Deal

But he fears a deal between Hanoi and Peking in which the Vietnamese would take over Laos and Cambodia while China grabs Burma. Hanoi could easily devour both Cambodia and what is left of Laos if it were not faced with U.S. opposition. There are enough North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia today to seize that country.

Just how Peking plans to play the game is unpredictable and may depend on when Mao Tse-tung dies. It can easily exert pressure through Chinese minority colonies and also via strategic roads.

One such highway, maintained by perhaps 30,000 Chinese troops and laborers, extends deep into North Vietnam. Another, constructed by Chinese Army engineers, is moving from Yunnan across northwestern Laos to Pak Beng on the Mekong River which flows down through Thailand, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

As indicated by Singapore's latest move, many Southeast Asians doubt long-term U.S. resolution and have started to reinsure themselves with the Soviet Union. Last year Brezhnev suggested organization of a regional defensive coalition in which the U.S.S.R. would play a leading part, Sihanouk says: "It is because the Soviets fear a Sino-Vietnamese collusion (Peking and Hanoi) that they propose the formal security system so badly received in China."

How far any of these tendencies will develop remains conjectural. American public opinion urges the President to withdraw and, although he has the constitutional right to postulate our foreign policy, this must be funded by a Congress subject to emotional pressures.

Confucius once wrote: "The people can be made to follow a course, but they cannot be made to understand it." The first half of the statement can be challenged. In any case, the dominoes game has started.

Point of View

I am sending you this little "joke" because I think it has a darned good moral in it!

A man was sitting in a Montreal Hospital, waiting for his wife to give birth, when one of the Sisters came over and asked him if it was his first baby about to be born? He replied that it would be his twentieth child! The nun smiled happily and said "How pleased and proud the Pope would be to hear this and that your wife had not taken "THE PILL." It proves that you are wonderful Catholics to have such a large family these days. Let me be among the first to congratulate you." The man replied, "I'm sorry Sister, but we are not Catholics." The Sister got up hastily and walked across the room to another Sister and said "You see that man over there to whom I was talking? Well! He's a sex maniac"!

This is not a story against Catholics, many of whom I have a great regard for. Part of my education was in a convent in Brussells and the nuns there were wonderful. I have five grandchildren who are all good Catholics and good people. It is just to point out in this large world of ours how narrow-minded we are and how we change things to look as we want them to look. I am possibly one of the chief offenders!—Esme Windle, 1471 Bromley.

Strong Challenge

It was encouraging to read in Victoria Daily Times, March 2, page 15, the excellent article by Humphry Davy on "Mount Matheson . . . Watershed, But Not a Part of Park". It was a strong challenge to recognize the immediate need for designating this critical watershed area as a provincial park and thus prevent deterioration when residential development begins around the 400-acre park.

No doubt, you will continue to arouse the Victoria area residents to this serious situation.—(Mrs. A. V.) Carol M. Turner, 312-1475 Pandora Ave.

World Service

The success of the recent East Indian dinner in the interest of the YM-YWCA World Service funds would not have been possible without the wholehearted co-operation of the whole World Service Committee of which Mrs. R. A. Upward is the chairman and who initiated the project. Mr. and Mrs. Singh Balraj Pagely were the co-ordinators on behalf of the East Indian Community for the Punjabi Akali Singh Temple whose people made a singularly important contribution in the food preparation.

My thanks to all who helped, but especially to volunteers from the Y-Teen Clubs who assisted in serving at the dinner. — D. A. Jaquith, Convener and Chairman Pro Tem of "Y" World Service Committee.

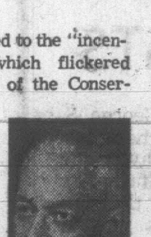
A Few Worms in the Hees Carrot Plan

WHATEVER happened to the "incentives society" which flickered briefly above the smoke of the Conservative convention at Niagara Falls last year? Although little has been heard about it since delegates packed their bags for home, we may at last have a clue to party thinking in an address by George Hees at Queen's University. It is not quite clear whether Mr. Hees was thinking aloud in the fashion of contemporary politics but he is front bench critic and his mind was certainly on incentives.



Western

As Mr. Hees noted, the Prices and Incomes Commission is gravely handicapped in its campaign against inflation since it lacks the power to enforce its program and has been denied the co-operation of organized labor. He accordingly proposed an alternative which he describes as "the only practical method of keeping prices within reasonable bounds and competitive with those of our major competitors."

The idea, as explained by Mr. Hees, has the beauty of simplicity. Try using carrots.

The objective would be to hold price increases to a maximum of 2.5 per cent. In comparison with other years this undoubtedly would be a "significant achievement."

How would this be brought about? A company passing its inflation test would be entitled to claim a tax rebate of 2.5 per cent which could be used to make new investment increasing industrial productivity. If it failed to increase prices (passing with honors, so to speak), the rebate might go up to 5 per cent.

Natural Questions

If Mr. Hees is right in his conviction that he has hit upon the "only practical method" of dealing with inflation, he will appreciate the importance of according priority attention to the various questions which naturally arise from his proposal.

There is, to begin with, the matter of paying for these rebates. What the treasury forgives in taxes to deserving industrialists it will have to recover from the broad masses of taxpayers. As Mr. Hees will recall, this was a central criticism of the free-trade-for-manufacturers automobile agreement on which many Conservatives expressed themselves with disparaging prose of commendable force.

It would appear at first glance that what we would save on prices by implementation of the Hees policy, we would lose on taxes. There is at least some chance of escaping price extortions — after all, one does not have to buy a new automobile or television set this year — but it is not so easy to ignore the out-thrust hand of the Department of National Revenue.

Football Coach

In his days as a cabinet minister Mr. Hees acquired a considerable reputation as the man who tackled problems of trade and productivity in the spirit of a football coach. The trouble with his present proposal, from a consumer-taxpayer standpoint, is that he sounds uncommonly like a coach at the old shell game.

There are other problems. One is the matter of policing, which obviously becomes important where taxation is concerned. Who is to validate these price increases and how? After all many companies nowadays turn out a vast range of products. It will not do to rely on a bit of sampling here and there when every company is required to make a tax settlement and will be naturally interested in rebates.

Moreover, price is not the single index of inflation. It is possible to hold a line on prices by lowering the quality of the product. This is characteristic of inflationary times. Electronic equipment requires the services of a repair man with suspicious frequency. Builders use hemlock instead of fir. And so on and so on.

How does Mr. Hees propose to deal equitably with firms which may be comparable in efficiency but which face varying wage demands or may be affected unequally by increasing costs of transport and other services?

To whom would the rebate privilege apply? To restrict it to manufacturers would be to deny membership in the incentives society to all sorts of other firms and producers who ought surely to be making every effort to maximize their productivity. In fairness, therefore, it should be general.

Automobile Business

How then would Mr. Hees deal with the automobile business (especially the used automobile business) in which it is difficult enough to establish prevailing prices in one year, let alone to develop comparisons between one year and another?

And what about producers whose prices are, in effect — and sometimes specifically — set by the government? The case of the farmers in the present year should be taken up by Mr. Hees as a fascinating study.

There is a vague suggestion in Mr. Hees' proposal of the negative income tax (still under study by Conservatives) applied at the wrong end of the scale. But the basic difficulty (aside from the various problems of implementation mentioned above) is that Mr. Hees is quite as reluctant as the Prices and Incomes Commission to face the cost-push problem created by wage demands and settlements far outpacing any prospective increase in productivity.

In fact the government in recent years has been paying out more for carrots than ever before in our history and these have been the years of our greatest peacetime inflation.

The fact that John D. Rockefeller attended the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York yesterday with a bodyguard is the inspiration for much discussion there today. LONELINESS OF THE USELESS YEARS

Youth Paying Price for Being Right

By MICHAEL NOVAK
Commonweal

The words "educational reform" are everywhere in the air. But the radical movement, if it has not disintegrated under its own passion for purity and in its own moral self-righteousness, may well contribute far less to education than anyone had dreamed.

It seems clearer now that many young people among those bright and sensitive ones in whom so much hope was placed, do not want to reform education but to escape from it.

Rage and Distrust

They seem to want to build their own institution, in which to harbor the 10 years or more of irresponsibilty, from 18 to 30, which our society's affluence allows them.

They do not need to work. They do not need to marry. Above all, many have contempt for their society. Where there is rage and distrust, education is not possible.

What are the sources of the rage? Educators will have to catch up to the vision of our society as it is seen and felt by the radical young. They will have to experience Easy Rider and Bonnie and Clyde, say, as if these were the early and overpowering images of life for them — not just one or two new notes among many others, much more central and dominant than that.

For more than five years now, many of America's young men, facing the draft, have tried on for size the experience of being criminal — outside the law, outside the social mores, outside the silent, smug and powerful majority.

When young people see Bonnie and Clyde, they do not seem to experience what Pauline Kael, for example, and other older critics perceive.

Those who have been marched upon by hundreds of blue-helmeted, paunchy-stomached, clear-eyed policemen at the Oakland Induction Centre, those who were beaten up by officers of the law in Mississippi, those whose scalps were split open by clubs at Harvard, know what it is to hate the law.

Fingers of icy, intense revulsion open low in one's stomach, expand against the rib cage, and force one's arms outwards to strike, one's mouth open to shriek. The experience of being outside the law, hating the law, seeing the law as lawless, inverts most of the expectations on which American education is built.

What can a five-year wave of young people, experiencing themselves as outside the law, possibly feel about those whom our society praises as leaders, responsible men, men of conscience, educated liberals?

Their hatred for the stupidity of Generals (ramrod Westmoreland, his name an acronym for American policy; LeMay; firebreathing Mark Clark and his adoring respectable wife) sizzles. Imagine their hatred for the FBI and the CIA, who hid so many facts regarding the assassination of John Kennedy. One learns what it is like to contemplate living in a nation run by respectable thugs.

Adulthood Denied

The young feel helpless today, not so much because they do not "control their own destinies," for no man ever has, but because they are prevented by affluence from becoming adults.

They are old enough to be adults. But the usual social definitions of adulthood — self-definition through economic responsibility and marital responsibility — are not for them.

No one and nothing depends on their talent, skill, work, performance. They are socially useless. They often feel guilt and self-hatred, rage and resentment. They should be needed by somebody, but they aren't.

No institution in America helps them through the 10-to 15-year period of their inutility, neither the home nor the church, neither the political nor the economic system.

It is too lonely to face so many years alone. An institution is required. The nearest institution at hand, the only one sufficiently sensitive and malleable (like their parents) to be bent to their ploys, is the university.

They can hardly help wishing to turn the university to their purposes. It is their turf, their home, their place; it is very hard to get them to leave it; they have no place else to go.

They do not so much want to govern a university as to have their own place. Exercises in college governance, where tried, end up by boring them. Who enjoys constantly meeting in committee?

Universities were not established to serve the inertial needs of a necessarily large and cumbersome bureaucracy, such as is required if all young people and not just an elite ten per cent are to have an opportunity for a college education. But neither were universities established to serve the institutional needs of the youth culture. Between those two stones, a fragile institution which provides a base for critical, international intelligence is being crushed. The requirements of critical intelligence and creative teaching are in direct conflict with the requirements of a smoothly ordered bureaucracy (not to say with the surrounding social-political order). But they are also in direct conflict with the need to supply supportive services for the youth culture.

"To every child a childhood" was an old labor union motto. Many of today's students, describing their own childhood, described a regimentation, a competitiveness, an artificiality, a protection from hunger and nature and anguish and want that were not common even 20 years ago.

Childhood Lost

The jmpoverishment of experience brought about by growing up in the suburbs, after Sputnik, has been devastating, and many seem to be demanding to experience now the carefree, experiential childhood they missed then.

Can the university become a babysitter for the youth culture? Can it provide the life experience and all the other things young people desperately want and need?

At the present moment, I am extremely skeptical. Experimental colleges everywhere, and experimental programs in good colleges everywhere, are increasingly feeling the opposition in aim between building a shelter for the youth culture and building a community of critical, sustained intelligence.

No Self-Criticism

The collision is especially felt among those students who, 10 or 15 years ago, would have been the ones marked out by their talents and sensitivities for future positions in the universities.

Talking to such students now is often like talking to members of the John Birch society.

Self-criticism is far from being their most impressive skill, and breadth of sympathy for positions not their own is conspicuously lacking. Everything is given the simplest possible conspiratorial explanation.

Unless I am mistaken, however, many radical students are themselves dissatisfied with the ideological low level to which they have fallen, and are slowly regaining their contacts with the rest of the human race, and in a few years the radical movement may rediscover values it now spurns.

The first five or six insights of the radical movement were correct: about the connection of the war with the American economic-political system, about white racism, about the multiversity, about the collusion of the university with the military, etc.

Moral Complacency

It is a tragic thing to be smashingly right on one's first five or six public moves; one's moral complacency thereafter may make it impossible for anyone ever again to touch one's soul.

The isolation of many radicals, unable to speak to those five years older than they, and perhaps soon to those five years younger, springs from the very volatility of the youth culture which makes that culture a poor base for long-range planning.

STUDENT CLASHES with police like this one at San Francisco State College last week over campus military recruitment policy have given radicals a feeling of being outside the law.

THE DUM-DUMS

Commonweal

Well, the fact is public: law enforcement agencies in the U.S. are indeed stocking dum-dum bullets — as many as 45 per cent of these agencies.

The bullet, which takes it name from the old British Dum-Dum Arsenal in Calcutta, is a vicious thing.

It is constructed with hollow point so as to cause an explosive effect in the victim's body, ripping large and ragged holes in the flesh.

The dum-dum bullet is outlawed by a number of international conventions, including the Hague Declaration of 1907, to which the U.S. is a signator.

But the Declaration doesn't apply within the U.S., so what is a war crime in one context is perfectly legitimate practice in another.

Police in Miami, Kansas City, Tucson, St. Louis and Nashville are armed with dum-dums; so too the sheriff's departments in Los Angeles County and King County, Seattle.

"This is a touchy subject," explained Lee Jurras, president of the Super-Vel Cartridge Corp., Shelbyville, Ind., maker of the 38-calibre high-velocity bullet. "A lot of minority groups might object. We like to keep the discussion within law enforcement circles."

Of course, there discussion dies. As a King County law official puts it: "There is no real problem ... When we consider we are carrying a shotgun capable of tearing off a limb or disemboweling a person with one shot, it seems rather ridiculous to have qualms about the fact that there is a hole in the end of a pistol bullet."

In France, a Trend to Supernatural

By STEVE SALER

PARIS — When North Americans need special help, they tend to put their faith in pills and potions guaranteed to make them bright, potent, vigorous, healthy or young. But in other countries, richer in folklore, the answers to the insoluble problems of life lie not in chemistry — but in sorcery.

And nowhere in the industrial West is occultism practiced with more fervor or by more people than in the birthplace of the Age of Enlightenment and the home of rationalism: France.

A typical classified ad placed in a weekly newspaper recently read, "Seer-spiritualist ... return of affection ... bewitched at a distance ... disenchantment ... send 10 francs." In certain sections of rural France, every tiny village has its own sorcerer or disenchanter, frequented (or rung up for telephonic spellbinding) by everyone from farmers burdened with sterile cows to peasant girls in search of "good forces" to bring back departed beaus.

Even super-sophisticated Parisians revel in the supernatural. Bookstalls along the Seine do a brisk business in a paperback edition of a 13th-century tract which claims that an unfaithful mistress can be made to confess by placing a mixture of pigeon's heart and frog's head (pulverized) on her stomach as she sleeps.

Wooden voodoo hate dolls are still in some demand, politicians wait eagerly for the annual predictions of the dozens of reputable astrologers, and New Year's Eve Black Masses are celebrated right next to Montmartre's Sacre-Coeur church — complete with red and black altars honoring Satan and, now and then, nude females symbolically sacrificed to the ruler of the nether world.

•

In all, an estimated 2,000 occult sects still survive in France, relics of medieval says when Satan was said to appear at Black Masses, hollering at his myrmidons, "Jump, Miranda, in the name of Joly!" Even as late as the mid-19th century, Napoleon III was rumored to have employed a court sorcerer.

Some of the existing sects are purely whimsical — the onionists, for instance, who worship the vegetable as the gods' favorite food, or the Phoebists who gambol in the buff and bathe beneath the purifying rays of the moon.

But by far the majority are engaged in the very substantial business of faith healing. Some 6,000 "guerisseurs" (healers) extract roughly $200 million a year from their Gallic followers. Under French law, faith healing is legal as long as the guru doesn't forbid his patients to visit qualified doctors, and most not only comply but make a practice of referring patients with serious diseases like cancer or tuberculosis to local hospitals.

Some, in fact, are dedicated humanists who can actually help their clients to some extent — troubled youngsters, say, upset by an unhappy love life, or farmers distraught by failing crops and in need of nothing more than someone to talk to.

Occasionally, however, a healer will become obsessed with his own powers, and the result, more often than not, is tragedy.

One such "mage" (seer) is Maurice Gerard, a cadaverous man who calls himself either the Mage of Marsal or Swami Matkormano. Early last year, two of Gerard's four children disappeared. He claimed they had been spirited away by burglars who also stole some of his "talking statuettes" and shot up his temple.

•

Neighbors recall hearing no shots or other sounds of violence. What they do remember, though, is that both missing children had serious ailments (one was deaf, the other afflicted with a bone disease) and that they had been ignored by their parents.

Ever since then, the police have been using electronic devices to scan the walls of Gerard's temple, exploring the possibility that the children were sacrificed during a Black Mass.

Gerard is in jail for child neglect and his wife (who threw an ashtray at the trial judge) has been decreed violently insane and confined to a psychiatric hospital.

Jean Vartier, a 42-year-old journalist who has specialized in the supernatural, believes that occultism is on the wane in France. "As social security benefits improve," he says, "the French will be seeing more and more doctors and fewer and fewer healers."

But even in modern France, the media continue to spread the message of the beyond. The biggest American movie in France in years was "Rosemary's Baby," and the most popular U.S. television export is — you guessed it —"Bewitched."

Shore Crabs Live by the Tide

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

Shore crabs are creatures of two worlds. They seem to be equally at home submerged by sea water or exposed to air above the low-tide level. Actually they are very much dependent upon the sea for their existence and are only able to make short excursions into the land world.

Shore crabs are not young stages of other crabs. Most of those seen on local beaches are fully mature adults and are close to their maximum size.

* * *

Actually two species are represented but they are not easily distinguishable. Each differs a bit in appearance and in choice of habitat but they are often intermingled and it requires rather close scrutiny to differentiate them.

Technically they are known as Hemigrapsus nudus and H. oregonensis. Nudus as one might guess lacks some body covering, which in this case refers to hair on the walking legs. Oregonensis gets its name from the fact that it was described first from specimens taken in Puget Sound, in 1851, which at that time was a part of Oregon. Both species range from Alaska to California.

* * *

Each has a somewhat square shell or carapace covering the back and in large males it may reach a maximum width of an inch or an inch and a half. However the size range is extremely variable so that you may find some crablets with shells less than half the size of your little finger nail, while most will be somewhat less than an inch.

Color varies too but usually these creatures are shades of brown, black or dark green. The most colorful individuals may be white, red, yellowish, and bluish as overall hue with or without marbelling or spots of different shades or colors.

When these varied colored crabs are living on a pebbly beach it is remarkable how difficult it is to see them when they are not moving. Ordinarily they keep under cover so no matter what their color is they are not conspicuous. Only when they move do they catch the eye, but as soon as they "freeze," no matter if they are in full view they become just another pebble as far as the general observer is concerned.

Actually shore crabs are nocturnal in habit which means that feeding and other activities are usually carried on in darkness. But another set of circumstances has a great influence on their daily life and this is the state of the tide. These two great factors, the regular succession of day and night and the rhythmic cycle of tides combine to regulate their activities in a very complex pattern.

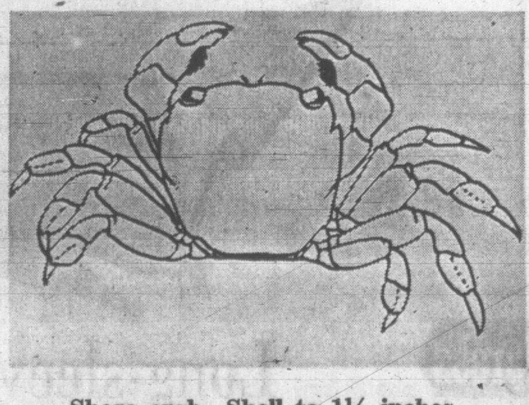
Even when removed from the direct effect of tides, isolated in tanks miles from the seashore, crabs will continue to feed and rest on a tidal schedule. How these deep-seated rhythms are maintained in marine animals is a problem that is intriguing present-day students of animal behavior.

* * *

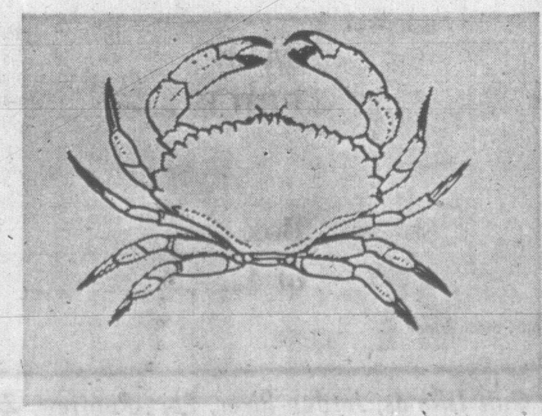
Often associated with the shore crabs on a rocky beach are other small crabs representing several different species. One of them resembles the commercial crab, Cancer magister, in general shape and in fact is a close relative. This is the red rock crab, Cancer productus, which is commonly seen in tide pools, scuttling over rough bottom in relatively shallow water, in beds of eel grass or in the mud under rocks.

The red rock crab never gets as large as Cancer magister, since it seldom exceeds six inches in shell width. The red color, the black tips to the pinchers and five knobs forming the shell-front between the eyes, serve to distinguish this species from all others of this genus in these waters.

Since it makes excellent eating it should be noted that regulations governing the taking of crabs do not apply to this species. In other words rock crabs can be taken at any time of the year, with no size or bag limit. It would be wise however that your take is from unpolluted water.



Shore crab. Shell to 1½ inches.



Red rock crab. Shell to six inches.

Will Easter Break End the Session?

Is the legislature pushing hard for a pre-Easter finish or isn't it?

It was hard to tell Wednesday when the House adjourned at 6 p.m. until this afternooon—the first night off for MLAs in several weeks, Fridays excepted.

Adjournment by Premier Bennett followed a chat between himself and Opposition Leader Dave Barrett and a vote of the House to grant Resources Minister Ray Williston his ministerial salary after four hours of debate—well below the average for other ministers.

But Barrett said outside the House his party would have a number of detailed questions to ask on individual votes of Williston's department today.

The House must still deal with the spending estimates of the departments of municipal affairs, mines, recreation and conservation, welfare, public works, ministers without portfolio and one or two other miscellaneous votes.

BILLS AWAITED

A heavy load of legislation awaits detailed committee discussion and important bills are still being introduced by the government.

Speculation has ranged from prorogation as early as next Wednesday to as late as April 15.

Opposition MLAs have said privately they will stay as long as necessary to do the business of the House in what they feel is a proper manner, but also admit that if Premier Bennett decides to finish the session by a given date he will probably be able to bring it off.

There is a feeling that the legislators wouldn't greatly mind returning to the House after Easter this year in view of 25 per cent salary increases they have voted themselves. It might help to justify the extra expense to break the traditional Easter prorogation barrier.

USUAL ENDING

There are annual complaints that the session ends in a landslide of superficially-debated legislation flowing over MLAs groggy from late-night sittings.

The legislature sat until midnight Monday and Tuesday this week but so far has escaped any overnight talk-outs such as those of other years.

B.C. Tel Worried By Hazards

Clotheslines and other obstructions attached to telephone poles are hindering telephone installations and repair work on the Island and elsewhere in the province, B.C. Tel says.

The company has issued an appeal asking that anyone who has created obstructions on or near telephone poles remove them immediately so work can proceed safely.

Gil Auchinleck, B.C. Tel's Island Division manager, said the company's regulations do not permit employees to climb poles where obstructions create a hazard.

"The very life of any man who climbs an obstructed pole is in danger and we cannot have the safety of our employees so imperilled."

Status Urged for Independent School

Legal recognition of the 130 independent schools in the province would be permitted by a private members' bill introduced into the legislature Wednesday.

Dudley Little (SC—Skeena) sponsored the bill which provides that a school seeking legal recognition by the education department must submit to inspection by a superintendent of public schools. The superintendent would be approved by the department and appointed by the Federation of Independent School Associations.

To be approved, schools will have to meet standards of academic achievement agreed upon by both the department and the Federation.

The bill is not considered to have much chance of passing through the legislature, however, as private bills are given low priority.

The federation includes the Catholic School Trustees' Association, the Independent Schools' Association, the National Union of Christian Schools, and the Associate Member Group.

MLAs have pointed out in the house this session that 23,000 students in grades one to 13 are served by independent schools, at a saving of $13 million to taxpayers. There is no provision for assessment of these schools, their teachers or pupils by the education department. Students in the schools cannot enter university without examination because independent schools have no access to accreditation.

Vital Issues Handled Secretly—Barrett

Ray Williston, minister of lands, forests and water resources, was described Wednesday as an example of why many young people have lost faith in the parliamentary system.

Bob Williams (NDP — Vancouver East) told the legislature that Williston's performance as minister primarily in charge of environmental matters suggests why "mass cynicism and disillusionment" has taken hold in the political life of the province.

STAYED AWAY

He noted that not one responsible provincial cabinet minister had attended a day-long teach-in on the environment at University of Victoria 12 days ago.

Of some of the young participants in the teach-in, Williams said:

"They think this place (the legislature) is irrelevant."

Williams said a major reason for this is that the Social Credit government consistently runs for re-election on "irrelevant issues, scare questions" while dealing with the vital issues of society in secrecy and out of touch with the people.

"To a great extent the minister sees his function as working closely with the corporate power elite who dominate the forest industry," Williams said.

At the same time cabinet ministers won't mix with students and others anxious to "enrich the decision-making process" in the province, he said.

"You're supposed to protect the environment and live happily and socially with the big companies," he told Williston. "Mass cynicism and disillusionment is the price this government has been willing to pay to keep power."

EXAMPLE IN QUESNEL

Williams said a symbol of Williston's attitude toward the environment and toward people who must live with it could be found in the "stinking tree-infested mess" behind Duncan Dam, called Lake Williston, an "appropriate" name.

But the "simple" example of sawdust pollution at Quesnel, in the Caribou, is "as poignant and clear a symbol of the attitude of this government that we could get," he said.

Air pollution from several slash burners near the town results in the school board regularly having to shovel off the roof of a school, covered with sawdust, he said.

Williams said young people who won't stand by while the environment is destroyed may be on the "knife-edge" of a decision on a route to political action.

They could decide to work through the parliamentary system, in as radical a way as possible through a party, or they could swing "to the right" and work through other methods that could spell the end of the parliamentary system—a frightening prospect.

He also described as frightening the secrecy of Williston's department which regards the revenue earned by the public from tree farm licences as a confidential matter between government and the licence-holder.

The secrecy is probably designed to keep the public from finding out about "scandalously low" revenue from the forest resource, he said.

GOOD DEAL GOING

But you don't hear major forest companies complaining about secrecy, Williams said. They may not like it if another company negotiates a better deal with the forest service than the others have, but "they don't want to upset the good deal they've got going themselves."

Williams said it is clear that the pattern of pulp mill development in the province is established by industry rather than by planning in the government.

That's why there is such fear that a pulp mill will be built in the North Okanagan, endangering recreation values, he said. Other MLAs also urged Williston to oppose a mill in that area.

BALANCE 'DELICATE'

Now it appears that the forest industry, through the forest service, will solely determine the use of land in great tracts of the "virgin north," where careful multi-departmental planning is required to protect delicate environmental balances, he said.

"It seems clear that major recreational possibilities will be lost," he said, doubting that the government's land use committee set up last year by the cabinet would have much effect on Social Credit policies and attitudes.

CYPRESS 'FIASCO'

He said the Cypress Bowl controversy was a good example of "incompetence, arrogance and economic insanity" by the minister and department and had ended Willistons long-standing "schoolteacher" image.

The "fiasco" may even have been worthwhile because "it means that people will have to look twice at the statements from this minister from now on . . . about the deals he makes."

Williams said a public tree farm licence held by the district of Mission gives promise of a better way of using the forest resources of the province for public benefit. The forests are better looked after in the public licence than in nearby private holdings, he said, and the public has access to their lands in the publicly-operated lands.

He said the experience at Mission provides a "small, bright light on the horizon" in forest resource management in B.C.

School Adds Five Lots

Five Aldridge street lots which border the western side of University School property will be devloped as part of the school's playing fields.

The school bought the lots and buildings several years ago, but only recently submitted an application to Saanich to rezone the land "for public school use."

Buildings will be removed from the lots, which constitute a parcel 100 by 290 feet.

F. N. Cabeldu, chairman of the school's board of directors, said the new land will increase playing fields by about one-half acre.

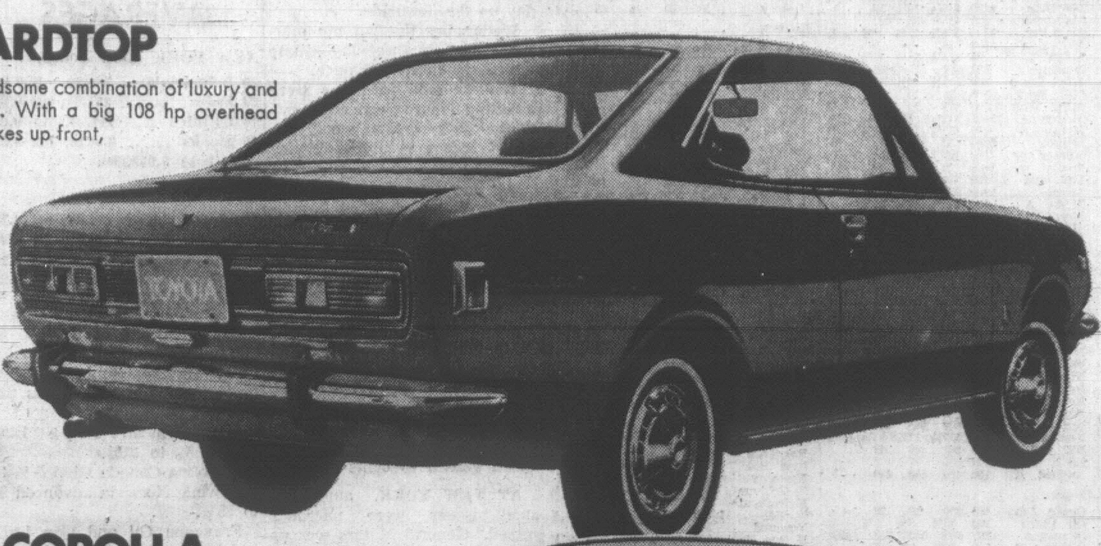
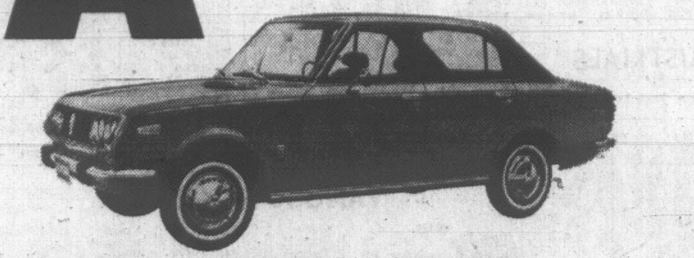
Power disc brakes up front, electric rear window defroster, white walls, wheel discs, reclining bucket seats, all standard. All safety features. Complete console with your choice of 4-speed stick or optional automatic. It stands in a class by itself.





MARK II SEDAN $2699.

Loads of room for the family man, yet it's no typical family car. All safety features, same engine as the hardtop, 3-speed heater, alternator, heavy duty electrical system. Leg room, head room, trunk space. Gives you up to 30 miles to the gallon.

MARK II WAGON $2949.

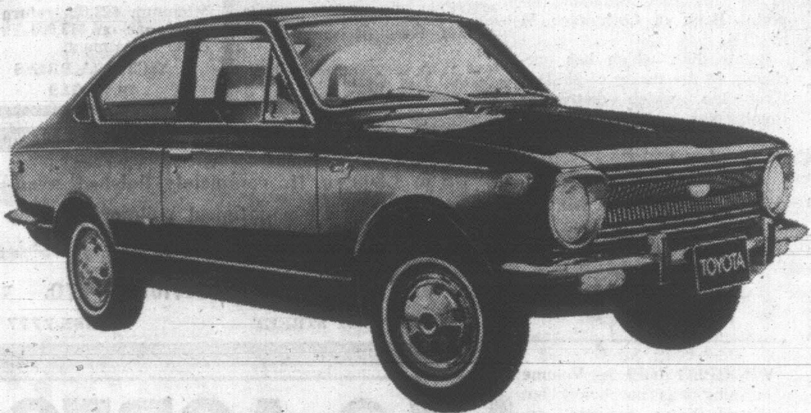
Loads of cargo room, handles like a sedan and priced like a second car. Disc brakes up front, fresh flow ventilation system for fresh air even with the windows up, reclining bucket seats, tinted glass, fully carpeted front and back.

COROLLA WAGON $2139.

The perfect compact economy wagon. Plenty of power with the 73 hp engine, and still gives you up to 35 miles to the gallon. 80.25 square feet of load-space. Swing up type tailgate, entirely flat cargo area, complete safety package, plus all the regular Corolla features.

COROLLA SEDAN $1889.

Top speed is over 90 mph, cruising speed 75. Plenty of room inside and a large trunk area. Three speed heater, two speed wipers, electric windshield washers, reclining bucket seats, white walls, your choice of 4-on-the-floor or an optional automatic. You can't buy a better car for the money any place in the world today.



SPRINTER $2135.

A sleek fastback. The same big 73 horsepower engine. Door to door carpeting, tinted glass all around, an optional automatic, luxury interior, you name it and this little car has got it. Has to be driven to appreciate.

CORONA 4-DOOR SEDAN $2395.

The four-door sedan that's made for hard driving. A 90 hp engine that's practically unbreakable. Cruising speed is a quiet 80 mph. Wood trimmed instrument panel, arm rests on all doors, large rear bench seat, reclining bucket seats up front, tinted glass, a tool kit, and all the safety features. Last year, this car was elected "Imported Car of the Year" by Road Test Magazine.

CROWN WAGON $3655.

A luxury station wagon with bucket seats up front and a folding rear seat, power rear window, side swinging gate and a vast carpet-covered cargo area. Easy to handle with variable ratio steering, just the right size, top speed of 100 mph delivered effortlessly by the overhead cam 6. Using the rear side-seat, the Crown wagon seats 7.

LAND CRUISER HARDTOP $3845.

The go anywhere, do anything machine. Four wheel drive, and a long list of feature attachments for having fun or getting the job done. A good highway machine with a 6 cylinder 155 hp engine. Interior is comfortable as well as functional. You'll even let your wife drive it.

CROWN DELUXE SEDAN $3305.

Toyota's finest achievement. As luxurious as cars costing up to twice as much. Everything is standard but the radio and an automatic transmission. Probably the quietest car around, cruises comfortably at 85 mph, built to exceed all safety standards. Power assist disc brakes up front, the trunk is big, carpeted, vented and illuminated. A prestige car, built to last a lifetime.

LAND CRUISER WAGON $4530.

Underneath its tough heavy steel construction, lies a nice soft interior with soft foam seating for a family of 7. Built to last a lifetime and take you anywhere. Cruising speed is 70 mph. Used as work vehicles on the South Pole. Complete tool kit and a long list of useful extras. See them at your nearest Toyota dealer. (There's a little Land Cruiser in everything we do.)

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Volume of trading was not heavy but rapeseed drew renewed exporter interest at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Prices in rapeseed futures were strong near the close.

Flax prices declined slightly and appeared to be under some liquidation pressure and hedging operations.

A domestic shipper and miller trade lent buoyancy to rye but oats and barley were limited to a light domestic trade.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy liquidation in the expiring March options sent most commodity futures prices downward on the Board of Trade today.

All March options expired at noon and holders of long positions turned to selling out, rather than accept delivery.

Soybean oil prices opened a shade weaker, then advanced around 30 points. But they closed 80 points under Wednesday's last figure

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Rental Income Taxable

By Egar A. Downey, C.A.

Rental income is subject to income tax but some taxpayers prefer to think that they do not need to count it and believe that they are beating the tax collector.

They rarely win because if the income is material the tax assessors will find it eventually. If it is not material the related expenses would probably show that the rental operation results in a loss which may be offset against other sources of income, so the taxpayer is beating himself.

The most common expenses which may be deducted from rental revenue are:

- ● Property taxes.
- ● Mortgage interest.
- ● Heat, light and water.
- ● Insurance premiums.
- ● Repairs and maintenance including garden supplies.
- ● Janitor services and supplies.
- ● Accounting and legal expenses, except those incurred for the purchase or sale of the property.
- ● Commissions paid to rental agents.
- ● Capital cost allowance based upon the cost of the building and the furniture and equipment, but not including land.

If the owner lives in the house and rents out a part of it he may claim the proportion of his expenses allocared to the rented part of the property. The simple way to allocate is on the basis of number of rooms, or square footage, of rental space to owner's private space, leaving common space such as hallways, shared bathrooms, etc. out of the calculation.

The annual capital cost allowance rates are 10 per cent for frame buildings, 5 per cent for brick or concrete buildings and 20 per cent for equipment.

These rates are applied upon the diminishing amount of original cost so that for a frame building which cost $10,000 the allowance for the first year would be $1,000, the second year $900, i.e. 10 per cent of $9,000 ($10,000-$1,000), the third year $810, i.e. 10 per cent of $8.100 ($10,000-$1,000-$900).

If the rental property is sold then the capital cost allowance claimed is subject to recapture as taxable income unless the taxpayer has other property of the same class or acquires such property before the end of the year in which he sold the original property.

TERM EXPLAINED

The term "the same class" means that if it was a frame building which was sold it must be another frame building not a brick building which is purchased to defer the effect of the recapture.

If the taxpayer does own other property of the same class at the end of the year any excess capital cost allowance claimed over the amount of actual depreciation suffered, as proven by the original cost minus the proceeds of the sale, is applied to reduce the basis for capital cost allowance on that other property.

If no other same class property is owned then the excess capital cost allowance is treated as income in the year of sale. However, if the taxpayer chooses he may pay the tax at the rates he would have paid if he had taken one fifth of the excess into his taxable income in the previous five years. It does not matter whether he had owned the property during all of those five years as long as he had been a Canadian taxpayer for five years.

Unfortunately, if a taxpayer does not earn rental revenue from his house none of the expenses is allowable. This is often a hardship upon a person who has sold one house and moved to another. If he receives interest income upon the mortgage or sale agreement for the old house it is subject to income tax but the interest he pays on a mortgage for the house he bought to live in is not allowable as a deductible expense.

This may seem unfair because if the original house had been sold for all cash there would be no interest income to be taxed and the cash could have been used to pay for the second house and so avoid interest expense which is not deductible. Nevertheless, fair or unfair, it is the way the Income Tax Act is written and it is not the fault of the individual tax assessors who do not write the rules but are required to apply them.

Shell Canada

Shell Canada's fourth exploratory offshore well on the Atlantic seaboard is expected to be started next week, following completion of Shell Naskapi K-30, the third well, which encountered "a few minor traces of oil and gas."

Naskapi was plugged at a depth of 7,235 feet, said David W. Smith, offshore manager in Calgary.

Drilling by Sedneth I on the fourth well will be 60 miles northeast of Sable Island and 160 miles east of Halifax.

Meanwhile Sedco H, the first semi-submersible drilling vessel to be built on the Atlantic coast of Canada, was to be christened Friday at Halifax Shipyards for use by Shell for the next two years.

AL & W

Financial difficulties that had put the future of a 115-year-old sporting goods firm in doubt have been solved by the backing of Canadian businessmen.

Allcock, Laight and Westwood Ltd.—better known as AL & W—remains a Canadian company based in Bramalea, Ont., following introduction of new capital. Serious losses had occurred when the firm entered the snowmobile market, and loans of more than $1 million were called by Toronto-Dominion Bank.

The company is known for its fishing tackle, ski gear, car tops and other sporting equipment.

Microsystems

Microsystems International Ltd., of Montreal, will spend $4.5 million in the next two years to acquire thin film processing equipment at its Ottawa manufacturing plant.

The company said this would enable it ot explore new areas of telecommunications technology. The thin film concept is part of microcircuitry, in which electronic circuits are etched on a wafer of tantalum and deposited on a ceramic chip, in some applications rendering the transistor obsolete.

Polymer Corp.

The highest profit in Polymer Corp. Ltd. history is reported by E. R. Rowzee, president of the crown corporation.

Net income was $13.8 million on consolidated net sales that were 10 per cent higher at $155.7 million, compared with $7 million net income in 1968.

The company reported $4.25 million income from other sources, making the gross income 11 per cent higher at $159.97 million.

Can-Am

Can-Am Systems Ltd., of Vancouver, claims to have become the largest independent computer operation in the West with its takeover of Aquila Computer Services Ltd., as a wholly-owned subsidiary.

It was the second acquisition by Can-Am recently, the earlier one being the combination of Seattle-based Data Planning Corp. with its own operations. A wider base for servicing small accounts is thus provided, the company said.

Hudson's Bay

Hudson's Bay Co. reports net profit of $12.95 million or 96 cents a share for the year ending Jan. 31, 1970, down from $14.7 million or $1.08 a share the previous year.

The company said fur sales profit dropped 60 per cent, reflecting volume and price levels at the New York fur operation in December and January.

The company said fourth-quarter sales, traditionally the most important to its operations, were "disappointing."

$30 Million Issue By B.C. Telephone

VANCOUVER (CP) — A prospectus for a $30,000,000 issue of 20-year B.C. Telephone Co. first-mortgage bonds bearing 9⅛ per cent interest coupons was filed this week with the provincial securities commission, the company announced Wednesday.

J. Ernest Richardson, company president and chief executive officer, said the coupon rate is the highest the capital markets have ever demanded of the company for debt capital required for expansion and telephone system improvement.

Proceeds of the issue are to be used to reduce temporary loans incurred to carry our expansion.

The issue, which holders may elect to have repaid after five years, is to be offered at $99.70, yielding 9.20 per cent to those electing prepayment at April 1, 1975, and 9.16 per cent to those holding the bonds until maturity date of April 1, 1990.

It provides that the holder may, between April 1, 1974 and October 1 of the same year, elect for prepayment, in which case the principal amount involved will be paid on April 1, 1975.

The issue will bring the company's total bonded debt to $247,500,000.

LESS INTEREST

B.C. Telephone's last bond issue, which also totalled $30,000,000, was sold in March, 1967 and bore interest coupons of 6⅜ per cent.

The previous high interest coupon on the company's debt capital was 6¾ per cent on a $30,000,000 issue sold in October, 1966.

"We have a capital expansion program exceeding $91,000,000 this year," Richardson said, "and our capital requirements for future expansion to assure that we are able to meet British Columbia's communications needs will continue to be substantial.

"The cost of this capital is reflected directly in the cost of providing telephone services and I am concerned about the possible impact on telephone rates in future if the market place continues to demand such high interest rates.

"We can only hope that efforts to bring inflation under control will reduce these costs."

U.S. Eases Tight Money

WASHINGTON (WP) — The federal reserve has relaxed its tight money grip on the economy and expects interest rates, already receding, to go even lower this year.

That was the thrust of extraordinarily candid testimony Wednesday by Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns before the senate banking and currency committee.

He himself characterized his statement — including assurance that the "FED" would not permit a recession to develop — as "cautiously and moderately bullish."

But the new chairman, who has been in office only since Feb. 1, flatly contradicted a statement that inflation has been "defeated" and that the chances of recession are "nil."

"No, I don't think the problem of inflation is at an end," Burns said in answer to a question. "Nor can I say there is no danger of a recession."

He assured the committee, however, of the government's ability and intention to avoid either.

"We do not propose to stand idly by and watch the current adjustment degenerate into a recession," he said in his prepared statement. "Neither do we intend to let excess demand for goods and services burst out anew later this year."

Burns repeatedly called attention to the fact that there recently has been "a marked decline" in interest rates, as well as a growth in the financial "aggregates" — measures of the supply of money, bank reserves and bank credit, which lubricate the economic machinery.

"The important point is that the direction of these financial quantities has changed; their trend is no longer downward, as it was earlier he declared.

Such a change in the amount of money available in the financial markets can only be the consequence of direct moves by the federal reserve system.

In other exchanges with senators, Burns said that the recent reduction in interest rates would be "more than temporary" and that "this new trend of interest rates is of some importance."

Industrial Jobs Trigger Provincial Debate

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Government involvement with the economic life-blood of a province—its job-creating industries—drew attention in Canadian legislatures Wednesday.

In Halifax the house was told that investment in two plants being built in Nova Scotia by Michelin Tire will be about $100,000,000, made up of $50,000,000 from Industrial Estates Ltd. and undisclosed amounts from the regional economic expansion department and the company's own investment.

IEL is the N.S. government agency which aids industry.

Michelin was a firm mentioned in the N.S. house Tuesday as a possible user of about $1,000,000 industrial hose and belting put out by Cosmos Imperial Mills in Yarmouth, N.S.

Cosmos sold that much annually to the Dunlop Canada Ltd. plant in Toronto which is closing with the loss of about 600 jobs. There was a hint that Cosmos may have to close because of the Dunlop shutdown.

COMPANY SOUND

IEL also has an investment of $2,500,000 in Yarmouth Industrial Fabrics, a wholly-owned Cosmos subsidiary, the legislature's industry committee was told. The money was loaned for plant, land and equipment.

Yarmouth Fabrics' position was "very strong financially," an IEL spokesman told the committee.

The Dunlop closing came up for a second time in the Toronto house when the New Democratic Party tried without success to force an emergency debate on this and other industrial shutdowns affecting about 1,200 jobs in Ontario. Premier John Robarts said the move was a "political tactic" by the NDP.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald said in the debate that the Dunlop closing already had caused 200 workers to be laid off by shoe manufacturers Murray-Selby Co. of London, Ont., and that there is a possibility Cosmos Mills Ltd. of Toronto, part of the Nova Scotia company, could also have to lay off 600 workers.

QUOTES SCHREYER

At Winnipeg, the legislature was plunged into emergency debate over the Manitoba government's financial involvement with the Churchill Forest Industries development at The Pas.

A Liberal spokesman referred to statements made by Premier Ed Schreyer in an interview with The Tribune in which the premier said the government, through the Manitoba development fund will lend $90,000,000 by the time the northwestern Manitoba development is completed.

Former Liberal leader Gil Molgat quoted the premier as saying that under the agreement, signed by the previous Conservative administration in 1966, average interest rates charged would be about 7½ per cent. The government has to borrow money at a higher rate, thus subsidizing the companies by several million dollars.

At Regina Premier Ross Thatcher announced that the Saskatchewan Economic Development Corp. has approved a loan to enable Waldman and Paul Ltd. to undertake a $350,000 expansion, doubling its staff of 90 and perhaps also doubling its annual production of about 170,000 women's coats. Amount of the loan was not disclosed.

In other legislatures:

Charlottetown—The hopes of the Prince Edward Island government to bring down its budget faded Wednesday when Progressive Conservatives announced the opposition will be introducing a number of speakers in the throne speech debate.

Fredericton—Agriculture Minister J. Adrien Levesque said "quite a number" of New Brunswick's dairy producers will be forced to switch to other types of farming or retire because of surpluses that exist in many dairy products.

Fowl Cholera Hits East Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. agriculture department warned poultry growers Tuesday that migratory waterfowl may be spreading fowl cholera across a wide area of the East and possibly into the Great Lakes region.

Officials of the agricultural research service said fowl cholera among wild waterfowl in the Chesapeake Bay area "has reached epidemic proportions" in recent weeks.

TO SPORTSMAN SHOW . . . . . . AT ESQUIMALT

Retrievers Will Return

Retrievers will be spalshing again at this year's Kiwanis Sportsman Show, scheduled for Esquimalt Sports Centre on April 2, 3, 4 and 5.

Among the most popular performers in last year's show, the dogs are slated for a return engagement in a pool set up in the curling rink at the Sports Centre.

Island champions will be among the dogs retrieving objects from the pool and performing other tasks on commands from their handlers.

Patrons of the fourth annual show should be able to find numerous others exhibits to stimulate interest.

Featuring "what's new" in the world of outdoor sport, living and recreation — including a hovercraft, dune buggies and a Lotus racing car — will be 114 display areas.

Attendees will also be able to test archery talents, observe various demonstrations and watch an entertainment program that includes a spectacular aerial act, vocalists and "teen queens."

Proceeds from the show, sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Saanich, will go toward Kiwanis charities.

UNDERGOING eye examination is San Francisco Giants' Willie McCovey. Most valuable player in National Baseball League last season has been bothered by blurred vision in pre-season exhibition games.

Leeds, Celtic In Semi-Finals

By REUTERS

Leeds United and Glasgow Celtic marched into the semi-finals of the European Cup Wednesday night to underline the power of Britain's challenge for Europe's major club soccer trophy.

English-champion Leeds beat powerful Standard Liege of Belgium 1-0 with a late penalty goal by Irish international Johnny Giles to give them a 2-0 aggregate victory in the quarter-final.

Celtic, the 1967 European champions and the only previous winners still in the competition, lost 1-0 to the Italian champions Fiorentina, but triumphed 3-1 on aggregate.

The other European Cup semi-finalists are Feijenoord Rotterdam and Legia Warsaw. Feijenoord, which knocked out defending champions A. C. Milan in the second round, beat Verwaerats Berlin of East Germany 2-0 to win 2-1 on aggregate.

The last four places in the European Cup Winners Cup also were decided Wednesday and favorites Manchester City and Gornik Zabrze of Poland both qualified.

Tony Towers scored the overtime goal which gave Manchester a 1-0 victory over Portugal's Academica de Combra after a scoreless first leg.

The quarter-finals of the European Fairs Cup also were completed and defending champion Newscastle United was put out by Anderlecht of Belgium.

Vernon Connects, 3-1; Sixth Meeting Tonight

VERNON — "Button, button . . . who's got the button?" is a children's game.

Hockey is for young men, but the question Victoria fans are asking today is "who's got a power play?"

Victoria Cougars didn't, and the defending champions once again find themselves trailing the best-of-seven British Columbia Junior Hockey League final with Vernon Essos.

Sparked by slick Wayne Dye, Vernon edged Victoria 3-1 here Wednesday to grab a 3-2 series lead. Sixth game will be played in Victoria's Memorial Arena tonight (starting 8:30) and the seventh, if required, goes back to Vernon on Friday.

Series' winner will represent British Columbia in the interpovincial playoffs, meeting Weyburn Red Wings of the Saskatchewan Junior League.

OSBORNE SOLID

Dye provided the offensive coloring Wednesday, but goaltender Gary Osborne of Vernon proved to be a major obstacle for the Cougars.

Osborne's chores were made easier by Cougars' inability to get untracked while holding a manpower edge through penalties.

Cougars had seven chances and an aggregate sum of over 11 minutes, but couldn't score. Cougars were shorthanded four times (excluding double-minor situations) and Dye scored an all-important second goal on the power-play.

Cougars' power-play attack was particularly ineffective after Jim Marsh of Vernon drew a five-minute penalty for butt-ending. The Cats came close, but that was all, in five minutes.

QUECHUK STARTS IT

Larry Quechuk got the home side off and running with the opening goal at 14:55 of the first period. Dye's power-play shot at 15:00 of the second period made it 2-0, and he ran it to 3-0 early in the third — minutes after Vernon successfully killed off the major to Jim Marsh.

Alex Shibicky finally put Cougars on the scoreboard at 12:04 of the third period.

The Cougars' greatest failing was on attack. Victoria forwards appeared intimidated by Esso rearguards and rarely followed up rebounds and good scoring chances.

Cougar coach Doug Anderson shuffled his lines around midway in the game, then finally went with just two lines for the final 10 minutes.

WEBSTER RETURNING

Nonetheless, Cougars had their good moments but were stymied by Osborne's steadiness. He was especially outstanding early in the second period, with Essos clinging to a 1-0 lead. Osborne made his greatest stabs to deprive Shibicky, Laurie Moore, John Kwasney and Ted Plowe of goals.

Ed Forlund of Victoria also performed brilliantly, and was pulled in favor of an extra attacker in the final minute of the game.

Anderson said Shayne Webster, who scored seven goals in the semi-final series against Kamloops Rockets but since has been sidelined with a groin injury, will return to the lineup tonight.

Bill WALKER

To whom it may concern. If you happen to have scanned the Eastern papers recently, you will have observed that: 1. Toronto Maple Leafs were seeking Dennis Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks before the trading deadline passed; and 2. The Toronto Maple Leafs will have Jacques Plante of the St. Louis Blues in goal next season.

That's what they say, for what it is worth . . . and they didn't get Hull.

Of course, the key to the Plante situation is what happens in the forthcoming Stanley Cup playoffs, and whether or not Glenn Hall, third member of the St. Louis goalkeeping triumvirate, retires again . . . Ernie Wakely is the other Blues' netminder, and heir apparent to the job as regular custodian . . . But why would the Leafs want Plante? . . . There is the thought here that Bruce Gamble has done most everything he has been asked, even a little bit more . . . And if the Leafs are building for the future, as they must, Plante would have to be regarded as the standby. An excellent performer he could be in that role, buy why would he want to leave St. Louis? Confusing, isn't it? . . .

When Don Larsen of the New York Yankees pitched his perfect game in the World Series against Brooklyn, he is reported to have commented afterwards of the final pitch: "I had to throw the ball, I couldn't faint." Well, pretty soon, baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn is going to have to throw the second pitch in the Denny McLain case . . . McLain is simply under suspension at the moment . . . now everyone wants to know what else, or who else (if any) is involved . . . A reader notes that the past week there was an omission from a press story that should be brought to the attention of track followers . . . Victoria's Wendy Thompson won an 800-metre race at Lethbridge in the good time of 2.12.8 . . . There is reason, it should be noted too, because Wendy wasn't that far behind Thelma Flynn in the 1,500 metres . . . She was third . . . and Thelma now is of international calibre . . .

Incidentally, it is unfortunate that the Royal Canadian Legion, at the national level, has terminated its track and field program . . . But it was understandable because the federal government has withdrawn its financial support of the program . . .

The Legion program was considered by many to be the finest of its kind in the Dominion, and in 13 years at the national and provincial levels, cost over $1 million . . . the federal contribution, which began in 1962, was $414,000 . . . It will be recalled that Geoff Dyson, former British national coach, was employed for seven years by the Legion, and during that time, over 1,300 Canadian track and field coaches received training from some of the world's outstanding athletes, and coaches . . . Harold Connolly, world hammer-throwing champion, said of the Legion clinic: "I think it is one of the finest on either side of the Iron Curtain." . . . Noted U.S. authority Fred Wilt commented: "It is the greatest in the English Speaking world." . . . And so it has ended. However, it is expected that track and field activity will continue at provincial and branch levels . . . It is hoped so, because the Legion is involved with about 20 per cent of all track and field in Canada . . . And if English rugby is your forte, there is an interesting playoff billed this Saturday . . . the game for the Times Trophy is between Saanich Velox and James Bay Athletic Association . . . the oddity is that Velox is the youngest club in the area, having been formed only last summer, while JBAA, has been around since before when? . . . It is the oldest club in town . . . And you may have noted, too, that two Victorians were singularly honored the past weekend . . . Anne McKeachie was selected to the Canadian junior girls' all-star basketball team, and Chris Hall to the Canadian junior men's all-star side . . . They come by their talents, naturally, for when their fathers were playing ball, Ian McKeachie and Leon Hall were, for a few years, on the senior 'A' team, the Senators . . . Before that Ian had been with the Canadian champion Pat Bay Gremlins, among others, including the Dominoes . . . Or would you care to play motorball? . . . It's one of the new sports, a cross between hockey, polo, and soccer . . . it is played on motorcycles . . .

●

And wouldn't you know it — mention a hockey goalkeeper scoring a goal, and everyone gets into the act . . . It happened at Red Deer last week when a team failed to arrive for a game . . . It happened in Thompson, Man., with the Canadian National team committing the aggression, and it occurred back in 1910 in an Allan Cup game . . . The Winnipeg Victorias were beating the bejabbers out of the Toronto Granites, when the Winnipeg goalkeeper decided he wanted some of the action . . . he stickhandled through the opposition to score, which makes the feat more noteworthy than the others . . . It may have passed unnoticed at the time, but B.C.'s Leo Hebert was named all-star second in the recent Brier championships . . . Racing fans won't have long to wait, or get cold waiting, either . . . The season opens at Ex-Park on April 10, and don't worry about getting a chill . . . The B.C. Jockey Club has installed 105 infra-red heating units that will keep the grandstand at summer temperatures during cool spring days . . . It is interesting, too, that the daily double has been dropped again, this time in favor of an extra exacto, and yet another change . . . the exacto will be on the first and last races, and the quinella on the fourth and sixth . . .

'BABE' PRATT HERE FRIDAY

Hockey hall-of-famer Walter "Babe" Pratt will be the feature speaker Friday at the Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting set to start at 7:30 p.m. at the Ingraham Hotel.

Anyone wishing to attend should check with the Jaycee office, 2654 Douglas Street.

Phoenix Club Flubs Opportunity to Gain

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phoenix was held to a 1-1 tie by Seattle Wednesday night in a Western Hockey League contest that could have given the Roadrunners a share of the fourth and final playoff berth with the Totems.

Seattle has 59 points, two more than the Roadrunners, as the clubs settled for a point apiece from the tie.

In Wednesday's only other WHL action, Portland Buckaroos edged Denver Spurs 7-6 in Denver to close within 12 points of the league-leading Vancouver Canucks.

At Phoenix, Bill Snow opened the scoring early in the first period for the Roadrunners with a 30-foot shot. Bob Courcey dashed the hopes of 6,161 Phoenix fans on a solo breakaway mid way through the third period that tied the contest. At Denver, Dick Van Impe gave the Buckaroos the win with his second goal of the night with only 51 seconds left in the contest, before 1,996 fans.

Fight for First Tense, And So Is Boston Boss

By Canadian Press

With the National Hockey League East Division race getting tighter every day, it's no wonder that general managers like Milt Schmidt are getting nervous.

Schmidt Wednesday set a $500 fine for any player who breaks curfew regulations as his idle Boston Bruins watched their division lead dwindle to one point and the race among the top five clubs close to a six-point spread.

The race has closed so tight that only one point separates the top four teams. Boston leads with 87, followed by Chicago Black Hawks with 86, Detroit Red Wings 85 and New York Rangers 84. Montreal Canadiens are another three points behind the Rangers.

The Hawks advanced Wednesday on a 7-4 win over Toronto Maple Leafs, while Detroit whipped Minnesota North Stars 6-2, New York beat Pittsburgh Penguins 2-0 and Montreal played to a 2-2 tie with Oakland Seals.

IT'S IMPORTANT

"I want these guys to realize the importance of our situation the rest of the way," Schmidt said in explaining the curfew fine which is $100 during the regular season.

The importance of the situation was not lost on Bobby Hull either as he sparked the Black Hawks Wednesday with two goals and three assists in Toronto.

He scored twice in the first period and then set up goals by Chico Maki, Cliff Koroll and Pit Martin. Jim Pappin and Lou Angotti provided the other Chicago goals in front of the outstanding goaltending of Tony Esposito who kicked out 32 Toronto shots.

HOWE SCORES

George Armstrong, Ron Ellis, Paul Henderson and Floyd Smith scored for the Leafs who trail the East Division.

Detroit scored three goals in each of the second and third periods to trounce the North Stars who hold a one-point edge over fifth-place Oakland in the West Division.

Frank Mahovlich scored once for the Wings and set up the play on goals by Gordie Howe and Garry Unger. Wayne Connelly, Nick Libbett and Al Karlander collected the other Detroit goals at the expense of Minnesota goalie Gump Worsley.

Danny Grant and Tommy Williams were the only North Stars to put the puck behind Roy Edwards before a crowd of 14,875.

Goalies Ed Giacomin for New York and Al Smith for the Penguins held the game at Pittsburgh scoreless until Bob Nevin put his 200th career goal behind Smith in the first minute of the final period. Jean Ratelle got the other New York goal into an empty net in the last minute of play.

The win was the first in 10 starts for the slumping Rangers who led the division most of the season and now must battle to stay ahead of Montreal for a playoff berth.

The shutout before a crowd of 7,551 was the sixth of the season for Giacomin who made 32 saves. The Rangers had 42 shots at Smith's nets.

Henri Richard scored midway through the final period before a crowd of 7,575 at Oakland to salvage the tie for Montreal.

Yvan Cournoyer beat Seals goalie Gary Smith to give the Canadiens a brief 1-0 lead in the first period but Carol Vadnais of Oakland put the puck behind Rogatien Vachon in the opening period and behind Phil Myre in the third. Vachon suffered an arm injury during the second period.

Soviets Hurdle Major Obstacle

STOCKHOLM (CP)—The Russians can still be caught, but the chase by the other contenders in the world hockey championships grew slimmer after the Soviet Union disposed of Czechoslovakia 3-1 Wednesday.

With the day off today, Russia rests undefeated atop the standings of the six-team tournament with four straight wins for eight points—four ahead of Finland, Sweden and Czechoslovakia.

The Finns (2-1), Swedes (2-1) and Czechs (2-2) each have four points while Poland and East Germany are winless. Today, Finland plays East Germany and Poland meets Sweden.

The Russians have been stingy, allowing only three goals against while pumping 24 into opposition nets. Two wins were close, 2-1 over Finland and 3-1 over the Czechs, but the other two were 12-1 and 7-0 romps over East Germany and Poland respectively.

Russia's traditional nemesis, Canada, withdrew before the 17-day, double round-robin tournament over use of professionals.

FANS FLOCK IN

A capacity crowd of 7,200 turned out to watch the Russians control the Czechs in a close-checking game—the only one Wednesday—that lacked the spirit of Czechoslovakia's two wins over the Soviet Union last year.

Those Czech triumphs resulted in riots in Prague, still smarting from the Soviet-led invasion in August, 1968. There were no incidents Wednesday at the arena or elsewhere and the Czechs seemed subdued in contrast to their grudge games of 1969.

Rookie Alexander Maltsev scored the first goal and assisted on tallies by Vladimir Vikulov and Valerij Nikitin as the Russians led 1-0 after the first period and fired two unanswered goals in the third.

Jiri Kochta scored for Czechoslovakia in the second period.

ANOTHER PARTY IN SEATTLE SQUABBLE

Line Forms on Right . . .

SEATTLE (AP) — The principals in the struggle over who's going to get the Seattle Pilots baseball franchise clash in open court here Friday, with yet another party added to the dispute.

The Bank of California, to whom the baseball club owes $3,500,000, has joined the American League in seeking to move aside legal restraints preventing the transfer of the team to Milwaukee. The bank filed a motion to intervene in the $82,000,000 damage suit by the State of Washington and City of Seattle.

The confrontation will occur Friday morning, with the league, its 12 owners and the bank fighting the granting of a temporary injunction and urging dismissal of restrainers which prevented a vote on the shift in Tampa, Fla., Tuesday.

William Dwyer, special assistant state attorney-general, said if the judge dismisses the restraining order Friday, "the club will move and our $82,000,000 anti-trust damage suit goes into effect immediately.

"If an injunction is granted, then the matter will be brought to trial speedily to determine whether the injunction should be made permanent."

If a permanent injunction were granted, Dwyer said, "the league either would have to keep the team here or let it die — and I don't think they'd be foolish enough to do that."

'Hard Nut' Issues May Be Uncracked When Season Opens

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—John Gaherin, the owner's representative in negotiations with the Major League Baseball Players' Association, says he is not satisfied with the progress being made "because there are some hard nut issues we haven't cracked yet."

At the same time, Francis Dale, president of Cincinnati Reds and a member of the owners' player-relations committee, suggested the season might start as scheduled April 6 without a new agreement being signed between the owners and players.

"I don't believe Mr. Miller (Marvin Miller, executive director of the players association) wants an agreement right now," Dale said.

"He's in such a situation it might be to his interests to go into the season without an agreement to keep the pot boiling — to keep the pressure on the reserve clause issue."

The reserve clause issue is one of the unresolved problems in negotiations between the players and the owners. It is also being challenged in the courts by outfielder Curt Flood, who was traded by St. Louis Cardinals to Philadelphia Phillies.

HAVE MADE OFFER

Gaherin, reporting to the owners' committee at the same hotel where the American League was meeting to discuss the problem of the Seattle franchise, said the owners had made an offer to the players containing several economic improvements.

While he would not be specific, he did say they involved the minimum salary, currently $10,000, and meal money. But he added, "There still are fundamental issues to be resolved . . . the question of the reserve clause and the question of the commissioner's jurisdiction in disputes."

The players' association has insisted on some modification of the reserve clause system and a grievance procedure outside the commissioner's office before signing a new agreement.

The old agreement runs out April 5 — the day before the season opens.

HEADING south once more is Victoria stock car driver Gary Kershaw, who plans to compete in 75-lap Apple Cup race in Yakima, Wash., on Sunday. This is premier National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing event in Pacific Northwest. Kershaw's car is completely repaired after fire nearly destroyed it on Jan. 17 in Riverside, Calif. Veteran driver and crew plan to travel extensively on NASCAR circuit this season.

Pauls Sew Up Berth in Final

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Pauls' Tailors blanked Croatia 3-0 Wednesday to gain a berth in the final of the British Columbia Inter-League Cup soccer competition.

In the final, Pauls will meet the winner of next Wednesday's tussle between Columbus and Firefighters. All four semi-finalists play in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Goals by Bill Young and Jim Ramsey gave Pauls a 2-0 lead by intermission and Peter Arnett scored the third goal with five minutes remaining in the match.

Courtenay Rink In Semi-Finals

DAUPHIN — Dave Paterson's Courtenay-based rink downed Don Pilgrim of Swift Current 11-8 Wednesday night to gain the Canadian Elks curling playdown semi-finals.

Earlier Wednesday, Paterson had bowed 15-5 to Howie Sager and his Manitoba foursome as Sager completed his sweep of the six-rink, round-robin qualifying draw with a 10-9 extra-end decision over defending champion Don Mix of Moncton.

Alberta (4-1) meets B.C. (3-2) in the semi with the winner taking on Manitoba.

Flattered Collegiate Coach for Red Wings?

ITHACA, N.Y. (CP-AP) — Ned Harkness, coach of the Canadian-dominated Cornell University hockey team, cast a little light Wednesday on persistent rumors here that he will soon announce his retirement to become coach of the National Hockey League Detroit Red Wings.

"I have talked with Red Wings' officials and am very much flattered that they have shown an interest in me," he said in an interview.

"However, I have signed no contract and have told them I don't want to discuss the proposition any further until after the NCAA title meet at Lake Placid this weekend."

Harkness, a native of Ottawa, brings college hockey's winningest team to the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs in the New York state resort town.

Vikings Carry Final to Limit

Bob Buie was the man-of-the-hour Wednesday as University of Victoria Vikings forced a deciding game in the best-of-five Vancouver Island Hockey League playoff final with a 6-5 overtime victory over Butler Brothers at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Buie blasted home the winning goal with two minutes and 18 seconds remaining in the overtime session from a scramble in front of Ed Hastings.

The championship will be decided Friday starting at 8 p.m.

Dwight Folk led Viking scorers with two goals while singles were chipped in by Jim Haddrell, John Hughes and Bill Westover.

PRANKSTERS AT WORK

Vikings were ahead 5-1 at the end of two periods after Dunc McLean had notched his first goal for Butlers. McLean, Terry Foreman, Wayne Anderson and Mike McAvoy each scored once in the third-period outburst. McAvoy sent the game into overtime with a goal at 19:26 as Butlers pulled Hastings in favor of a sixth attacker.

The game start was delayed about 40 minutes because of a telephoned bomb threat to the Esquimalt Sports Centre. Subsequent investigation by Esquimalt police proved the threat to be a hoax.

Claremont Girls Post Only Victory

NEW WESTMINSTER — Claremont became the only Vancouver Island entry to remain unbeaten after opening rounds of play Wednesday in the B.C. high school girls' basketball championships.

Claremont crushed Kamloops 34-17 in its only game.

Nanaimo lost its first tussle 31-18 to New Westminster but sprang back with a 25-17 win over Queen Elizabeth.

Oak Bay dropped both its games, 35-23 to MEI of Clearbrook and 23-22 to Nelson.

Defending - champion Salmon Arm was undefeated with wins over Hillside of North Vancouver 36-22 and Creston 60-25. Richmond also was unbeaten in two games with a 44-29 victory over Prince Rupert and a 44-20 triumph over Kamloops.

Salmon Arm has won the tournament for the last five years.

Duguid's Rink Can't Argue With Success

UTICA, N.Y. (CP)—Don Duguid of Winnipeg proved Wednesday night that all the members of a rink need not necessarily agree with a skip's decision.

"How do you argue when he calls it and makes it after you think he is wrong?" said lead Bryan Wood in referring to Duguid's raise double-takeout on the ninth end that led to Canada's 12-4 victory over Sweden in the fourth round of the world curling championship.

The Canadians were leading Tom Schaeffer and his Swedish champions 6-3 when Duguid came up to deliver his final shot on the ninth end.

The Canadians had five stones in the house, but the Swedes were counting number one and number two.

"I thought we should have played the draw into the four-foot for one," Wood said.

SPLIT SWEDISH ROCKS

Instead, Duguid raised one of his own stones at a 20-degree angle to split the two Swedish rocks out of the house and count five that put the game out of reach.

"It was a gamble," Wood said. "He called it and he made it and when you make shots like that, who's going to argue?"

Wood said there was actually no discussion on the situation. Duguid simply checked the angle and made the decision.

The victory completed a two-game sweep for the second straight day for the Canadians, who downed Germany 20-4 in the third round Wednesday afternoon. They are alone in first place.

Behind them in the standings came Josef Bjaanaes of Norway and Bill Muirhead of Scotland with 3-1 won-lost records while Art Tallackson of the United States and Sweden were 2-2.

GET DOUBLE WINS

The Norwegians and Scots also posted double victories Wednesday with Bjaanaes downing Sweden 8-4 and France 18-7, while Muirhead beat the U.S. 8-7 in an extra end and trounced Switzerland 10-4.

Germany defeated Switzerland 8-7 and the U.S. edged France 9-8 in the other games of the day.

The tournament has suffered at the box office since the opening round. About 500 spectators have attended the two afternoon rounds, while the evening audiences have been less than 1,000.

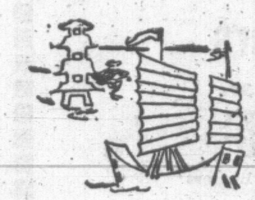
Changed, Challenged, Obliterated ...This Is Chinatown's Epitaph

By JACK SCOTT

The days seem numbered for a century-old ghetto in the heart of Victoria, a decaying monument to intolerance and bigotry.

Parodoxically, almost everyone will hate to see it go.

The expected demise of Canada's pioneer Chinatown, a slow death that could be terminal within the next five years, will bring to an end a long, sad story of racial segregation. In fact, it is virtually at an end already.



It was no coincidence that when five of the leading members of the Chinese community left a meeting called to contemplate the fate of that ancient, shabby and well-loved corner of the city they returned to prosperous middle class homes throughout Greater Victoria. As second; and third-generation Canadians they've passed beyond the dark ages of discrimination and the need to huddle together defensively for self-protection. If Victoria's Chinatown is totally removed from the city map, as others increasingly are across North America, it will simply mean final confirmation of a hard-won equality.

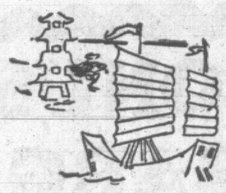
Yet Oriental and Occidental alike remain sentimentally hopeful that the bulldozers, busy in the cause of urban renewal, will spare that small shard of the Mysterious East as a genuinely historic part of the city, a tourist attraction, a modern museum of Chinese culture and traditions and a Mecca, to mix a metaphor, for compulsive lovers of chicken chow mein and Mandarin Duck.

Economically, however, it appears a hopeless cause.

What seems a losing combination of Occidental inertia and Oriental inscrutability is, in fact, simply a reluctant admission that Fisgard Street and its environs, the centre of Chinese life in Victoria for more than 100 years, are clearly vulnerable to every eventuality of progress in the city core.

Says William Hooson, a chow mein lover, himself, and the city's urban renewal co-ordinator: "Chinatown was deliberately left out of our plans for the Inner Harbor development in the hope that something could be worked out to retain its identity. In a sense the initiative was left to the Chinese to save it or create something new. It is just a tyranny of dollars-and-cents that they haven't been able to come up with a solution."

Specifically, the proposed $25 million Wharf Street project of Reid Properties Ltd. or the development of adjoining land owned by Canadian Pacific Railways through Marathon Realty—or both—could make Chinatown a chunk of real estate too rich to remain merely a quaint relic of the past.



Speculative developers are said even now to be eyeing that seedy, rundown section as a potential site for high-rise commercial development as a part of the blue-printed rejuvenation of the city's heartland.

"Most of the ownership is in Chinese hands," says Ronald George Chan, a real estate man typical of the new generation: "Some might like it to retain its character, perhaps, but the chances are that it will be priced out of the reach of anything that could be called a salvage job. You'd have to say that it was available for the highest bidder."

NO LONGER a "city within a city," most families still travel to Chinatown to shop for sacked rice, vegetables and other products.

That automatically excludes the city, itself. With a conservatively-estimated value of a million dollars in property held by private owners any plan to create a new downtown, Chinese-flavored oasis, in the manner of Bastion and Centennial Squares, is beyond bank-rolling with public money.

The impasse not only blocks any long-term vision, but stalls even temporary improvement of an area that the Chinese readily agree is decrepit.

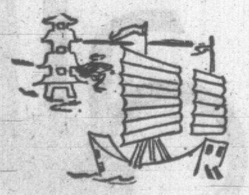
A 1961 proposal by the Capital Regional Planning Board to create a pedestrian mall of the 100 yards of Fisgard Street immediately west of Government Street, became just a bright idea on a forgotten drawing board. The Chinatown merchants, themselves, were less than enchanted with the notion, most of them preferring to keep the street clear for parking.

The plan envisioned the complete interior renovation of buildings not actually on the city's condemned list to overcome what the report called "the worst housing conditions in the city in blighted, tenement-type buildings" and to give a shot in the arm to the retail businesses in the area. The Chinese reaction was notably impassive.

A more recent plan by the Chinese themselves to restore the narrow, once shop-lined passageway known as Fan Tan Alley—a claustrophobia-inducing lane that still seems to echo with strange cries in a far-off night of tong wars—remains dormant.

"Why put in the money for restoration?" asks a leading Chinese restaurateur, "when there's a good chance that the whole area is doomed?"

To some Chinese suggestions that tax incentives might keep the owners from selling, the city planners diplomatically point out that a form of incentive already exists indirectly through the present low assessment on the area's buildings. Any development in the adjoining part of the city would almost automatically boost the value—thus the taxes—of Chinatown itself.



They were points cheerfully conceded this week when, at the invitation of the Times a group of the community's leaders gathered in the splendid, red-brick, 60-year-old headquarters of the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, an ornament in the city that will probably remain when Chinatown is just a memory.

For 42-year-old Sam Lum, president of the association and owner of a thriving greenhouse business, and the other Chinese of his generation the survival of Chinatown is clearly an anachronism.

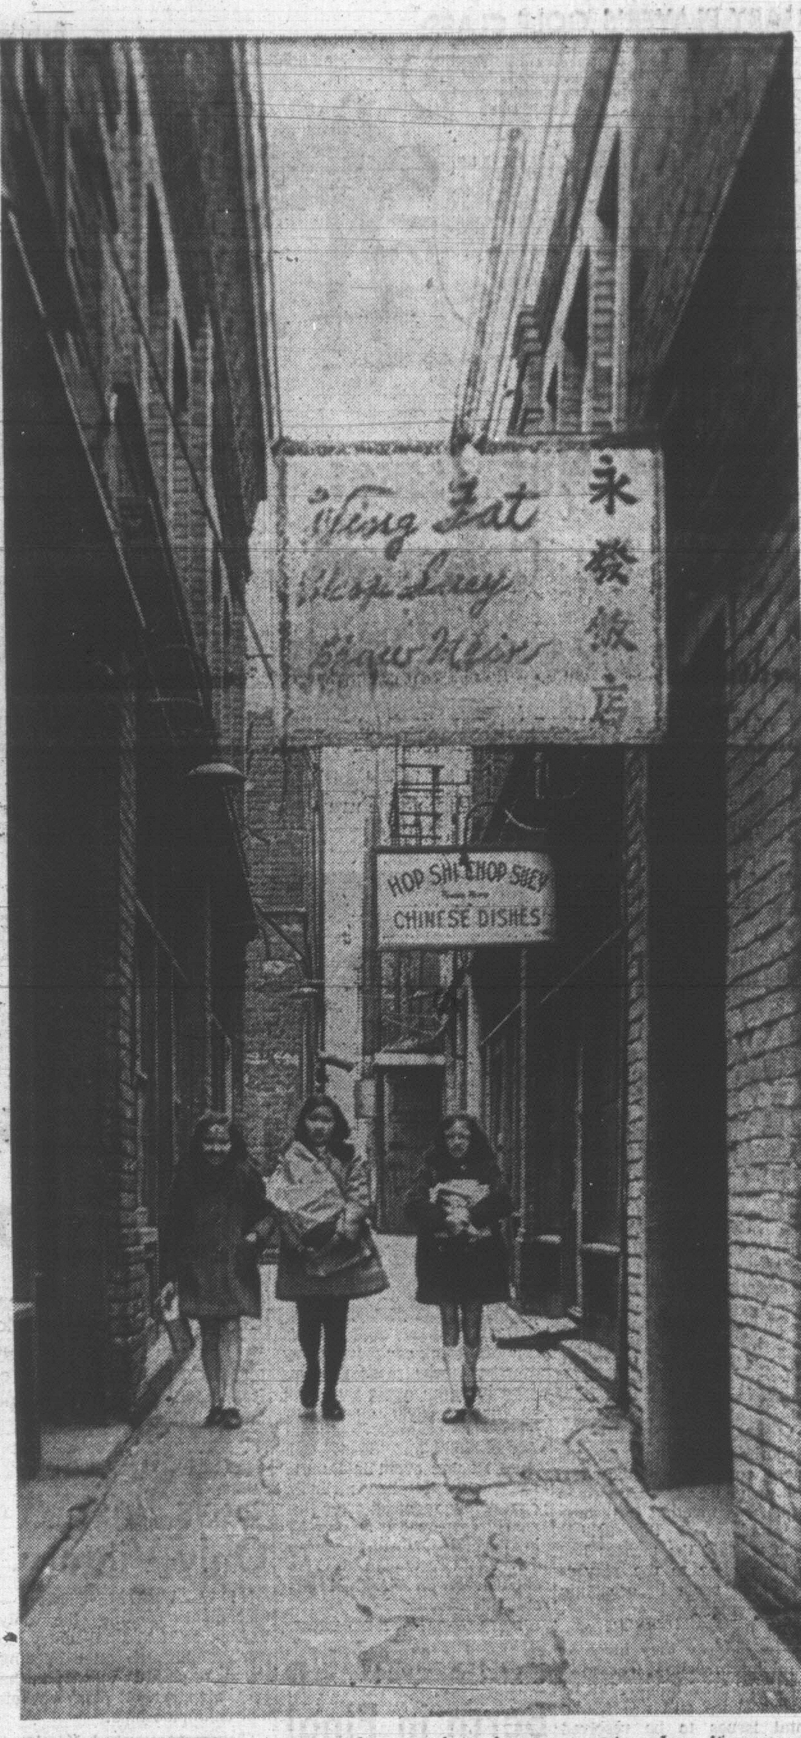
As men completely assimilated in a society that, all too often, walled off their ancestors, as family men with children in university or graduated into the professions, as businessmen, service-club members and the rest, the grim symbolism of Chinatown is better off dead.

Yet, to a man, they would like to see it remain as a community centre keeping alive at least some of that identity that now seems increasingly meaningless.

"We say we don't really care whether it goes or not," said Peter Lou-Poy, a produce merchant who was chairman of the community's Centennial Committee, "but everyone pitched in to decorate Chinatown during celebrations. Perhaps it's a question of pride — pride in our traditions, pride in the sacrifice of our fathers and grandfathers who built this community against very heavy odds. We're not at all active in trying to preserve Chinatown, perhaps, but none of us think that the issue is all that black and white. Chinatown won't disappear. It will just move to a new location or several new locations."

The difficulty, said the Rev. Edward Ling, pastor of the Chinese Presbyterian Church, is to find convincing reasons for continuing the centre as it is is now.

"The only cogent reasons, really," he said, "are for the elderly Chinese whose numbers are steadily decreasing and for the tourists, though only a handful of Chinese are reliant on that business."



FAN TAN ALLEY — a narrow lane that still seems to echo with strange cries in a far-off night of Tong wars — remains dormant. Why put money into improvements when it appears the area is doomed is the attitude in Chinatown.

While there are thought to be about 4,000 residents of Chinese descent in the Greater Victoria area, Chinatown, itself, is no longer the "city within a city" that it was in the long year after 1858 when the first immigrants came from California to the Fraser River gold fields and, more significantly, after 1880 when they were brought in as laborers (at $1.25 tops for a 12-hour day) for the building of the Canadian Pacific.

The Capital Planning Board's estimate of nine years ago that 750 Chinese, almost all elderly, single men living on old age pensions, is, itself, now out of date.

"There are probably no more than 300 in residence there now," says Philip Chan, an investment company representative. "By the time that Chinatown comes to a physical end there will be other accommodation in other parts of the city for those who have survived. It has all scattered to the four corners of the Island now that discrimination has ended. Why, you could get into the Uplands if you had the money."

Most Chinese retain some bonds with the place where it all began.

There are clubs such as the Lock Yeun where the soft clash of mah jong pieces sounds strangely Oriental, but is usually created by non-sinister members of the Lions Club.

There are family societies (no longer referred to as "tongs"), some 18 in all affiliated with the Benevolent Association, parent organization of a bewildering variety of bodies.

Most Chinese families still do some of their shopping in Chinatown for sacked rice, grilled and barbecued pork, salt fish, mushrooms, roast duck, spices, sauces, chop sticks and utensils though, increasingly, as Mrs. Jack Tang will tell you, "it's probably available at Woodwards."

A more positive link is a fourth generation who attend Chinese classes at the massive brick pile of the association building. Here, too, the tradition is changing as youngsters find their regular schooling too demanding to concentrate on the tongue of their fathers.

It is argued, too, that Chinatown remains a stepping stone for the new immigrant, a place where the new arrival may "ease the shock of the trans-Pacific leap." But often these days that may be a relatively painless transition when a sponsor is more likely to live in Saanich than in the one-time ghetto.

"Really," says Phillip Chan, "we could get along without it, however much we'd like it to remain. There's a kind of glue that holds Chinese people together — the same sort of thing that holds Scots or Irish or Saskatchewan people together — so that it's not dependent on property or buildings."

Most of the 100,000 Chinese across Canada are being forced into the same sort of rationalizing, says Daniel Bong, a 32-year-old Hong Kong architect who joined Victoria's planning department two years ago.

The battle in most cities across the country, it seems, is to preserve some sort of token showpiece for the Chinese-Canadian culture in the face of urban renewal projects that seem to zero in on the Chinatowns of the land because of their age, their central location and a low valuation-expropriation factor.

One way or another the Chinese communities of Nanaimo, Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal are under seige from civic redevelopment or the ubiquitous land speculator.

"Changed challenged and obliterated," is the way it was put by a delegate last year to a Calgary conference that sought ways, so far unsuccessfully, to keep alive these little clots of existence that once were shameful.

TOURIST ATTRACTION and a place for lovers of chow mein and Mandarin Duck are probably the main incentives for keeping alive Victoria's Chinatown. But even this hope is fading as businesses spread to all parts of the Capital region. (Bill Halkett photos)

THIRD AND FOURTH generation Chinese-Canadians are finding less and less reason for keeping their ties with Chinatown. Youngsters find their days "too full" to concentrate on learning the tongue of their fathers.

Ottawa Keeps Banks Letters Under Wraps

OTTAWA (CP) —The government rejected Wednesday an opposition demand for copies of correspondence between Ottawa and Washington over the attempted extradition of Hal Banks, former Canadian president of the Seamen's International Union.

A motion by George Hees (PC —Prince Edward-Hastings) calling for the correspondence was defeated 104 to 76. The Creditistes and the NDP voted with the Conservatives.

FLED CANADA

The former union boss was convicted in Montreal in 1964 in the 1957 beating of a rival union leader and was sentenced to five years in prison. He jumped $25,000 bail while out on appeal and fled to the U.S.

Arrested in New York in 1967, Banks was charged with perjury by Ontario but the U.S. government refused to turn him over.

Following the vote, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said it is not the custom to release inter-governmental correspondence.

The Commons later continued the budget debate with a vote on a Conservative non-confidence motion condemning the government for failure to provide increased aid for the aged.

An additional two days of the debate, which opened Monday and continues today, will be held after the Easter recess, scheduled for Wednesday, March 25.

DEFENDS LIBERALS

A defence of the government against accusations of "creeping socialism and empire-building" was offered by Robert Kaplan (L—Toronto Don Valley).

"People see the public service as a monster gorging itself on the private sector," Mr. Kaplan said.

He said that, except for a slight increase during the days of the Diefenbaker government, the number of people in the public service has gone down considerably since the early 1950s.

He added that government has a role in efforts to change society and if it did not recognize the claims of newly-raised segments of the population, the forces at work in the modern community would destroy it.

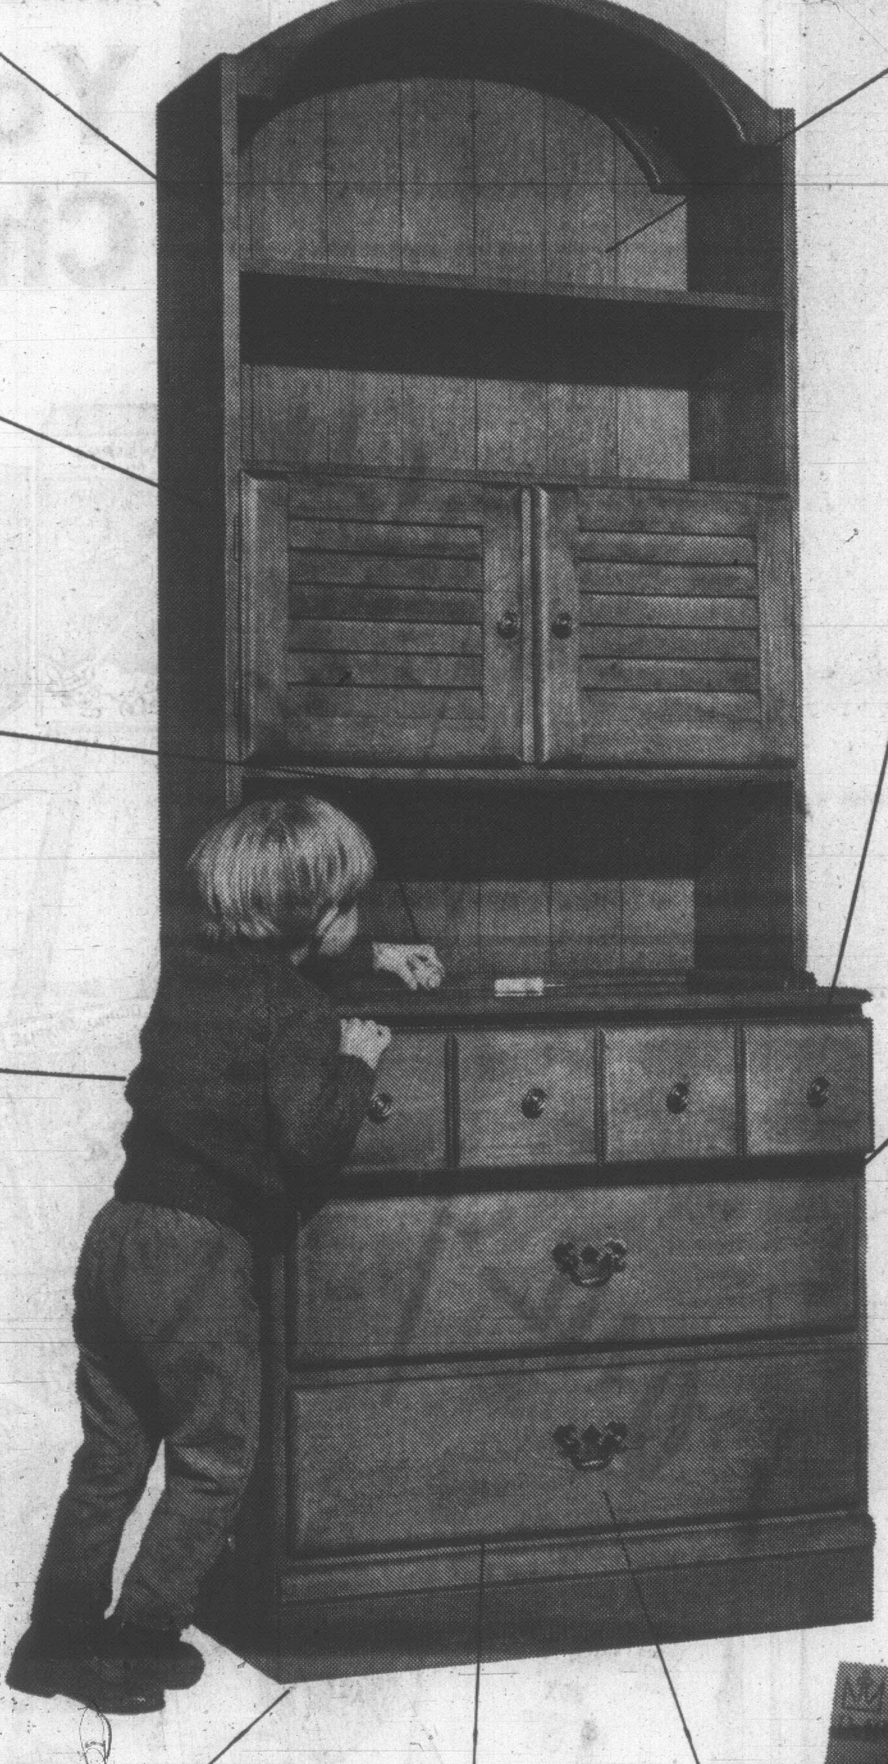
Fourteen ways Imperial Loyalist furniture makes life a little more pleasant.



1. SOLID WOOD

There are very few furniture people left in this part of Canada who really know how to make solid wood furniture. We have, for instance, an astonishing new gadget that glues tabletops together electronically. The joints are stronger than the wood, impossible to come apart at the seams.

2. HAND RUBBING

We have some old fashioned, fussy habits that don't fit in with mass production. We sand and hand rub every piece two or three times. We figure that people who buy for quality rather than just price feel the difference made by hand work. You'll be living with Loyalist for a long time.

3. NOT EVEN NAIL POLISH

We've discovered an amazing way to bake the finish on Loyalist furniture. Result: a clear, terribly tough resin varnish that is never stained by water, alcohol, fruit juices. Even nail polish remover can't touch it.

4. CHILDPROOF

Our wives tell us we should mention that you can wipe this furniture clean with warm water and detergent. Jam, crayon, mud and other such by-products of children wipe away without a sign. And the finish is so tough kids can hardly make a mark in it. (We don't know of anything that's completely childproof.)

5. OPEN STOCK

Our Loyalist line is open stock. There are over 70 pieces to choose from. Buy a few pieces now, add other pieces later. Even years later. Start young with Imperial Loyalist and it can keep up with your standard of living.

6. POWERFUL LIGHT

We've installed a set of ruthlessly honest fluorescent lights in our factory—more powerful than you'd ever use in your home. Under these lights, our inspectors look over every piece of furniture we make. They are unforgiving. The slightest rough spot, or faulty joint and back goes the piece.

7. DUSTPROOF BOTTOM

The panel underneath the drawers in an Imperial Loyalist dresser keeps out floor dust and fluff. Without this panel the drawers act like a vacuum cleaner and suck dust inside as they are opened and closed.

8. DRAWERS WON'T STICK

Open any Imperial Loyalist drawer and you'll see how easily it slides in and out. Every drawer is hand-fitted and operates on a heavy duty centre guide and slide. Drawers don't tilt down when opened, or jam tightly closed.

9. SNAG-FREE

The inside of an Imperial Loyalist drawer is completely smooth. The bottom (oyster white) is impervious to spills and scratches—it's been treated with Imperial's easy care furniture finish. The sides are sanded and varnished. You'll never need paper linings. An Imperial drawer is snag-free for even delicate lingerie.

10. ONE OF A KIND

Imperial specializes in the design of solid wood. Only solid wood furniture displays Nature's complex and beautiful variety of grains. Each piece of Imperial Loyalist is unique; no two pieces have identical graining. Every piece that you own will be yours exclusively.

11. FRIENDLY, AGELESS STYLE

Imperial Loyalist will no more go out of date than Chippendale. It's an authentic period style, with a true Canadian flavour. It's warm and unpretentious. The word "friendly" comes to mind.

12. EXPANSION TOLERANCE

An Imperial dresser is built to withstand the elements in much the same way as a building is constructed with "give". We build in an expansion tolerance that allows summer-winter expansion and contraction without damaging or splitting the wood.

13. VERSATILE

This dresser, and the top deck are from the Imperial Loyalist Companion Collection. The shelves will display your possessions handsomely, the space below stores household or personal items. We designed these pieces to be used with any Loyalist furniture: living room, dining room, bedroom.

14. EASY TO IDENTIFY

A lot of furniture looks alike at first glance. To help you find Imperial Loyalist furniture easily, we have attached this tag to every piece. The Loyalist tag is a rich brown colour. Look for it. In addition, you will find our Imperial Loyalist trademark branded into every piece. It is inside the top drawer of every dresser and underneath each table and chair.

Imperial tags also identify our graceful modern solid teak (yes solid) and some daring new lines of solid oak.

For a complimentary folder illustrating all our Imperial Loyalist furniture, please write to: Vice-President—Sales, Imperial Furniture Mfg. Co. Limited, Stratford, Ontario.

Loffmark to Have Final Say Under Hospital Bill Change

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark may have made sure he will have the last word on the Belleville Street extension through an amendment to the Hospital Act introduced into the legislature Wednesday.

Expropriation of any hospital property by a municipality or other corporation is expressly forbidden by the bill unless written approval is granted by the health minister.

The bill also gives a cabinet-appointed administrator exclusive power to run a hospital deemed to have administrative difficulties if the minister considers it "in the public interest."

Loffmark refused to comment, however on a suggestion that the bill was aimed at preventing plans of the city of Victoria to build an extension of Belleville Street through the grounds of St. Joseph's Hospital.

The extension has been a matter of controversy in recent weeks with Loffmark taking the position that any extension must go around the hospital lands, and Mayor Courtney Haddock and Regional Hospital District Chairman Hugh Curtis favoring the Belleville Street addition through the grounds.

Bill Aimed At Victoria?

Last week, Curtis charged that Loffmark was trying to intimidate the board by suggesting that the hospital would be moved elsewhere if the extension was permitted.

The amendments to the act also give the cabinet power to appoint at any time a public administrator to manage the affairs of a hospital society or corporation that either owns, operates, or is planning or constructing a hospital.

A board can be appointed by the minister to examine any aspect of operation, planning and construction of a hospital, and the board is instructed to report to the minister.

Loffmark had criticized the board of directors of the Royal Columbian Hospital in New Westminster earlier in the session as "empire builders" who were demanding too much from the provincial government. Again, however, he refused to comment on suggestions that the government's move was provoked by the disagreement with the board.

'Empire Builders'

The public administrator appointed under the act will have exclusive rights to exercise all powers of a hospital society and corporation and exclusive control over the assets and revenues of the hospital.

The trustees or directors of a hospital society or corporation cease to hold office once a public administrator is appointed. The administrator will have his duties, powers and responsibilities outlined by the cabinet.

The bill also provides protection for government and regional hospital district equity in hospitals by requiring that funds or land be set aside proportionate to the amount of financial assistance provided if the hospital ceases to be used for hospital purposes.

B.C. 'Reluctant Partner' In Flooding of Valley

British Columbia may be the reluctant partner in a deal with the city of Seattle that would flood part of the Skagit Valley in Canada, but perhaps the government may not see a way out of the bargain.

The agreement to allow the city to flood about 6,000 acres in B.C. to provide peak power needs for the American city came up in the legislature Wednesday during discussion of Resources Minister Ray Williston's financial estimate.

Dave Brousson (Lib.—North Vancouver-Capilano), a leader in the campaign to save the valley from flooding, asked if the minister would make a commitment to get out of the deal if there was any way this could be done.

Williston replied that if Seattle said "no" to the project, "we can say hurrah."

The minister also said that Seattle had spent millions of dollars to raise the dam blocking the outflow from Ross Lake — the lake which if enlarged would flood the valley.

Williston said he did not want to commit the people of B.C. to paying back the expense to Seattle by breaking the agreement.

DEAL 'FRUSTRATED'

The minister's argument was rejected by Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds), who said the federal government has the final authority to permit or stop the project. If the federal government exercised their power, B.C. would not be liable to Seattle because the contract was frustrated by a higher authority.

Brousson asked if Williston would make a presentation to the federal government to request that they not grant license for the flooding in Canada. The minister replied that the provincial Liberals might have more influence with the federal government than he would.

Under the agreement, B.C. receives $35,000 per year from the city as compensation for the flooding. Brousson maintained that the valley would be better used to produce $100,000 of timber annually on a sustained yield basis, and $100,000 annually from the visits of tourists and campers in the valley.

30,000 NAMES

The Liberal MLA told the house that 30,000 signatures to save the valley had been collected on a petition circulated by ROSS (Run Out the Skagit Spoilers) a committee intent on saving the area.

Brousson also demanded a retraction and an apology from Williston, who had said American interests were behind the protests in Canada. The project has been opposed on both sides of the border.

Williston declined the invitation to withdraw his remarks.

Parts of the area to be flooded would be nothing but a muddy stump ranch for a portion of the year, Brousson said. The flooding of the valley would create a 10-mile addition to the lake in a valley with a 125-foot gradient over that distance. The result would be that during those annual periods when there was a 25 to 50-foot draw-down, there would be several miles of mudflats revealed.

Brousson asked if there were any plans for an ecological study on the Canadian side as had been done on the U.S. side. He suggested that a minister responsible for the cutting down of trees could not also be the one responsible for environmental control. There must be a conflict of interest in the minister's mind sometime, he said.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) called a move to mark a 20-foot wide swath along the border between Canada and the U.S. by spraying with defoliants "ridiculous and incredible."

He said the government should hold the U.S. government sprayers responsible for the slightest extension of the defoliants' effects into B.C. The "striptease" was ridiculous when we are trying to maintain our forest cover, he added.

SCHREYER
. . . sees alarming signs.

Inflation Fight Hit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer said Wednesday the federal government is directing its drive against inflation in the wrong way.

Schreyer told the St. James-Assiniboia Chamber of Commerce that Canada faces a real threat of recession this year.

He said there are "a few alarming signs of softening in the U.S. economic situation—not entirely unexpected.

Schreyer said the federal government's anti-inflationary policy "is too orthodox and does not take adequate cognizance of the possibility of serious recession setting in in many major sections of our economy this year."

The premier said his government will ask the legislature for a large authorization for capital works this year so that should the threat of recession appear, these major capital works can begin within 30 to 60 days of the realization.

B.C. Paints a Whistler Paradise

Sixty thousand a day . . . by bus, car, train . . . even by helicopter .. and they'll come from all over the world.

That's the kind of transportation problem organizers of the Winter Olympics at Garibaldi will have to face — though they feel they have it licked.

And that of course is assuming the Whistler Mountain site for the 1976 Games is selected by the Olympic committee. The decision is May 12.

As it stands now, chances for B.C.'s entry into the widest world of sports look good. Minister without Portfolio, and member of the Vancouver Garibaldi Olympic Committee, Grace McCarthy, said Wednesday that the presentation made to International Olympic Association president Avery Brundage received from that gentleman praise as one of the finest he had seen.

B.C. is competing against pretty tough winter sport customers, however. Finland, Switzerland and the United States are also in the running.

The 88-page folio is impressive, with its many, beautiful full color photographs of the province, diagrams of the facilities and amenities that will be available, and even detail of the cost sharing formula.

60,000 DAILY

Perhaps the statistics are one of the most impressive parts of the presentation.

Transportation experts estimate that 60,000 spectators daily will be carried the 69 miles from Vancouver to the site.

There will be a "convenient and fast bus service" the presentation states, and the site will be serviced also by the Pacific Great Eastern Highway — which is expected to carry a big part of the transportation load. There is also a suggestion that a new highway route which will cut a half-hour off the trip will be built.

Once there, parking spaces are available for 4,500 cars and 550 buses. And there will be a heliport for those owning a private whirly-bird.

OWN POST OFFICE

There will be an 80,000 square foot food service centre to mollify the appetites worked up in the brisk winter air. And there'll be an administrative centre, press building, medical building, police and fire prptection, and even a post office — let's hope they get their problems worked out before those international visitors get here.

Meanwhile, back at the Vancouver metropolitan area, there will be an estimated 40,500 people-rooms available for visitors. The estimate is based on a basis of 2.5 persons per room.

What's that? Sports? Oh, yes.

The sports will be conducted in a two and a half square mile area. There will be a 50,000 capacity stadium for the opening and closing ceremonies.

Ten thousand and 2,500 capacity hockey rinks should take care of the fans of that great sport, and there will be 5,000 capacity rinks for each of figure and speed skating.

A biathlon stadium with a capacity of 6,000 is planned, and there will be an aerial tramway that can carry 1,100 passengers per hour, chairlifts to the ski jumping site of 800 per hour capacity, and access to the giant slalom and downhill runs which will enable 1,000 persons per hour to reach each slope.

The athletes' accommodation will be taken care of by an 8,000 capacity village — so you needn't worry where they will stay.

And when you aren't out watching lugeing, bobsleding, hockey, skating, or skiing, the Vancouver committee has other things planned for you.

ARTISTS

An "Olympic of the Arts" will be an important part of the affair. Local, Canadian and international artists will display their talents in theatre, ballet, art, film and music.

The committee is planning to have Greek, Japanese and-or Chinese theatre; the National Ballet, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, and the Feux Follets, among other entertainment.

Money. The total estimated net cost for the show is $21.6 million, when costs of $46.8 million and revenues of $25.2 million are considered.

To date initial grants of $20 million have been issued by the federal and provincial government to help meet the estimated net cost.

There are benefits which may not be so easily measured though. Mrs. McCarthy says the opportunity of hosting the world will bring remuneration in tourism and trade.

All this, of course, is assuming B.C. gets the Games.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

10 resounding reasons why you should buy a new Chevrolet instead of a new something else:

1 High resale value. Year after year, Chevrolet offers high resale value at trade-in time. It's traditional with us! You may never want to sell your Chevrolet, but if you do, it'll be rewarding.

2 Deep down value. When you buy a Chevrolet you get standard extras like flush-and-dry rocker panels which help combat rust. And inner fenders that keep your outer fenders looking good longer.

3 Smooth, smooth ride. Chevrolet springs are computer selected. This Full Coil suspension linked with an advanced body mounting system makes our big rider a smooth rider.

4 Impressive styling. Reason enough alone to go with Chevrolet. The impression is that it's an expensive car, if you want to make an impression.

5 Massive interiors. Head room, shoulder room, hip and leg room, and 18 cubic feet of usable trunk space. Stretch out or sit tall, and pack what you need for the roomiest trip you've ever had.

6 Side-guard beams. A steel side-guard beam is built into every big Chevrolet door for added protection and peace of mind.

7 A finish that lasts. No other manufacturer provides Magic-Mirror acrylic lacquer finish. Which is unfortunate for them, because Chevrolet's 15 colors sure keep their shine.

8 Exceptional engines. Chevrolet's standard 350-cubic-inch V8 runs on regular fuel. So does an even larger 400-cubic-inch V8 that you can order. There are also four other fine performing engines available.

9 Tremendous selection. Of colors. Of accessories. Of engines. Of transmissions. Of fabrics. Of custom features you can add. And of models to pick from. There are 14 different big Chevrolets alone.

10 Canada's favorite. Something else a new "something else" can't claim: Big Chevrolet is Canada's most popular car. If actions speak louder than words, doesn't this say something to you? See your Chevrolet dealer.

A Green and Verdant Land, Salt Spring's Lush Burgoyne Valley

'Civilization'—Who Needs It? Say Islanders

Keep Salt Spring Island clean and green.

This is the overwhelming response to a questionnaire-survey undertaken by the Salt Spring Island Community Planning Advisory Committee.

Forty-nine per cent of the island's adult population completed the questionnaire. Grade 8 to 12 students returned 235 questionnaires for a total return of 1,017 of the estimated population of 2,500.

Seventy-nine per cent of the respondents said they like the island the way it is. And they want to keep it that way.

Only 30 per cent favor an airplane landing strip, 11 per cent a bridge to Vancouver Island and less than half want more frequent ferry trips.

●

Keeping tracts of open land for wilderness areas is favored by 94 per cent.

The planning advisory committee said that in spite of constant references to the need for individual freedom and to maintain an informal community, there is an overwhelming demand for stricter controls of every sort.

Almost 80 per cent favor strict control of logging and only 4 per cent would allow offshore oil well drilling. Eighty-four per cent favor control of house trailers, 82 per cent favor a building code and building inspection.

The order of preference for various controls shows: garbage dumping, water pollution, air pollution, subdivision planning and roadside billboards at the top.

●

Residents listed the top five "severe problems" as: pollution, sewers, subdivisions, roads and over-population.

Half the respondents favor a population of no more than 5,000 and a further 38 per cent would set the limit at 10,000; an average density of one person to about four acres.

Eighty-five per cent favor means to assure the continued residence of low-income families and 71 per cent favor development of specialized farming as a source of employment.

The committee said the resistance to urbanization is particularly clear in preferences for employment opportunity in such fields as arts and crafts, boat building, tourist facilities. Clean factories received only 20 per cent approval. Sixty per cent favor primary development as a retirement community.

Planning is supported by 95 per cent and zoning by 74 per cent. Sixty-two per cent favor establishing local government, 44 per cent of them for Salt Spring and 40 per cent for a government including all the Gulf Islands.

Fifty-eight per cent feel more services are needed even if taxes are increased.

With a few exceptions, high school response and attitudes follow closely the general community opinion.

More emphasis is placed on employment and recreation, less on retirement and nursing homes. This appears to be the only generation gap, said the committee.

The Salt Spring report was prepared for the local community planning advisory committee by architect Henry Schubart.

●

Tony Roberts, planning director for the Capital Regional District which includes the Gulf Islands, said a similar questionnaire is being done for the outer Gulf Islands.

His report on the Gulf Islands, under way since last year, is being delayed because "we want to include in the report the views of the residents."

The planning report will be a preliminary one, providing the background which will be required at the next stage—preparing proposals for the islands.

Meeting Shatters Radio Man

The president of radio station C-FAX says it is "incredible" that city police files are still out-of-bounds to his news staff following a meeting Wednesday with Chief Jack Gregory and the police commission.

Clare Copeland, in a statement this morning, said he has "never experienced such an unbelievable situation" as occurred at the meeting.

"We proved to Chief Gregory that C-FAX news did not make any erroneous reports nor in fact were any derogatory remarks made about him or any members of his police department.

"The chief admitted again that he imposed the 30-day ban based on hearsay."

At the two-hour meeting, the chief did offer to ease the penalty by cutting the ban to 15 days.

Copeland rejected the offer and Mayor Courtney Haddock, chairman of the commission, said the discussion stood at an "absolute impasse."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson was to meet this afternoon with Copeland and Gregory. He asked for the meeting after the Wednesday session failed to resolve the situation.

The police chief said his offer to cut the ban in half was made in good faith.

Copeland says this reaction is "incredible," particularly after the chief and commissioners listened to the taped broadcast that prompted the ban.

CUT TO 15 DAYS

The statement continues, saying the radio station went over all incidents relating to the story of the altercation involving an official of the attorney-general's department, that prompted the ban, as well as three or four other news stories Gregory did not like.

A rough draft to lift the ban was being prepared based on the apparent "meeting of minds" and Gregory's reaction was to suggest the blackout be reduced from 30 days to 15 days.

Haddock said following the meeting Wednesday the commission had decided to leave the ban to the discretion of the chief and that both the chief and his force were competent in their jobs.

He said there were a series of misunderstandings between the police department and the radio station and added that C-FAX had admitted a breakdown of communications had occurred in previous instances.

"I was trying to act as a catalyst to solve the difficulty," the mayor stated, pointing out he felt badly the meeting had not ended with agreement.

He said as far as he knew the opening up of news sources inside the police station is a privilege.

"I am informed there is no law that compels police to give news to the media."

He thought the chief was too harsh in this instance but that he backed him 100 per cent.

Copeland said this morning the radio station was "definitely thinking of legal action" concerning some statements made by persons involved in the controversy.

Haddock said he didn't think freedom of press had been denied because C-FAX was not the sole news organization in the area.

Russ Ships Skip Pilots In Coastal Navigation

By AB KENT

Russian merchant ships have been visiting B.C. ports regularly without Canadian pilots to guide them through straits and protected coastal waters, a senior naval officer said Wednesday.

Vessels of other nations have done the same thing infrequently, but with Russian freighters the practice has been to sail into west coast ports on their own over the past two years.

Rear-Admiral Harry Porter indicated the Pacific maritime forces are concerned from a security point of view since they regard Russia as unfriendly. Porter, Pacific Maritime commander, spoke to Victoria Chamber of Commerce at the Empress Hotel.

Capt. Victor Fry, chief pilotage officer for Victoria district, who was interviewed later, said the Russian practice poses a navigational hazard since the masters of Soviet ships would be less familiar with local conditions.

Fry said the Russians use radio-telephone communication very little, and therefore other shipping is likely to be unaware of their presence in close quarters or fog.

"Turning a corner in Johnstone Strait (the narrow passage north of Campbell River) a ship could run right into one," Fry commented.

Porter, who in June becomes the Halifax-based commander of all Canadian maritime forces, was referring to the growing presence of Soviet bloc ships in Canadian waters and ports.

He cited instances of Russian intelligence ships offshore, of oceanographic surveys, particularly in a certain area off the northern coast of Queen Charlotte Islands, and the presence of Russian fishing vessels near Canadian shores.

DON'T TELL

The admiral said the survey ship is supposed to have a Canadian scientist and naval liaison officer aboard when it comes into Canadian waters. But even though these observers have been taken on, their questions as to what the Russian ship has been doing are unanswered.

Soviet merchant ships have been more frequent visitors to B.C. ports, and these, although they pay a pilotage fee, which is all the present law requires, have had no Canadians abroad although the ships are considered to be from an unfriendly nation.

"We have no idea what they are doing or why as they sail away from our shore," Porter said.

CAN GET CHARTS

Fry noted the Russian ships have access to navigation charts of this coast, just as any member of the public may buy them. But there is also the possibility that the Russians have hydrographic equipment or other devices in some ships which they could be using to provide supplementary information.

The Russians accept pilotage services when they feel they are in uncertain situations or where traffic runs an obvious risk, the pilot officer said.

Swimmers Face Hot Summer

Victoria will be without a swimming pool for at least three months this year.

The gap will occur when the Crystal Garden's boilers are hauled out and installed in the new swimming-pool complex now under construction on Quadra Street.

City officials were informed Wednesday that the boilers must be removed sometime in June if new construction is to stay on schedule.

But recreation director Jack Morgan said he felt the Crystal could continue to operate throughout July and August without auxiliary heat.

"I think we could gamble that the sun would provide enough heat during those months to keep the Crystal operational," he told the recreation committee.

The committee was informed that alternate schemes to keep the pool heated as well as operational would cost from between $2,000 and $8,000.

For $2,000 the pool could be kept open until the end of September, for $8,000 and temporary heating equipment it could be kept open until the new pool is ready for public use.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay noted that last year the Crystal lost approximately $3,500 a month.

"We'd be making money to close it early," he said.

The committee tabled a final decision until later but members indicated they were in favor of removing the heating equipment in late June and operating two months on solar heat.

After that the re-location of a wax museum would be the last barrier to ultimate demolition of the old landmark.

ON SCHEDULE

The committee agreed that the Crystal "be demolished at the earliest date following evacuation by the wax museum."

In the meantime architect John A. Di Castri reported to the committee that construction of the new pool is right on schedule.

Warning that labor disputes in the construction industry could throw the schedule off target later in the year, Di Castri said expected completion date is Dec. 24.

Losses at the old Crystal this year totalled $42,170 some $2,000 higher than 1968 losses and $5,000 more than the budgeted loss.

'Tell Them About Assessments'

Ald. Tom Christie wants Victoria city council to get some information to taxpayers about assessment increases.

"The latest complaint I've received shows an increase in assessments for land from $2,000 in 1968 to $13,500 in 1970," Christie told the city's land's committee this morning.

"Some kind of statement should be made."

Land commissioner Alf Joyce said he was aware of the case referred to by Christie.

★ ★ ★

"It's a commercial operation in Rockland area," he said. "For some years the provincial government put a ceiling on how much we could increase assessments. During that time land values climbed three and four times as fast as our assessment increases which were held down by the government.

"Now the restrictions are off and we can get things back into line. The man in question is now being assessed at the same rate as other operators of private hospitals."

Christie said he was still unhappy with the situation.

"We're going to have a lot of unhappy taxpayers," he warned.

"Just refer them to us," answered Joyce. "We'll take care of them."

Lead Drug Probe, Bennett Asked

Premier Bennett has been asked to head a task force on the abuse of drugs, with special emphasis on tobacco and alcohol.

The request is contained in a brief from the Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism, passed at a meeting in First United Church Wednesday afternoon.

The association also proposed that Premier Bennett co-ordinate programs for the treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics and other drug addicts.

It endorsed a recommendation by the B.C. Liquor Inquiry Commission that "a co-ordinator of ministerial rank" should undertake a crash program in the areas of prevention, education, treatment and rehabilitation.

THERAPY

The association's brief recommended that alcohol be classified as a drug, in company with marijuana, heroin and tobacco.

"The need of alcoholics who seek treatment is for weekly group therapy sessions. This need is reasonably well looked after by Alcoholics Anonymous, a lay organization that exists in almost every town and village in British Columbia.

"There is probably a need for some minor expansion of treatment resources of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. and of the Provincial Mental Health Centres.

"A small percentage of alcoholics often require hospital beds for detoxication. These beds are most urgently needed in the Lower Mainland and in the Victoria area.

"On the mainland these beds could be provided by building special facilities. In the Victoria area they could be provided by building special facilities.

"There is a need to change the BCHIS regulations on the hospital admission of patients with alcoholism. These regulations now restrict coverage to one a day.

HALFWAY HOUSES

"A further small percentage of alcoholics require halfway house accommodation. The present provincial government policy of providing operating grants to private individuals is working well.

"But there is a need for more facilities and, to provide these, capital grants are necessary."

PEDESTRIAN KILLED IN TRAFFIC MISHAP

A middle-aged pedestrian was killed this morning in a traffic accident in front of 566 Bay Street.

Police declined any details at press time saying they are still investigating. The accident involved a truck.

The fatality was the 10th of the year in Greater Victoria.

The victim was a man.

Arthur Mayse . . .

FIVE YEARS AGO, A library board approved the setting up of a young adults division in our Yates Street bookery. Today, that extremely useful department is threatened with the axe as a money-saving measure. I'm all for cutting costs where such action is justified, but there are approximately 10,000 reasons why the present board should stay its hand.

The above figure represents the 15-to-17-year-olds who rely on the young adult section to fill their special reading needs. They are too old for the children's shelves, and in the main section they'd be lost in the shuffle.

That, in fact, is why the earlier board in its wisdom decided they should have their own books and reference material, on their own turf.

Before the young adult section blossomed in a portion of the library auditorium, a great many teen-agers were convinced that books had little to offer them.

Their time was limited. They felt awkward and out of place among the middle-aged and elderly who browsed the adult shelves.

A busy staff hadn't much time to spare them. It wasn't easy to locate books keyed to their hobbies, interests and school requirements.

This condition changed remarkably when the young adult section was established with Mrs. Margaret Toakley in charge.

Here were books that challenged young peoples' interest and supplied their needs. And here too was a librarian of their own, to answer questions and provide help at need.

A slow reader who wouldn't be caught dead in the childrens department finds reading he can cope with.

At the other end of a very wide range are adult books, and some pretty difficult ones at that.

Along with hard cover fact and fiction, there are magazines and reference pamphlets galore, and what amounts to a separate library of pocket books.

Even if she hadn't been aware of its approach, Mrs. Toakley would know when a motion picture of special interest comes to town. Having seen the film, many young viewers want to read the book: The run on 'Gone with the Wind,' when Scarlet O'Hara and Rhett Butler paused at a local theatre, was nothing less than terrific.

One outstanding virtue of the pocket book is that it's cheaper by far than its hard cover neighbor. It can be ordered in duplicate, a fact that reduces the waiting list for titles in demand.

The junior adult section draws its readers from the secondary schools. Junior high students make up the majority, and Mrs. Toakley has found that this group in particular requires assistance.

"They rely on us," she says of the junior high reader, "and we've found that they just flounder without help. They have a very hard time finding books that are both enjoyable and worthwhile."

Response of readers to the service has been more than merely satisfactory. They've taken to it avidly, and they aren't backward in showing that they appreciate it. They like to talk about the books they read, and how they react to them.

What all this adds up to is a community benefit that even expanded school libraries wouldn't come within a country mile of matching.

Parents have reason to be grateful for the library's junior adult section. It has helped open young minds, and it has made competent readers of many a boy and girl who previously read only under compulsion.

This library-within-a-library is no frill. It performs a valuable community service, and one that Victoria can ill afford to lose.

Panellists Agree Schools Overemphasize Academic Program

A panel of school teachers, a university student leader and a parent, with a psychiatrist as moderator, sparked lively discussions on education between themselves and the audience at a meeting of the University Women's Club Wednesday evening.

There were quotes from Auntie Mame and Freud, as well as leading educationists, and a warning from the moderator that anyone who criticized without offering at least a constructive alternative would be thrown out.

Panel and audience responded with active participation, and no one was thrown out.

Led by psychiatrist Dr. Charles Gregory, panelists discussed aspects of education ranging from weaknesses in the present school system from kindergarten to university, to the economics of education.

Chief weakness of the system as seen by Sam Dumka, a teacher at Reynolds Road school, is the overemphasis on the academic program, which forces schools "to practise differentiation and discrimination."

GRAVE INJUSTICE

The non academic student is branded by teachers, parents and employers as "somewhat lacking in the upper story, and this is idiotic and a grave injustice," he said.

Dumka suggested that the present system of six programs be reorganized to avoid the stigma attached to the non-academic student, and that students be free to take a full slate of elective courses throughout school.

He reinforced his arguments with findings from research done for a masters degree.

Interviews with 100 drop-outs and 100 stay-ins showed the drop-outs had a high record of failure at the elementary level, which tended to destroy a "healthy self image."

"I strongly recommend we eliminate failure from our schools," he urged.

"Drop-outs must not feel rejected or that they must face society alone. They should be given a chance to return to school, and their careers should be followed up the next year."

Doreen Radcliffe, primary supervisor for the Victoria School Board agreed that drop-outs are influenced in early years.

PARTIAL SOLUTION

As a partial solution to the problem she suggested smaller classes would help, along with greater use of resource people and special services people to help with learning difficulties before the sense of failure becomes acute.

Mrs. Radcliffe suggested that another weak point in the present system is inflexibility in sticking to "the course that doesn't suit the child."

Strides are being made "to find a program in language arts which suits the individual child, and teachers are attempting to see the child as an unique individual, to gear the program to his needs."

Mrs. Radcliffe would also like to see more rigid screening of teachers.

"In some cases people are getting into teaching who do not have what we as parents would choose—a warm friendly, caring, well-balanced personality."

FEARSOME FIGURE

She quoted statistics pointing out that in 12 years of school each student is likely to be taught by at least one mentally disturbed teacher "a fearsome figure."

"The public schools, the mental health authorities and the community" should, she suggested, be on the look-out for early signs of mental disturbance.

Sheila Blake, a mother of four, suggested that schools often failed to help the child fulfil his potential.

"Perhaps children are concentrating too much on their position in the world, rather than on the world itself.

"If I were to state a capsule definition of education, I should say 'open the doors, don't push, don't pull,' but let the child discover for himself."

Mrs. Blake also asked what courses girls could take to help make them good mothers. Mrs. Radcliffe later answered that she felt the new child care classes were a step in the right direction.

Panelist Norman Wright, former president of Uvic's Student Council, described the "fundamental problem of living" as a series of contradictions.

"Education, if it is to be of any value, should help you deal with contradictions."

He spoke of education as opposed to training, "a whole series of sanctions of one form or another, including discipline, conformity, punishment and rewards. And behind it all is the concept of guilt.

VALUES IMPOSED

"Contradictions arise when the values a culture professes publicly become different from social practices of that society.

"We appear to be in such a stage now, when these values are imposed on some but are not practised by those in authority."

Wright also discussed rising costs of university education.

In his opening remarks Dr. Gregory described education as "of paramount importance, for the ills of the world must be attributed to individuals.

"People make decisions on the basis of judgment and of their appraisal of a series of facts tempered by their emotional state.

"This complexity of facts depends on the kind of learning process to which the individual has been subjected. What you are endowed with can be modified by what you learn, so that education is vital as far as the whole world is concerned.

"What kind of values does society seek to inculcate, and how will it go about it: Do you accept the system or do you wish to change it, If you wish to change it, how?" he asked.

These and many aspects of education were discussed by panelists and later by members of the audience.

BARREFOOT ON THE GREENS

Ready for the spring season are three barefoot golfers, at left, Joan Scott, Mary Nelson and Hilda Warawa, as Chris Holland, president of the Vancouver Island Division, Canadian Ladies' Golf Association, and Margaret Cooke, look on. They were photographed following the sixth annual bridge luncheon of the Gorge Vale Golf Club Ladies' Division at the club Wednesday. Lunch was convened by Mrs. Warawa and Mrs. Nelson.

Ladies Home Journal Editor Berated by Feminist Group

NEW YORK (AP) — For 87 years the Ladies' Home Journal has been advising "never underestimate the power of a woman." Now 10 feminists have demanded that editor John Mack Carter live by the motto.

All day Wednesday, Carter's fifth-floor office was besieged by women demanding that Carter be replaced by a woman, that he hire an all-woman editorial and advertising staff and that he allow them to put out The Women's Liberated Journal as a replacement for one issue of the magazine.

Carter said—as the women smoked his cigars, sat in his chair and berated him—that they had a point but they could not have his job.

The women said they had singled out the Journal, which has 6,900,000 readers, because its articles are "irrelevant, unstimulating and demeaning to the women of America."

After the initial demonstration, 12 feminists began negotiating with Carter and several other editors.

In the early evening, it was announced that the group had been offered a special eight-page supplement in an upcoming issue and a special women's liberation column each month.

They then went back into closed sessions. The demonstrators had vowed to stay "until all our demands are met."

Some women employees at Newsweek filed a federal complaint against that magazine last week, charging that they were discriminated against. They said there was only one woman on a writing staff of 50 men.

Seven Posts Vacant As One Woman Leaves

ST. GEORGE, Ont. (CP) — Hope Davies is proof that one person can do a lot. When she leaves Canada, it will take seven people to do the jobs she has been doing for her community.

Mrs. Davies and her husband, Angus, are retiring to Wales to paint and raise horses respectively.

Her career of community work ensured this town in the Brantford area a library and provided it with a floating, debt-paying nursery school, among other services.

Mrs. Davies took over the library in 1954. It had been neglected for years because no librarian was available during the Second World War.

On expert advice, she threw away 6,000 of its 7,000 books and took a government-sponsored month-long course in running a library.

Gradually the library took shape, and then Mrs. Davies decided a new one should be opened in the basement of the community hall. To pay for it she started a nursery school in the hall, run on a co-operative basis.

The library's debts have been paid off and the nursery school has moved to a church where it is busy paying off the church mortgage. When that is done, it will move again to work for some other needy organization.

Mrs. Davies is being replaced at the library, as Home and School president, Women's Institute director, member of the community hall board, and the St. George art group, as a horticultural society secretary-treasurer, and as district correspondent for the Brantford Expositor.

It Takes a Lot of Work to Avoid Wardrobe Sag on a Small Budget

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you want to avoid wardrobe sag, you have to work at it. Your collection should have a fresh injection of money and time every season.

If you are a young working woman, you'll need a variety of clothes even if you never go anywhere exotic, and Bev Rosar says you should apply the rules even more carefully than someone with a bigger budget.

Miss Rosar is fashion adviser at a big Toronto department store. Customers in a quandary may make an appointment with Miss Rosar, tell her what kind of clothes they need and how much money they can spend, and she'll try to help.

"You should go through your wardrobe every season to see what you have. Then you should check on your social life, your way of living, what kind of job you have, and your budget.

"The winter coat is the main thing in most wardrobes. If you can only have one, then you must like it, because it goes over everything — office clothes, party clothes, pants.

"You won't get tired of any clothes if you like them."

JOB GOVERNS STYLE

Miss Rosar acknowledges that you may get a bargain at sale times, but she advocates buying early in a season instead.

"Buy your winter coat in August, because it will be the new season's thing. I think you get more wear out of things if you buy them six months ahead and enjoy them."

What you need otherwise does depend on your life style.

"If you are an executive secretary, you will have to wear suits and dresses. In a clerical job, you might not need to be as well dressed.

"You should always have a dress and jacket. You can wear the dress for business with the jacket, and for the evening without. A couple of double-knit and soft wool dresses should carry you through the spring and fall. You can get wear out of them with different accessories.

"You only really need one or two cocktail dresses, and you don't need elaborate ones. If they are simple, you are more likely to get a couple of seasons out of them."

She says you should be willing to experiment with new styles.

"Try every style. A lot of clothes don't have hanger appeal, but look good on you. If nothing suits you, don't buy. Go back and buy another time.

"And remember, sales people can talk you into buying things, though you may just take them back. Don't be embarrassed to say you don't like a thing, but do have an open mind to fashion. A lot of people won't try new styles on because they've been told they should stick to one style and color."

Miss Rosar says you should shop alone. A friend with different tastes might talk you in or out of something.

If you can only afford one or two pairs of shoes, she recommends black or brown patents because they can be worn either as casual or as dress shoes.

RECOMMENDS CARE

When you buy accessories, she says, buy them to go with several things.

"Even if you spend $15 for a scarf and you can use it with several outfits, it's worth more to you than four or five scarves at $3, each usable with only one outfit."

She says it is no longer true that you must have one good handbag. Today's styles and materials are better than they once were, even in low-price brackets.

She recommends buying good, comfortable underwear and enough of it that you can keep it freshly laundered and in good repair.

The care you take of any of your clothes can keep them looking their best for as long as possible, and will allow you to alter hemlines and sleeves or necklines to add to their lifetime.

Finally, Miss Rosar advises spreading your clothing money over a season. Don't spend it all at once, but use it to keep adding to your wardrobe.

Bonnets and baby care were twin themes of St. Joseph's Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary at their Bonnet Bridge Lunch Wednesday. Proceeds amounting to $300 will go towards purchase of an air-shield incubator, such as the one pictured above, for premature babies. Guests examining the incubator were, from left, Mrs. A. D. Blair, Mrs. Ian Douglas, Mrs. N. D. Impsett, Mrs. William Rogers, Mrs. Gordon Paterson and Mrs. John Hough. Hostesses at the lunch, which was convened by Mrs. A. Cownden, modelled hats from Miss Frith Millinery.

Auxiliary Outlines Services

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital held one of their main fund-raising events of the year, the Bonnet Bridge Lunch, Wednesday at the nurses' residence, and raised $300 for the hospital.

Current projects of the auxiliary include raising money to buy a much-needed air-shield incubator for premature babies, and renovating the nursery.

Other major fund-raising events each year for the auxiliary include a fashion show, a bazaar and a coffee party or tea.

The auxiliary combines fund-raising with service to the hospital.

Members in charge of the library take books and magazines to patients.

Others are in charge of the mobile cart, a store on wheels for patients' convenience, and the stationary cart with hand-knits and made-to-order garments in the maternity ward.

Members also take children who are well enough to a playroom for craftwork. Toys and materials are supplied by the auxiliary from funds and donations.

Finally, there is the workshop in a private home, where members work around the year to supply sewing, knitting and handicrafts for the annual bazaar.

As publicity convener Beatrice Stuart points out, it is a lot of work for a very necessary cause, and the auxiliary would welcome new members.

ACW Reorganizes Social Action Groups

The British Columbia Diocesan Board of the Anglican Church Women voted at its annual meeting in Victoria Wednesday to re-organize five departments into two major portfolios.

Two resolutions passed created a department of Social Action and a Department of Youth.

Following the lead of the national body, the provincial ACW created the social action department which will include the services previously provided under the departments of social service and Dorcas Supply.

Marjorie Bernard, speaking to the resolution, said the new department will facilitate and co-ordinate the services rendered in the two areas.

The Youth department will officially co-ordinate juniors, girls and vocations groups under one executive. The move was made last year on an experimental basis and has been accepted as a permanent department.

More than 200 delegates from around the province also accepted a recommendation from treasurer Dora Brown that $1,000 be voted to complete the 1969 pledge of $15,000 to the national board. Money was to come from the educational fund.

The delegates also voted to pledge another $15,000 for the coming year.

Donations of $200 each will go to Indian work on the mainland and the Victoria Indian Friendship Centre. Camp Columbia will receive $229.30. A further $500 was set aside for the needs of the friendship centre.

Total receipts for the year were $21,545.99 and disbursements were $24,319.67.

In other business, Dorcas Supply chairman Margaret Monaghan reported that 28 cartons of clothing and bedding had been sent to northern B.C. areas. Articles were also distributed in the B.C. diocese.

The diocese ranked third in Canada in the sale of Pakistani embroideries. The total funds collected were $2,189.30 in 1969. The money is used to help West Pakistani workers, said chairman Alice S. E. Winser.

Mrs. H. V. Thompson, chairman of the board of governors of the Caroline Macklem Home, said in her annual report that vacancies in 1969 with no applications on hand resulted in a deficit in operating costs of $1,425.59.

Annual reports were also given by May George, Marjory A. Bernard, Mrs. G. B. Jarvis, Mrs. W. Jackson, Mrs. H. C. Hanson, Beryl Tanner, Katherine M. Clegg and Mrs. P. B. Harrison.

Board Re-Elects Mrs. Goodwin

Mrs. F. A. Goodwin was re-elected president of the B.C. Diocesan Board, Anglican Church Women at the annual meeting which ended Wednesday at Christ Church Cathedral.

Other officers elected were Miss Ruth Scott, first vice president; Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, second vice president; Mrs. C. H. Sendey, corresponding secretary, and treasurer Miss Dora Brown. The post of recording secretary is still vacant.

Committee chairmen are Miss Ann Forrest, devotion; Miss Mary Martin, education; Miss Dorothea Lucas, United Thankoffering; May George, extra cents; Margaret Monaghan, Dorcas Supply; Mrs. G. E. Lonsdale, living message; Mrs. A. G. Bricknell, youth; and Mrs. E. W. Scott, family life.

Bishop Addresses ACW Board

Rev. Remi De Roo, Roman Catholic Bishop of Victoria, told the Anglican Church Women of B.C. that mere acceptance of ideas would not strengthen religious beliefs.

Bishop De Roo, keynote speaker at the annual meeting of the ACW provincial dioesan board at Christ Church Cathedral Wednesday, told the more than 200 delegates present, "You must experience personal faith.

"Unless you've personally reached a conviction about your beliefs, you'll be badly shook up when they are questioned," he stated.

"And today everything is being questioned."

Bishop De Roo said that a new world was being born. The social and cultural upheavals now evident were not part of "a passing storm, they're here to stay."

Basing his talk on the meeting's theme of renewal, Bishop De Roo said changes within the church take place somewhere between the traditionalists and those who want immediate and radical change.

But, he cautioned, understanding must come before change.

"If we can accept the new world as a new expression of human culture then we can go on to understand what belief in the new world is all about."

Three-Way Pot Surprises Penny

By PENNY SAVER

"No, no, no," cried Gladys, turning me to stone, a statue by the kitchen sink.

"I need that water for something else."

"But Gladys," I protested, "this is the bottom of the double boiler water; it's been boiling away getting nasty and stale."

"I know. But it's hot and I can get it boiling again quickly to steam some vegetables. Will you stir this, please?"

Shaking my head in disbelief, I replaced the pan of water on the stove and took over the wooden spoon. Gladys disappeared under the counter and returned with a pot so like the double-boiler top I was now using as a regular saucepan that I blinked.

"Steamer," she explained as she washed and peeled the vegetables. And before putting them in she held it up so I could see the holes.

"This set of three pots, or two pots and a steamer to be exact, costs $5.69. It would be great for a new bride because it's so versatile.

"And it's a joy to store because it all stacks together with the steamer in the middle."

This pan set is made of aluminum.

A lot of people I know are returning to soap for their dishes as one way of combatting detergent pollution.

Some buy soap flakes — which can be expensive; others buy bars of soap and shave it into flakes with vegetable peelers or salad graters; yet others use the bar as is, rubbing up a good lather with the aid of the dish cloth.

This latter group is running into the old fashioned slippery soap problem and is combatting it with old fashioned soap holders.

When Jayne and I went in to buy those plastic soap holders (two for 29 cents) with the little spikes on each side that dig into the soap and hold it firm, the woman in the store informed us that there is quite a run on these items.

Puzzling Turkish Ring

Two notes of caution though. Jayne quickly learned that one must make sure the soap holder stays behind before clasping it firmly in one's hand. Also, if one puts a saucer or dish under the soap and holder the soapy wetness that drips off can be saved and used later.

"D'you like my ring?" asked the little girl down the street.

"Very much," I answered.

"Look," she said and slipping the ring off, broke it before my eyes!

It was, of course, one of those Turkish puzzle rings and is made to come apart and go together.

Her grandmother gave my little neighbor one as a birthday gift and was quite willing to tell me where she found them for $8 each. She cautioned, however, that the selection of sizes is limited.

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Mrs. Farmer,

I just finished a cape out of wool and am trying to bind the edges with leather. I bought a strip of fake leather which the clerk told me would work and be much less expensive than real leather. I can't get a smooth binding especially around curves. Is there any way this can be done?—Carol J.

Dear Carol J.:

The strips of fake leather that are sold in some shops do not have enough give or flexibility and will not stretch enough to go around curved edges. Real suede or capeskin leathers have a natural give to the skins. There is no grain to leather and it can be cut in any direction. Perhaps you could buy half a skin. The extra money will be more than worthwhile when you see the finished results.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Fast Footwear

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We're new in town. My husband's company transferred him here. I met a very nice woman at a women's club meeting and we hit it off very well. Since she and her husband are bridge players, and so are we, I invited them here for an evening of cards. The husbands also seemed to like each other, so we've had several fun evenings of bridge with them.

Well, at their house last evening, the husband of my friend started playing footsies with me under the bridge table. I tried moving my foot as far out of his reach as I could, until I nearly slid off my chair, but that didn't help much.

I didn't want to risk a scene because I really like his wife, but I was quite upset.

I certainly don't want this friendship to develop into anything like that, so how do you think I should handle it if he starts in again where he left off?—Double in Spades.

DEAR DOUBLE: At the first opportunity, get "Daddy Long Legs" alone and tell him his footwork is fine, but he's overplaying his hand. In other words, you got his message, and the answer is no!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my mother-in-law. Rick and I were married last summer and are living with his parents as this is our last year of college, and frankly, the price is right.

Rick and I have our own bedroom, but we have absolutely no privacy. Like none. Rick's mother (I call her The Inspector General) is forever bursting into our bedroom, unannounced, to "see if the windows are closed," or "if the radiator is on," or if "all the lights are out."

Yesterday I was standing in the hallway when she burst right into the bathroom, knowing that Rick had gone in there to shower. (She said she had to get the soiled towels.) She opened the door wide—and there stood Rick, stark naked!

Naturally he was mad, and shouted "mother!" So she calmly said,' 'Oh, be quiet, I used to diaper you."

So, if you know a nice way to get the message across the my mother-in-law that we'd like a little privacy, will you please let me know?—Stumped in Madison.

DEAR STUMPED: Other than telling her, the key to the situation could be a key for those doors.

DEAR ABBY: You have printed much about kids who study with loud noise for a background; many say they cannot study without it.

It became my duty to navigate long range aircraft. It took lots of work to learn to do the rapid, intricate task despite the noise; I used to get lost just because my thinking was made fuzzy, and that meant even more, harder work to find myself again in time. But I learned, like all the rest.

The noise did another thing. Hours of it, not nearly as loud as the kids play their music, damaged my auditory nerve, destroyed my high frequency hearing. I can no longer understand conversation if there is a background noise—even a whispering fan—and no hearing aid can be fitted to help. Like so many others, I was grounded to keep away from the noise; that cost me about $60,000 in flight pay. And being primarily a pilot, now of no further use in that job, the noise-caused hearing loss cost me the potentially best part of my career and caused me to become . . . F. C. Ware, LCDRUSNR (Retired).

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I had an operation, at which time my doctor gave a nurse orders to write down everything I said while I was under the anesthetic. I talked plenty and said a lot of things I don't want anyone to know.

I have asked him repeatedly to destroy the report, but he has refused. I know he has it in his files at his office and I think he has no right to keep it. Is there any way I can legally get possession of that report or be sure it is destroyed so it can't be used against me? If you can't come up with a solution I am considering using force.—Nervous and Worried.

DEAR NERVOUS: No doctor would order a nurse to write down what a patient says while he is under the anesthetic. There is not time for such nonsense. Besides, no one cares about the incoherent babbling of a patient who's in a state of unconsciousness. If you have been told there is such a report in your doctors office, someone is pulling your leg. If I were you, I would forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DO DO: The reason that the average girl would rather have beauty than brains is because the average man can see better than he can think.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

View Royal Trustee Spurns Another Sewer Referendum

sewerage referendum in View Royal is no.

That is the opinion of Bob Pearce, chairman of the View Royal fire trustees.

He was commenting Wednesday night on the latest letter from senior medical health officer. Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

In a letter, Dr. Whitbread said effluent is seeping into a ditch from 309 View Royal Avenue and the onwer (not identified) had stated before last December's unsuccessful referendum that inexpensive adjustments had remedied the situation.

$1,400 TAG

A system using extra soil to raise tile field sufficiently above ground water, plus an effluent pump, will cost $1,400 on the basis of one example, he said.

"The situation is indeed widespread and serious," he said, and costs of remedying the situation are as stated by health officials.

Dr. Whitbread recommended the View Royal fire protection district resubmit the referendum.

Pearce said planning, zoning and sewers will be discussed at the district's annual meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in fire hall on the old Island Highway. There will be a "complete report" on the whole situation.

'NO INTENTION'

"We have no intention of having another referendum until something is decided by the health and municipal people," said Pearce.

"We want something more definite on cost sharing. It is too expensive at the present proposed costs, it would put a lot of people out of their homes."

Costs have been estimated at $140 per year per property.

"We understand, but we have not been officially notified, that the regional board has made plans to include View Royal in the main trunk to Macaulay Point," he said.

"We realize the area is in a state of pollution, mainly because of lack of controls and directions and indiscriminate building and zoning in the past."

Asked if he is worried about the $1,400 price tag mentioned by Dr. Whitbread for fixing one property without sewers, Pearce said "we are not worried about Whitbread and threats. We have had this for two years."

Also in sewerage news:

- Central Saanich ratepayers will vote in June or July on a second referendum. The first was defeated last December;
- The first five contracts for supply of materials and for construction of facilities at the Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, outfall and the northwest trunk will have tenders called this weekend;
- Engineering consultants are proceeding with work necessary to prepare design of the regional trunk, treatment plant and outfall at Sidney.

$10,000 Waste Study Proposed

The Capital Regional District board will be asked next week to approve a study on solid waste disposal in the region.

Projected cost of the study is $10,000 and would take between six months and one year, board directors were told Wednesday at a committee meeting.

The study will look into types and quantities of garbage and attempt to map out solutions to problems for at least the next 20 years.

Colwood director Richard Emery urged that a start be made in the unorganized (non-municipal) areas west of Esquimalt.

He said mill waste and building materials are being dumped in Langford, Colwood and Metchosin by arrangements with private land owners.

One case, he said, involves property near Parson's Bridge.

View Royal director Al Beasley agreed that the "mess" in the unorganized areas should be tackled first.

The only recognized and approved garbage dump is at Hartland Road, just outside the west boundary of Saanich in the Highland district.

In other business:

- Highways Minister Wesley Black said the department will "make every effort" to avoid encroachment on the Elk Lake side of Patricia Bay Highway during road widening;
- Directors recommended that legislation and a grant be provided to regional districts wishing to engage in conservation programs;
- Directors recommended that the Regional Parks Act be amended to included acquisition of regional trails as a permitted function under the act and that grants available for parks be available for trails;
- After hearing there is no subdivision minimum in the Sooke area, directors recommended that steps be taken to extend the 10-acre subdivision minimum west from Metchosin, excluding Sooke village.

THERE ARE TIMES in a woman's life when nature needs a little help. During menstruation, for instance, or after child-birth, when irregularity often adds to the discomfort of cramps and tiredness. Pharmaco (Canada) Ltd. formulated CORRECTOL for these specific times. Because Correctol combines a softener and mild laxative, it gently stimulates and assists the natural action, providing prompt relief in a subtle, unhurried way. Correctol was especially formulated for us and coloured pink to indicate its delicate nature. So whenever you're troubled by irregularity, take Correctol — available at drug counters everywhere.

WITH MANY OF OUR HUSBANDS working under pressure five days (and several evenings) a week, it is up to us to suggest ways for 'our man' to relax. Like taking the train when a business trip is planned. When he boards a CANADIAN NATIONAL train, there's no worry about bad weather ... keeping his eyes on the road ... traffic lights. With CN doing the driving, he can relax — stretch his legs — eat man-size meals when he feels like it. CN trains are really so comfortable and reliable that you know he'll arrive at his destination refreshed. And CN has special fares for family travelling that are most appealing, too!

AN INTERESTING COMMENT made to me recently does, I think, bear repeating. "Most people suffering from back-ache are more concerned about the cure than the cause." So, the fact that more than a million people have found relief by using DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS should be of interest to anyone suffering from back-ache caused by urinary irritation. Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate kidney action and contain ingredients that bring fast, effective relief from pain and discomfort. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been available for over 70 years and are still going strong ... because they do what they claim!

$94,634 Jubilee Deficit

Royal Jubilee Hospital had an operating deficit of $94,634 in 1969 but a bequest enabled the hospital to wipe out its capital deficit.

The annual meeting of the hospital's corporation was told Wednesday night that when the private and semi-private room differentials were recorded, the hospital ended the year with a final operating deficit of $58,776.

Honorary treasurer W. H. Armstrong reported funds from the Hurly estate left the capital fund with a surplus of $188,413 at the year end, in contrast to a deficit of $87,112 at Dec. 31, 1968.

Other financial facts:

- The 610-bed hospital, second largest in the province, spent $855,951 for equipment, new construction and renovations last year. Major achievement was a new laboratory on the fifth floor of the south block.
- Donations and bequests during 1969 totalled $346,004.
- Patient days totalled 171,846, down from 174,409 in 1968. But the number of patients served rose from 16,728 in 1968 to 17,393 last year.

144 Pints Collected

Red Cross House Wednesday received 134 blood donors, bringing the second-day total for the three-day drive to 144.

The second half of the drive continued today in the Ewing Building at the Institute of Adult Studies where officials hoped for 125 donors. The original target for the drive was 425 pints of blood.

BED PLANS BOGGED DOWN

Until problems surrounding expansion of St. Joseph's Hospital are resolved, regional plans for adding hospital beds are bogged down, Courtney Haddock said Wednesday night.

The mayor of Victoria was speaking as retiring chairman of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board at the hospital corporation's annual meeting.

Victoria ratepayers alone can't afford the $2 million it will cost to build a road system around the site for proposed expansion of St. Joseph's, he said.

He was referring to Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's stand that Belleville Street should not be extended to split the St. Ann's Academy property proposed for an enlarged St. Joseph's Hospital.

Haddock noted regional hospital board representatives are meeting with Loffmark Friday in another attempt to iron out the dilemma.

Four board members were re-elected by acclamation to join the eight appointed directors — Mrs. W. A. Trenholme, D. H. Lawson, G. F. Auchinleck and Ronald Cheffins. A new chairman will be selected at the board's next meeting.

Haddock was named a senator in tribute to 18 years' service on the board. Only two other men have been so honored, veteran director Joseph Casey and the late Len Hobbs, a board member for 22 years until his death last year.

Chest Condemns Estate Tax Move

The Community Chest of Greater Victoria recorded a unanimous condemnation of the amendments to the Succession Duty Act Wednesday when it held its annual meeting in the Imperial Inn.

"We owe it to our 24 member-agencies. Leaving only 10 per cent of estate donated to charity tax-exempt dries up a source of revenue," said lawyer Bob Hutchison.

"It's a case of robbing the poor to pay the rich."

Retiring president L. J. Glassford was instructed to write Premier Bennett on the issue.

Guest speaker Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich advocated a get-tough attitude against individuals who would veto volunteer giving in favor of agency services being fully supported by tax dollars.

HITLER 'EFFICIENT'

"We have to start hitting back at those that persist that volunteer giving is out-of-date. They shouldn't be allowed to get away with it.

"They argue in the name of efficiency. Hitler was pretty damned efficient."

Curtis warned that the public "are in danger of drowning in a flood of organizations; new good causes and groups are springing up around us.

"Let's slow down. We are approaching a stage where the poor long-suffering public will be tempted to throw out the baby with the bath water."

Curtis said one of the prime responsibilities of the Intermunicipal Committee was the receiving, assessing and recommending of donations to groups approaching municipal councils.

"We're reached the time when the Intermunicipal Committee must strike a more strict and rigid attitude toward new groups, agencies and organizations."

Glassford said that although the 1969 United Red Feather-Red Cross campaign failed to reach its target of $694,000 by $42,000 it was "by no means a failure."

RESERVE FUNDS

He hinted that the shortage might be met from an unexpected source.

"The short-fall will be met by funds from our contingency reserve, together with anticipated assistance from another source which must for the moment remain anonymous."

Campaign chairman Peter Darling attributed the failure to meet the target to "strikes in several large local firms, a slump in the market and an election in which many of our key people were involved."

He suggested the 1970 campaign "should be a little more hard-hitting."

Commodore R. V. Henning will be the 1970 campaign chairman.

Allan L. Cox was elected president at the board of directors meeting which followed.

W. H. Armstrong is first vice-president, Larry Ryan is second vice-president and treasurer is A. B. Hall.

Friendship Centre Opening Set

All will be color and gaiety outside Victoria's new Native Friendship Centre at 1408 Broad Street Sunday, April 12.

At 2 p.m. dancers from five Indian tribes on Vancouver Island will give a two-hour performance to celebrate the opening of the centre — and that section of Broad Street will be closed off at both ends.

In the grand finale, approaching 4 p.m., all Indians have been invited to "drop around" and take part.

'GALA' DAY

"We hope it will be a gala day for all Indians in Greater Victoria," says Perry McKay, executive director of the new Native Friendship Centre.

He has worked without salary since Sept. 15 to establish the centre in what used to be a Canadian Legion meeting place. Now he will receive $7,500 for the first year of his work from the B.C. government's First Citizens' Fund.

"This is not a continuing salary," McKay said, "but once we have established an annual budget the government will pay one-third of it."

"We consider this a handsome offer and we shall do all possible to make something of it."

CEREMONY

McKay said he has invited Mayor Courtney Haddock to perform a ribbon-cutting ceremony to open the four-room centre on the second floor of 1408 Broad Street.

It will offer facilities for games, including table tennis and billiards; a library, and a social centre for Indians of all ages.

Greater Victoria Council of Churches will pay the first year's rent on the premises.

"Later," McKay said, "we will publish out thanks to Victoria Rotary Club and other organizations who have helped us establish the centre.

"We estimate they have contributed about $1,600 worth of services to adapting these premises to fulfil our needs as a native friendship centre."

Contributing to the dance festival will be Mrs. Beatrice Jack and the Nitinat Band; Mrs. Helen Hunt, daughter of Chief Mungo Martin and the Kwakiutl band; Abel Jones and the Cowichan Band; Leonard Paul and the Tsartlip band; Doug Robinson and the Port Alberni band.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

BILL COSBY, 8, Channels 2 and 6. The Return of Big, Bad Bubba Bronson has Chet Kincaid (Cosby) in a sweat. Bronson, Chet's high-school nemesis, is coming back to town and he's sure the one-time bully plans to work him over for a long-ago slight. So boxing lessons are in order.

★ ★ ★

NATURE OF THINGS. 8:30, Channels 2 and 6. A Sense of Time is the first of three programs probing the reactions of museum visitors. Tonight a group of children explore Black Creek Pioneer Village in Ontario.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL 7:30, Channel 7. "Dr. Seuss" Horton Hears a Who" . . . Sweet little cartoon about a gentle elephant who hears voices emanating from a dust speck. The prolific artist-writer, Dr. Seuss, comes up with an endearing elephant, all eyes and trunk, that chases around a pink countryside, clutching a dust speck containing little creatures living in Whoville. The story is replete with cackling birds, buttinskis like Jan Kangaroo, and social comment about the need to let little people speak up. Children won't be able to resist elephant Horton, even if the sugary drawings and rhyming dialogue may be a bit hard on the grownups.

★ ★ ★

NCAA BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIPS 6:30, Channel 5, NBC offers prime time coverage of this semi-final game in the 32nd basketball tournament, being played tonight at College Park, Maryland.

★ ★ ★

JIM NABORS SHOW. 8, Channel 7; 9:30, Channel 12, (Repeat). Good friend Carol Burnett gives Jim's show a lift, appearing in a number of sketches. Carol, Nabors, and Ronnie Schell kid "The Lone Ranger," and work on a baseball routine with Frank Sutton. Jim and Carol sing a medley of tunes on unrequited love; Frank Sutton discusse gun slingers; and Nabors sings numbers like "Down in the Valley."

★ ★ ★

MUSIC SPECIAL. 8:30, Channel 8. Harry Belafonte and Lena Horne team up for an hour of low-key, informal entertainment. They sing of "where they've been, where they're at and where they're going," in the words of show director Alfred Brown. Both singers come up with some of their biggest hits.

BONANZA. 9, Channel 2. Decision at Los Robles was written and directed by series co-star Michael Landon (Little Joe). Ben is wounded in an ambush but manages to gun down his attacker, town boss John Walker. And that means trouble for the Cartwrights.

★ ★ ★

MANNIX. 9:30, Channel 8. Once Upon a Saturday. Hostility follows Mannix as he moves among a carnival group. The lady boss has been the near-victim of sinister mishaps. Internal frictions are bothering all of them . . . but which one wants the lady dead?

★ ★ ★

DIAMOND LIL'S. 10:30, Channel 8. Guests include singers Angelo Ruffo, Sam Moses and Roland, and pianist Alex Roberts. Highlights are songs such as If My Friends Could See Me Now, If You Knew Susie and There's No Business Like Show Business.

★ ★ ★

THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE. (1963) (Repeat). "A New Kind of Love." The first quarter of this film starring Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward is quite funny, with an amusing opening scene of a department store rush. After that, the plot and laughs of the romantic comedy go downhill. All in all, mildly enjoyable fluff about how reporter Paul Newman meets and chases fashion designer Joanne Woodward.

★ ★ ★

THIS IS TOM JONES. 9, Channel 4. Mr. Jones has quite a lineup of guests for tonight. There's glamorous Raquel Welch singing and dancing in a production number to "Along Came Jones:" doing a solo job of "I Think I'm Going Out of My Head;" and a duet with Jones to "I'll Never Fall in Love Again," Other numbers are contributed by soul singer Lou Rawls ("All God's Children Got Soul"); Roy Clark ("A Simple Thing As Love"); Tom Jones, ("Games People Play," "What The World Needs Now") and also by the Ace Trucking Company.

★ ★ ★

DEAN MARTIN. 10, Channel 5. Dean mixes daughter Deanna with his guests Elke Sommer, Frank Sinatra Jr., comic Don Rice and Charles Nelson Reilly. Miss Sommer sings a bit with Dean and plays a little girl in dancing class teaching Dean, Frank Sinatra Jr., and semi-regular Reilly. Young Sinatra and Deanna try "Darn It, Baby, That's Love," then father Dean steps in for "The Glory of Love" with the kids. Martin also plays straight man, attempting to buy greeting cards from Charles Nelson Reilly.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: The Secret Invasion (1964 adventure). Stewart Granger. Fast-paced Second World War action film.

7:30: Channel 12: Sunday in New York (1963 comedy), Jane Fonda, Cliff Robertson. Comedy that can be called "cute" —performances are refreshing, pace is smooth.

9:00: Channel 7: A New Kind of Love (1963 comedy). Paul Newman, Joanne Woodward. Mildly enjoyable fluff about how reporter meets and chases fashion designer.

11:30: Channel 7: Up Front (1951 comedy). David Wayne, Tom Ewell. Bill Maudlin's cartoon characters excellently brought to life in this film about GIs fighting in Italy during the Second World War.

11:40: Channel 2: Moby Dick (1956 drama). Gregory Peck. Film version of the Melville epic, about Captain Ahab's relentless pursuit of the great white whale.

12:00: Channels 6 and 8: Wings of Fire (1967 drama), Suzanne Pleshette, James Farentino, Lloyd Nolan. Pretentious drama of a lady pilot and war hero with assorted dull cliches. Some good aerial photography.

1:05: Channel 5: A Girl Against Napeoleon (1960 Italian adventure). Sarita Montiel, Maurice Ronet. Mixture of historical misinformation and adventure for the action fan.

'Rubberface' Gets 20 Years

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arthur Grice, 61, of Langley, the bank robber police named Rubberface, today was sentenced to 20 years in prison for a series of nine holdups which netted him $17,300.

Grice, who pleaded guilty to the charges two weeks ago, was sentenced to concurrent terms of two years for the first robbery in 1963 and 20 years on each of the other eight.

Police named Grice "Rubberface" because of facial distortions which made identification difficult. However, when he was arrested following the March 2 holdup of a branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank, they found he has a goitre condition.

About $2,200, part of the $2,900 loot taken in the robbery, was in Grice's home.

Celebrations Committee Gets Grant

Victoria city finance committee this morning agreed to recommend payment of an $8,625 grant to the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association.

Ald. Tom Christie was the lone objector to the grant which while being paid in a lump sum by the city is shared by six municipalities.

The city's actual share is $3,377.

Christie said he couldn't see any sense in awarding a grant when the association had $4,000 in the bank.

It was explained that the cash in hand was working capital and that it, plus the grant, was required to stage the annual May 24 parade.

FOLLOWING YEAR

Ald. Percy Frampton argued that when the celebrations were all over the association would have around $4,000 as working capital for the following year.

"If we don't give them the grant they don't have any working capital," he said.

LONE DISSENTER

On the vote Christie was the lone dissenter.

And after the vote was over he grumbled "this is ridiculous" to draw the rebuke from Frampton that "the question is closed."

"I don't care if it is closed," snapped Christie. "It's still ridiculous."

The committee also agreed to take a look at Mayor Courtney Haddock's suggestion that the celebrations people and the Victoria Visitors Bureau unite their efforts.

"I'm agreeable to taking a look," said Frampton. "But I don't think it will work. These celebrations people are all volunteers, good volunteers, and I think you'll lose them if you put the association under the visitor's bureau people."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay agreed.

"The objectives of the two organizations are not compatible," he said. "I just don't think they can be dovetailed."

Hddock said he still felt considerable savings could be made if the two groups joined.

Band Grant Tossed About

The Greater Victoria School Board refuses to pass the buck to the Oak Bay High School band.

And so does Victoria city council.

It all started when school authorities asked for a municipal grant to help send the school band to Expo 70 in Japan.

City council referred the matter to the school board suggesting it was a education matter.

TOO LATE

This morning the school board replied that unfortunately its budget was already made up and couldn't be changed. Respectfully, council was asked to reconsider.

The finance committee, discussing the school board letter, will reply this week.

Respectfully, they will ask the school board to reconsider. And they will toss in the free advice that their budget can be opened with the special permission of the responsible cabinet minister.

Ald. Tom Christie, for many years an employee of the school board, suggested "they cut out some of the other progrmas and support the band."

Chairman Ald. Percy Frampton growled "they're just passing the buck".

But they aren't.

Armed Forces Testing Guns, Bombs

The department of transport has issued warnings about armed forces' exercises to be carried out in coastal waters.

Naval forces will carry out surface firing Friday from 10 a.m. to midnight and Saturday 4 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the armed forces marine exercise area WH.

The area is in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, extending six miles offshore between Otter Point and Magdalena Point.

Planes of the Comox-based 407 VP Squadron will be practise bombing at the Texada Island range on March 30 to April 3 and April 6 to 10 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily at heights of 1,000 feet and below.

The range is in the Strait of Georgia, and is listed on sheet 18 as DND Area W1 in the annual edition of DOT Canadian Notices to Mariners.

Yachtsman Recovering From Burns

A well-known Victoria yachtsman is in good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital recovering from injuries received Wednesday in an explosion aboard a sailboat moored at a marina at Blue Heron Basin near Sidney.

Charles F. (Rick) Todd, 24, of 2363 Pacific, was working in the cabin of a 32-foot sailboat, the Picnic, when an as yet unexplained explosion occured near a propane stove.

Evidence so far indicates that the stove, which was fed from a propane tank in the stern of the boat, had been turned on. Something ignited the gas, causing the explosion.

Witnesses said Todd came running from the cabin, screaming, his clothes on fire, and jumped overboard. He surfaced further down the dock, dragged himself up and was helped to the main building of Clark Bros. Marina.

Henry Clark, co-owner of the marina, drove him to Resthaven Hospital in Sidney, where he was given initial treatment for severe burns to the upper part of his body. He was later transfered to Royal Jubilee for further treatment of burns to his arms and chest.

Todd apparently caught the full force of the blast and must have been standing next to the stove, since the only damage sustained by the sailboat itself was a singed curtain. No other boats near the Picnic were endangered.

People at the scene said there was no smoke and no fire, just a loud "boom."

The Picnic is owned by Jeremy Hewitt, president of Bosun's Locker Co., a marine supply on Johnson Street. Todd was manager of the affiliated Bosun's Locker Sales, located at the marina.

QUARANTINE OF RHODESIA

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — Rhodesia today faced further isolation from the world community following a UN Security Council order that all relations with the white-minority government be severed.

Sixteen days after the declaration of a republic by rebel Rhodesia, the Security Council Wednesday night ended its disagreement by reaching near-unanimity on a compromise resolution by Finland cutting off almost all links with the government in Salisbury.

Rock Bands (Quiet Kind) May Be Allowed

The bands are welcome, but amplifiers are out.

Victoria's recreation and community services committee Wednesday tabled a final decision of rock bands in Centennial Square but indicated they'll oppose the use of amplifiers if they do decide to permit rock concerts.

The matter arose when community recreation director Jack Morgan asked for guidance on an application to play a concert by the Frendlyn Page.

"Personally I see no reason why we shouldn't let them in, but I realize it's a touchy issue and would appreciate some guidance," Morgan said.

Committee member Michael J. Griffin was the only committee member to support to the proposal.

ENJOY MUSIC

"I hate the music they play," said Griffin. "But surely we have to tolerate the kind of music the kids like. I don't like it and I don't have to, but I think they have every right to enjoy music they like."

City manager Dennis Young said he was against rock bands in the Square.

"Would you let the Naden band in?" asked Griffin.

"Probably," replied Young. "But I think we should be discriminatory as hell on rock bands. The Square will become far too crowded and we have troubles enough with the merchants now."

Ald. Ove Witt also expressed concern about too crowded a Square.

"We'd just be adding to our troubles," he said. "The Square would just be too crowded."

"That's what it was built for," retorted Griffin.

Morgan said it wasn't the bands or the music that he was afraid of.

"It's the amplification. If, for example, a band came in with the kind of amplifiers used in the last concert at Royal Athletic Park you'd get complaints from as far away as Cadboro Bay."

Griffin suggested a compromise.

"If it's the amplifiers that cause the trouble why not tell the kids they can play in the Square, but only with a normal microphone. They'll just have to unplug their amplifiers and use the ordinary microphone."

It proved too much for the committee.

A rock band without amplification?

The matter was tabled for further study.

Kiernan's Stand Backed

Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan was praised today for not backing down on a new bill which will make all beverage containers returnable.

"This modern concept in legislation is badly needed in this province to prevent the destruction of our outdoor values by the tide of modern packaging," said Elton Anderson, second vice-presient of the Federation of B.C. Naturalists.

He said the objections of two MLAs that this will increase the cost of these drinks by three to five cents is "absolutely wrong" because re-usable bottles are untouched by the proposed law.

Only the non-reusable will have their costs raised, he said, and the total effect will be to force a large part to return to the old re-usable bottles.

'Electric Power Outage Worse Than Pollution'

WINNIPEG (CP) — An American power company executive said Wednesday problems of pollution caused by electricity-producing nuclear plants must be tackled but a reasonable approach must be taken to avoid trying to do everything overnight.

R. D. Furber, vice-president of Northern States Power Company of Minneapolis, told a Canadian Electrical Association meeting that attempting to do everything at once would be like "hopping from the frying pan into the fire."

"If the people want electricity, there must be generating plants, transmission lines, substations and distribution systems," he told the meeting of general and marketing divisions of the association being held Wednesday through Friday.

* * *

"All we can do is to build them using the best technology known at the time so that they cause the least effect on the environment, and we must have the co-operation of the regulatory bodies to accomplish this."

Furber said unless governing bodies are reasonable and "not try to do everything overnight . . . someone is going to get hurt and a power outage in my book is worse than the problems we are trying to solve."

Furber also said restrictions that have been placed on his company's Prairie Island nuclear plant set the maximum increase in water temperature caused by the plant.

The company executive said the restriction will add considerably to the cost of the plant just to meet a situation that will occur only a few hours a year.

* * *

He said the company accepts the restriction but added:

"It seems to me that if a regulatory body has the power to force a utility to install additional investment for environmental reasons, that same regulatory body should have enough authority to assure the utility that it can recoup such expenditures.

". . . I feel very confident that the utilities can and will solve their environmental problems as well as their nuclear problems if the public and the regulatory bodies will be reasonable in helping to work things out."

HOME GARDEN

Abundant Moisture Required

By HILDA BEASTALL

Who doesn't like blueberry pie, blueberry muffins or blueberries with cream? Most of us can make a summer meal of all three, and finish up by wishing we had a supply of the luscious fruits in our garden. This is not an impossible wish in almost any garden, but quite easy to realize if you have a low damp spot because blueberry shrubs enjoy plenty of moisture for their growing.

Hilda

Before rushing out to buy a few plants, here is a most important piece of information. Cultivated blueberries in modern varieties bear very few fruits unless planted in a group of more than one variety flowering at the same time.

Therefore a choice must be made of at least two named varieties, and the plants grown in an associated group, three or four feet apart to allow for future spreading and for pruning and picking space.

As a suggested pair that we have grown here for early midseason fruiting we give you the names Rancocas and Stanley. Not only are the fruits good, but the flowers preceding them are exquisite, the same tiny white bells as the Pieris. In fall the foliage colors remain spectacularly lovely for weeks.

Apart from abundant moisture, especially while fruits are swelling, blueberries prefer an acid soil. This means that you can prepare the blueberry patch in much the same way as you would for rhodos and other acid-loving shrubs only a bit more so as far as soil acidity is concerned.

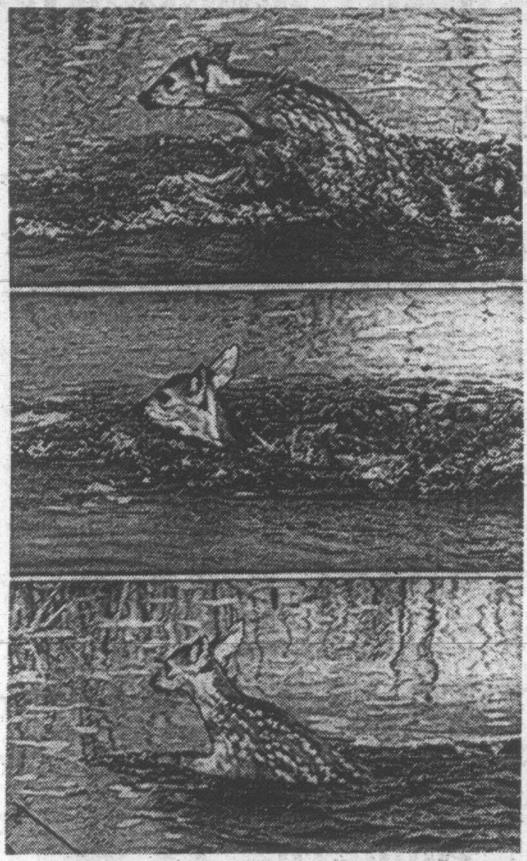
Put in leafmould, peatmoss, old manure and after planting, give the same acid-type fertilizer that goes to rhododendrons.

Early in spring, after the plants are established and growing well, prune out some of the oldest wood, for the newer shoots bear more fruiting sprays. Encourage the long upright canes.

A top dressing of old manure and peatmoss each spring is beneficial in our climate to keep the roots cool and moist. They are fairly close to the surface making cultivation impossible.

Give blueberries full sunshine, a peaty moist soil and you'll be repaid in a rew years with fruits fit to brag about.

Readers who remember wild blueberries in the maritime provinces and in the Muskoka area of Ontario will know why we rave about their fruits of high summer.



ESTIMATED to be less than a month old, baby deer swims through deep water in the Florida Everglades to get from one island to another in desperate search for food. Conservationists say the exposure to deep water and the struggle to get food might kill the entire crop of fawns. (AP Wirephoto)

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Today's deal is a rather simple one — so simple in fact that I hesitated about writing it up. However, when I gave it to one of my nonexpert friends to play, he mishandled it. So I came to the conclusion that something could be learned from the hand.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◊	1 ♡	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♡

Just a brief comment on the bidding: East's overcall was a rather horrible one; its effect was that West steered away from making a normal lead, and instead led a heart.

The eight of hearts lead was covered by dummy's jack, East's king, and South's ace. The three of spades was then played, and the trick was captured by the board's king when East declined to take his ace. The queen of spades was laid down next, and East won with the ace.

East returned the club jack, which was covered by South's king, and taken by West's ace. West came back with the seven of hearts, upon which dummy played the nine-spot, and East the 10. South took the trick with his queen.

Declarer now cashed his jack and nine of spades, discarding a diamond from dummy on the latter lead. Hoping that the six adversely held clubs were divided, 3-3, he next led the queen of clubs and another club. As can be observed, West now had two club tricks. Eventually he also won a diamond, for the setting trick.

As declarer played the hand, he would have fulfilled his contract if the six missing clubs had been divided 3-3. In this case, dummy's fourth club would have become a winner. But his play was rather silly.

On the first heart lead, the play had gone: eight, jack, king, ace. On the second heart lead, the play had gone: seven, nine, 10, and queen. Thus, declarer's six of hearts was the highest heart left in the deck. All declarer had to do was to play it; and chalk up the score for the game and rubber. But evidently he was not aware of it — and neither was my friend.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Maritimes Provide Colorful Premiers

By Bob Bowman

British Columbia's premier since 1952 has been W. A. C. Bennett who was a hardware clerk in New Brunswick before he went to the west coast to make his fortune. He is colorful, dynamic, and his government was returned to power last August with its greatest majority ever. History has still to assess his career, but he will undoubtedly be known a one of the greatest leaders of the province.

The Maritimes also contributed another colorful premier to British Columbia. He was a Nova Scotian named Willie Smith who was a grocerty clerk in Halifax before crossing the continent by land in 1851 to take part in the California gold rush. He didn't find gold, but became a photographer of mining claims at Mud Flat. When Mud Flat decided to change its name to El Dorado, Willie Smith also decided to become more glamouous and changed his name to Armor de Cosmos meaning "Lover of the World."

His next step was the Fraser River gold rush, but once again he made his money in another field, this time by founding a newspaper, the British Daily Colonist. He used it to attack Governor Douglas and the Hudson's Bay Company monopoly so successfully that he was elected to the legislatrue in 1863. Then the "lover of the world" began his climb to the top of the political ladder.

First he was active in the campaign to unite Vancouver Island with the mainland, and the new colony of British Columbia was formed in November, 1866. Then he led another campaign to have British Columbia join Canada. This did not take place until 1871 because it was necessary first for Canada to acquire the Northwest Territories from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1870. However, De Cosmos put up a long, hard fight. As early as March 19, 1867, before Confederation had actually taken place, he got the Legislative Council of British Columbia to pass a resolution in favor of joining Canada.

In 1871 De Cosmos was elected to the House of Commons in Ottawa and also became premier of British Columbia one year later. He continued as provincial leader until 1874 when a new law made it necessary for him to choose between being a provincial or federal member. He decided to continue as the member of Victoria in Ottawa. The choice may have been influenced to some extent by a revolt in which voters chanted "We'll hang De Cosmos on a sour apple tree"

'Linchpin' Labor Role Suggested by de Wolf

B. C. labor Wednesday night was offered a role in bringing management and government to a summit meeting in an effort to clamp a lid on inflation.

The suggestion was made by B.C. Progressive Conservative party leader John de Wolf, who is a consulting economist and labor-management advisor, in a speech to Victoria Labor Council.

NO BIG HIKES

He said labor demands for 10, 12 or 20 per cent wage increases this year "just won't happen." Management has indicated a get-tough policy and government will take a non-intervention stance, gambling that B.C. is big enough to tolerate concurrent shutdowns in forestry, mining and construction industries.

Labor should therefore do the unexpected and summon government and industry to a three-party meeting that would set goals for wages and prices co-ordinated with government planning.

Such a move would be "so unexpected, yet so dramatic that labor could be the linchpin" in the developing confrontation that will otherwise bring public opinion against the labor movement, de Wolf suggested.

GLOOMY FORECAST

He predicted "there will be a recession in British Columbia this year and there will be unemployment that will average out 8-10 per cent if something is not done now.

"I know because I know about management policy, government policy and labor policy. Management is tough," he said, giving the Pacific Press dispute in Vancouver as a case in point.

And because he believes government will take a hands-off attitude, compulsory mediation will be used only three or four times this year.

De Wolfe said few people know the reasons for erosion of purchasing power, that interest rates are responsible for inflation. "All the public knows is they're fed up to here" and are now getting worried about unemployment.

Labor can exert "real and powerful leadership," de Wolf said, making it possible to have employment, growth and limited inflation.

As it is, an average worker who last year won a 10 per cent wage increase on his $6,000 annual income is no further ahead than he was in 1968 because inflation and higher taxes have consumed virtually all of the $600 "gain."

"The governments know what has been happening, and they're laughing," said de Wolf, indicating how revenues have swelled.

The speaker was asked his opinion on the federal white paper proposals for tax reform, and in turn asked the meeting for a show of hands for and against the plan. The vote was about even.

De Wolf said he agreed with reform but not necessarily with the white paper. On capital gains tax, he said (Finance Minister) "Benson is going to have to scupper that because it would preclude home ownership."

Governments have not been able to solve the problems of working people, he said in answer to another question, because economists, politicians and senior civil servants are working 15 years out of date. "That's why we're not getting solutions."

Oil Jobs A Snow Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada Manpower's regional office warned Wednesday that Canadians are being lured to the Alaska oil fields by advertising promising $2,900-a-month jobs when in fact there are no such jobs.

A spokesman for the federal employment agency said the advertisements, mostly in university newspapers, ask interested readers to send $2 to a suburban Burnaby postal box in return for a list of job opportunities.

"We have contacted a number of these companies and they all say they have no manpower requirements."

The Manpower spokesman said the unemployment situation in Alaska is, in fact, worse than on the Pacific Coast, as 8.5 per cent are without jobs.

Fair Sex For Millions

ODENSE, Denmark (UPI) — A four-day Sex for Millions Fair opens today in Odense, the birthplace of Hans Christian Andersen.

Organizers of the event expect sell-out crowds to view the display of all aspects of pornography at the Fyns Forum, a hall normally reserved for amateur boxing and ballroom dancing.

Visitors will be able to see 40 stands packed with literature, pictures and sculpture. There is also a mini-cinema a Garden of Eden restaurant, and a Finnish sauna.

Expected to attract most of the attention are the four daily shows at the Little Mermaid nightclub, where four couples will perform for customers willing to pay the $19 entry fee.

Sponsors of the fair said the exhibit would be of much better quality than a similar event staged in Copenhagen last September.

"We were only beginners then and could have done without some of the stands," said spokesman Poul Kjaerif. "Here we aim to entertain a more advanced public."

LIGHT SHOW BEFORE MOVIE

Added attraction at Friday's Fox Theatre opening of "Zabriskie Point" is a light show by a local group called The Out and Out Perversion.

"After all," mused Fox manager Barney Simmons, "they're perverting the senses with light."

Light show and taped rock will precede the Michelangelo Antonioni film at 6:45 and 9 p.m.

Simmons said since the film would be seen by a predominantly young audience he thought he could set the opening night mood by including a light show.

Film includes music by the Grateful Dead, Rolling Stones, Youngbloods, Pink Floyd and Kaleidoscope.

Ninth Science Fair Attracts 50 Entries

Scientific creative talent of 50 Island youngsters from elementary and junior secondary schools will go on display at the University of Victoria next week.

Occasion is the ninth annual Vancouver Island Science Fair. Winning exhibits in school fairs have been accepted from Victoria, Saanich, Sooke, Comox and Campbell River.

Official opening of the fair and awarding of prizes will take place 10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 28 in Uvic's Elliott building.

The fair will run from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 12-5 p.m. Sunday.

Judging will take place on Good Friday. A panel of 15 judges will rate exhibits on the basis of creativity, scientific thought, clarity, thoroughness, skill and attractiveness.

At least one winning exhibit will be sent with its owner to the national science fair in Hamilton, May 12-16.

Visitors to next week's fair will also be able to see a series of National Film Board productions, including some new releases.

The fair is sponsored by S.S. Beaver Kiwanis and the B.C. Science Teachers' Association.

Chairman of the fair is Hickman Wong, a science teacher at Dunsmuir junior secondary.

Lang 'Optimistic' On Grain Exports

REGINA (CP) — Federal cabinet minister Otto Lang said Wednesday Canada's grain-exporting picture shows there is room for optimism.

He said expected wheat exports of 375,000,000 bushels in the current year will not be as great as the levels from 1963 to 1966, but much above those prior to 1963.

Barley exports should be more than 70,000,000 bushels, Lang said, the highest in 10 years, and rapeseed exports will set a record high.

"There is room for optimism, but there is no room for complacency," said Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board.

He told delegates attending the annual convention of Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities that the Wheat Board is pursuing all possible avenues for increased sales.

WINNIPEG (CP) — R. D. Furber, a U.S. power company executive, said Wednesday electrical production pollution problems must be tackled — but not overnight. EDMONTON (CP) — Health Minister James Henderson told the Alberta Legislature Wednesday that a new three-member Environmental Conservation Authority to be established will be a powerful force for change in the area of pollution control. At the same time, he lauded the news media for creating public concern about pollution problems.

Atlantic Ignored By U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Geography aside, the U.S. state department figures Canada belongs in Europe instead of the Western Hemisphere, at least as far as the state department bureaucracy is concerned.

Undersecretary of State Elliot Richardson testified before the Senate's subcommittee on Western Hemisphere affairs Wednesday, about the department's proposal to create a post for "undersecretary of state for Western Hemisphere affairs."

The new office would emphasize the "special relationship" between the United States and Latin America, and "is necessary if our objectives in regard to Latin America are to be effectively carried out," said Richardson.

Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the subcommittee, said the Senate would probably go along with the idea. But he said the new "Western Hemisphere" office should logically include supervision of relations with Canada too.

No, said Richardson, there are no plans to put Canadian relations in the Western Hemisphere bureau.

The state department feels it is better, he said, to leave Canadian affairs where they are now — in the department's European bureau.

But, Richardson said, the matter will be reviewed.

Court to Rule

GRASSE, France (AP) — Claude Picasso, 22-year-old illegitimate son of artist Pablo Picasso, has asked a court to hold that the painter is legally his father. The 89-year-old artist's lawyer argued Tuesday that Picasso was married to his first wife, Olga, when Claude's mother, Francois Gilot, bore him. Under French law, a man canot recognize paternity of children born of an adultrous relationship. Claude and his sister won the right in court in 1961 to use Picasso's name.

CARS TO INSTALL POP-OUT BAGS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Auto makers will have to start tucking inflatable "air bags" under the dash boards of all new American cars made after Jan. 1, 1972, transportation secretary John A. Volpe said Wednesday.

The pop-out safety devices will be required first on the front-seat passenger side. Volpe said they "already have shown a potential for saving thousands of lives and greatly reducing serious injuries in crashes."

A crash sensor would trigger the system, inflating the air bag within milliseconds of a front-end collison.

The transportation secretary called the move particularly important because of recent studies indicating that only 25 per cent of the motoring public bothers to buckle seat belts.

Under the timetable announced Wednesday, the air bags will also be required on the driver's side of all passenger cars made after Jan. 1, 1974.

U.S. Recognizes Cambodia Regime

Times News Services

The United States said today it recognizes the new regime which ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the legal government of Cambodia.

The state department also said it had received a copy of a note sent to all foregin missions in Phnom Penh in which the new Cambodian government emphasized its determination to pursue a policy of "strict neutrality."

Members of Cambodia's National Assembly accused Sihanouk of corruption, murder, nepotism and protecting the Viet Cong before they voted to depose him, Camodian radio reported.

A broadcast recording of the debate Wednesday indicated many deputies joined in the attack before the unanimous vote of no confidence which overthrew the man who had ruled them for 29 years.

Deputy Trinh Hoahn, who called for the no-confidence vote, labelled the 47-year-old prince a dictator and said Sihanouk's wife and mother-in-law had made fortunes selling government jobs.

He accused Sihanouk of running a gambling casino for personal profit, "executing a large number of peasants without trial, wasting national funds and blindly following his wife's advice.

WIFE FLEES

Princess Monique, Sihanouk's wife, has been reported in Singapore, while her mother was in Europe with Sihanouk and arrived in Peking with him today. The resignation of his brother-in-law as police commissar was announced Wednesday.

Another broadcast said Sihanouk had "provoked" the political crisis during which crowds took to the streets of Phnom Penh last week in violent demonstrations against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops on the Cambodian side of the border with South Vietnam.

Radio Phnom Penh also said Assembly Chairman Cheng Heng, who was named acting chief of state, announced that Cambodia will continue to follow a policy of "independence, neutrality and territorial integrity" and the government will "recognize and respect" all treaties which had been formally concluded.

There are an estimated 50 000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia.

Broadcasts said Cambodian peasants were pledging their support for the coup.

SEE GENERAL AT HEAD

It was believed that the assembly acted at the instigation of Gen. Lon Nol, the premier and chief of the 49,000-man armed forces who quarrelled with Sihanouk in 1968 over the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia. A report intercepted by the South Vietnamese government said Lon Nol and Sirik Matak, a high government minister,

TROOPS ON MOVE

PHNOM PENPH (UPI) — Cambodia's new regime today was reported to be moving troops toward Viet Cong and North Vietnamese positions inside Cambodia.

No fighting was reported. The Hanoi forces use the northeast corner of Cambodia as a sanctuary for raids on U.S. bases in South Vietnam.

Tribesmen Around Base

Times News Services

VIENTIANE — Confused reports indicated the situation at the U.S. military base in the Laotian town of Sam Thong was still fluid today.

The U.S.-backed Meo tribesmen appeared to command the hills around the community in an area which had been believed overrun by North Vietnamese regulars Wednesday.

Sources here today said that only a small Communist Commando force hit Sam Thong when the Meo force withdrew and U.S. personnel flew out with hospital patients during the attack.

There were no indications of contact between the opposing forces today and U.S. aircraft were expected to resume ferrying supplies and troops into Sam Thong.

MERCENARIES

The Long Cheng headquarters of the "Cladestine Army" headed by Gen. Vang Pao, six miles southwest of Sam Thong, was reinforced by some 350 mercenaries flown from Thailand where they were trained by U.S. advisers. The situation in the Long Cheng area appeared stable although Vang Pao spent the night in Vientiane for briefings.

57,000 Jobless In B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — British Columbia alone went against the trend as unemployment jumped sharply across the country last month to 6.5 per cent of the national labor force, the highest point in six years.

But February figures released today showed the B.C. jobless rate was still above the national average although it declined to 6.7 per cent from the 7.3 per cent January level. A year ago it was 6.6 per cent.

The B.C. rate reflected an unemployed total of 57,000 persons last month, down 4,000 from the January total.

GREATER THAN USUAL

The federal manpower department said the nation-wide increase from 485,000 unemployed in January to 526,000 in February was greater than usual for this time of year.

Nearly 40 per cent of those unemployed had been without jobs for one to three months when the survey was taken.

There was little change in February from January figues on the total number of employed persons — 7,505,000, up from 7,499,000. But the total labor force grew by 47,000 to 8,031000.

PEAK LAST YEAR WAS 6

Unemployment reached 6.4 per cent of the labor force in February and March two years ago but then declined. The peak last year was six per cent in February.

The previous high was in the first three months of 1964 when unemployment ran to between 6.8 and seven per cent of the labor force.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, unemployment last month ran to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, the same as in December after dipping to 4.5 in January. This is the figure economists look to and that the government says might go as high as 5.7 per cent during its anti-inflation drive.

The latest employment picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Feb. 1970	Jan. 1970	Feb. 1969
Labor force	8,031	7,984	7,911
Employed	7,505	7,499	7,438
Unemployed	526	485	473

BLEAK ALL OVER

In terms of actual, rather than seasonally-adjusted, unemployment rates worsened in all regions of the country except British Columbia, and even there it ran slightly higher last month than a year ago.

The report said employment was down in construction and manufacturing but higher in community, business and personal services; in fire, insurance and real estate; and in transportation, communications and other utilities.

Employment declined from a year ago in the Atlantic region and the prairies.

Willy Brandt Cheered In East German City

ERFURT (CP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, after a tumultuous welcome by the people of Erfurt, said today relations between East and West Germany should be regulated in a special treaty but rejected the idea of full diplomatic recognition of the East Berlin government.

At the first session of the German summit meeting here, Brandt replied to East German Premier Willi Stoph's opening statement that a normal situation in the divided country depended on international relations on the basis of complete equality.

"The decisive issue," Stoph said, "is to achieve, in the interest of European security, a peaceful coexistence for the people of our states, a change in the relations between the East German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany."

But the West German Chancellor called the common interests and quarrels between East and West Germany different from those between other peoples and said "they are directed toward the unity of the nation."

At the morning session, which lasted 1¾ hours, Brandt and Stoph agreed to hold a meeting in an undetermined West German town near the border. Brandt proposed they meet in May, though a specific date was not set.

Their historic meeting began promptly at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) after thousands of Efurters had cheered Brandt on his arrival from Bonn. Stoph himself was on hand to greet the chancellor at the railway station.

Thousands of East Germans, shouting "Willi! Willi Brandt!" broke through police barriers to greet the West German chancellor.

OTTAWA, QUEBEC RIFT MAY SCUTTLE NIGER PACT

NIAMEY, Niger (CP) — A rift in the Canadian delegation, with Quebec and Ottawa the main foes, threatened today to scuttle plans for the creation of an agency to promote cultural and technical co-operation among French-speaking countries.

New Brunswick and Manitoba, sympathetic to Quebec demands for an international voice, also expressed dissatisfaction with their roles at the conference.

Disagreements between Canadian representatives and France earlier forced delays in final approval of the charter to set up the agency. Approval was postponed to Friday.

The Canadian delegation includes representatives from Ontario, also dissatisfied with its minimal role.

Quebec delegate said the conference of 26 French-speaking countries may be near breakup over the issue.

PRICE INDEX JUMPS COAST TO COAST

Times News Services

Vancouver's price index rise of .4 for February was about average for the 12 Canadian cities in which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics keeps separate checks.

It rose to 121.4 in Vancouver from 121. Similar statistics are not kept for Victoria.

Edmonton and Calgary registered the smallest increases — just .2 for the month — and the bureau attributed this to steady food prices in those two cities.

The index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100 rose to 121.9 in St. John's Nfld., from 120.9 in January, the biggest jump among the cities.

Welfare Jam Forces Move

A heavy increase in numbers of welfare recipients has forced the Victoria social welfare department to look for new quarters.

Welfare director Alex Davidson told the city's land's committee this morning that expansion is essential if the growing case load is to be handled efficiently.

The committee agreed to recommend to city council that the section of the welfare department handling male cases be moved to the ground floor of the old Victoria School of Music Building near the Century Inn on Pandora.

EXTRA STAFF

The move will take place as soon as possible after council approves the necessary expenditure of $30,000 to carry out renovations and provide for extra stafff.

Ald. Tom Christie backed the move terming existing conditions at the welfare office on Cook Street "terrible."

On Friday, Feb. 27, the Cook Street office handled 160 applicants for welfare — an all time high in Victoria. The average was 99 a day for the month and Davidson warned that with a minor recession already being felt the numbers could only increase.

"We have to do something," Christie told the committee. "If you go down to Cook Street on any given day you'll

SWALLOWS RETURN ON SCHEDULE

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI) — Bells pealed this morning as the swallows returned to this historic mission right on schedule.

Some 2,000 of them landed on the 193rd anniversary of the day a Franciscan padre first gave them a home.

Legend has it the birds were chased away by an innkeeper and were welcomed at the mission, in whose eaves they have made their home ever since, returning on the same day each spring.

NDP Questions Benguet Role

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett suggested in the legislature Wednesday that "a criminal organization with a criminal record" might go to court with fraud charges against a B.C. company to recover a $1 million investment in the stalled Cypress Bowl project.

But the fact that the organization, Benguet Consolidated Inc., has not sued Alpine Outdoor Recreation Resources Ltd. for fraud raises the question whether Benguet "knows something" about its future role in the West Vancouver ski development, Barrett said.

$1 MILLION DEAL

Benguet took over Alpine, original promoters of the development last fall in a $1 million deal that led to a storm of controvesy over the international firm's gambling connections in the Bahamas.

At the height of the furore in November Resources Minister Ray Williston ordered a halt to the development, still in the timber clearing stage, and write to Alpine saying Benguet was not welcome in the project, located on more than 600 acres of leased crown land.

An investigation was begun by the attorney-general's department into the background of the foreign company. Williston said Wednesday he has not had a final report from the attorney-general but has heard nothing to change his original view that Benguet was an unsuitable partner in the project.

Barrett, speaking during debate on Williston's departmental estimates, said evidence gathered by a Bahamian royal commission had established that Benguet was a criminal organization with "a record of buying politicians in other jurisdictions."

So what was taking so long in deciding once and for all whether Benguet could stay in B.C.? he asked.

Allan Williams (L—West Vancouver-Howe Sound) asked whether the government was stalling on the question to give Benguet time to sell its land leases in the deal to another company to avoid a $1 million loss.

Williston said the legal advice he has received is that there are no leases held by the developers. An oversight —failure by the government to publish notice of the leases in the B.C. Gazette last year — invalidated the leases originally signed with Alpine.

Opposition MLAs then asked Williston what Benguet would have to sell if it didn't own the leases. There would be no assets to sell, it was suggested.

DIDN'T AGREE

Williston disagreed, saying the assets in Cypress Bowl are the clearing and right-of-way access work that has been done to date.

He was then asked if he meant that Benguet owns those assets.

He then agreed that in fact the government must own the assets because there are no leases giving anyone else control of the land.

Williston said there is a May deadline for Alpine to make other financial arrangements and proceed with the project. It had not been extended since the original letter to Alpine back in November, he said.

Barrett said that Williston has said in the past that "Benguet bought the Brooklyn Bridge" if it thought it was buying the rights to a major residential subdivision when it took over Alpine.

If that is the case, he asked, what is protecting Alpine from a suit at the hands of Benguet?

Could it be "the whisper of a hope" that delay in the affair will produce a happy solution for Benguet? Barrett asked.

At one point Williston disagreed with Barrett's claim that Alpine had made at least $250,000 out of logging the bowl area, ostensibly for the ski development.

'PR MAN'

Barrett snapped: "You spend more time being a PR man for Alpine than is warranted."

Barrett repeated earlier demands that the Cypress Bowl area be turned over to the regional parks board for development as a park.

Williams said the delay in settling the status of the companies in the bowl project means that Benguet might be able to sell its way out of the deal with Alpine. That would mean an unnecessary "$1 million price tag for admission to Cypress Bowl" for any developer who was prepared to go ahead with the badly needed recreational facilities.

Bomb Threat Delays Game

A Vancouver Island Hockey League final game was delayed about 30 minutes Wednesday night at the Esquimalt Sports Centre while police checked for a bomb reported to be in the building.

Esquimalt police said the sports centre received a phone call from someone about 7 p.m. who said there was a bomb in the centre but nothing was found.

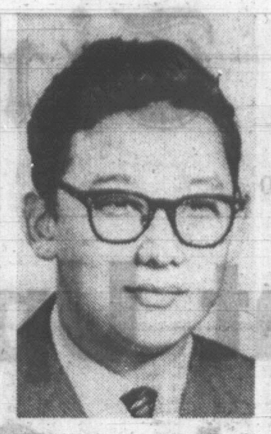
The game between Butler Brothers and University of Victoria Vikings went on after the delay with the Vikings winning 6-5 to tie the best of five series 2-2.

Saanich police earlier in the day cleared Lansdowne Junior Secondary for about an hour to check another bomb threat hoax.

Deputy Chief Off to College

Deputy Saanich police chief, Bob Peterson, will attend the RCMP Police College in Ottawa in May and June.

Municipal police commission chairman, Mayor Hugh Curtis, said the college is recognized as the best in the country in higher education in police work. Course subjects include almost every aspect of police operation.



CURRENT season of the University Extension Association of Victoria will close Monday evening with an address by Dr. David Suzuki, professor in the Department of Zoology, UBC, and one of Canada's leading geneticists on "Genetics and the Responsibility of Science." The lecture, in Room 144 MacLaurin Building, will be open to the public and will follow the association's brief annual meeting starting at 8:15 p.m.

B.C. ROUNDUP

Hospital Busy With Kidney Transplants

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia residents, including a 13-year-old boy, received new kidneys in transplant operations at Vancouver General Hospital Wednesday.

Hugh Johnson, 50, of Vancouver, John Craddock, 33, of Sidney, and Harley Christopherson of White Rock, were reported in satisfactory condition today.

Harley's brother, Keigh, was a kidney recipient in a transplant operation at VGH last May.

Hospital officials declined to release any information on the donors.

Farmer Killed

MISSION — The body of Harry MacDonald of nearby Silverdale was found pinned beneath a farm trailer Wednesday on the family property four miles east of this Fraser Valley community.

Police said MacDondald had been loading rocks on the trailer tractor unit.

Second Vote

SALMON ARM — Residents of Salmon Arm district and village will vote for a second time on amalgamation on June 20. In 1967 voters rejected amalgamation.

Annexation

SUMAS — Sumas municipality Wednesday decided to take the initial steps in annexing the border hamlet of Huntingdon, two miles south of Abbotsford. Mayor Ken Thompson of Sumas said it is time the municipality did its part in providing essential services to the area.

UBC Housing Loan

OTTAWA — A $5,170,000 federal loan to the University of British Columbia for student housing was announced Thursday by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp.

The 50-year loan will assist with the construction of two 16-storey towers providing accommodation for 788 students in single rooms.

Oak Bay Orders Plan To Clean Up Beach Sewage

Complaints stemming from effluent being discharged into the sea from septic tanks in one of Oak Bay's prime areas stirred action by Oak Bay Council's works committee Wednesday.

The committee decided to ask the municipal staff to draw up plans to combat the problem.

Ald. Brian Smith, after saying that the residents concerned should be notified as soon as possible and asked if they had any suggestions, added:

"This is something that should be tackled as soon as possible."

The area concerned is Satellite and Beach Drive, from Margate to Marine, where the municipality has no sewer system.

Most of the homes have individual septic tanks while a large hotel relies on a grease trap, cleaned at three-month periods by the municipality, to get rid of its kitchen refuse.

WHO WILL PAY?

Ald. Douglas Watts said, "It's a question of remedial means — what they're going to cost, and who's going to pay for them?"

Oak Bay householders may soon have restrictions levied on what they can store on improved and unimproved lots.

The committee will ask for the municipal solicitor's recommendations on changes in the zoning bylaw designed to curb clutter.

The bylaw currently restricts storage of vehicles on unimproved lots to seven days and limits the number on improved lots to a time allowance of 72 hours.

The committee wants the bylaw changed to have storage on unimproved lots to be permitted by permit only and the time limit deleted for improved lots.

STORAGE

The bylaw permits the storage of one unlicensed vehicle, one boat or trailer, one camper or camper body, in addition to items stored in garages.

Ald. Watts summarised: "That's a pretty generous allowance of miscellaneous impedimenta"

Ald. Smith described the bylaw as "an unenforceable absurdity — you could drive a truck through it," after Police Chief Walter Green said that, in trying to enforce the bylaw, his men had kept a six months survey of one area alone, making checks every three days.

Cost of water and garbage collections have accelerated said municipal engineer Geoffrey White, in discussing the 1970 estimates.

Water costs, he explained, would jump from about $6,800 to $17,900 because of apartment construction.

"The quantity of garbage," he said, "is increasing faster than the population and is now running at seven per cent above the corresponding months in 1969."

Smith asked if this, too, was due to apartment construction and was told that it was mainly caused by the use of excessive wrapping by retail outlets.

White said increases in estimates, particularly in the engineering section, were mainly due to inflation and labor costs.

Smith observed, "This appears to be a very restrained budget."

White warned that if his department's workload increased it might be necessary to hire another man or use consultant services.

"We are stretched to the limit now."

ment rate as a percentage of the labor force, rose to 11 per cent in the Atlantic provinces from 10 in January and 10.5 in February last year.

In Quebec, it rose to 8.7 from eight per cent in January and 8.4 a year ago.

In Ontario, it rose to 4.5 from 4.2 in January and 3.9 in February last year.

In the Prairies, the rate rose last month to 5.3 per cent from 4.6 in January and 3.9 a year ago.

GIVE BREAKDOWN

The report said that of the 526,000 persons unemployed last month, 228,000 were married men, 190,000 single men, 50,000 married women and 58,000 single women. Of the total, 97,000 were teen-aged.

The figures also showed that 165,000 were unemployed less than a month when the survey was taken for the week ended Feb. 21. Of these, 57,000 were on temporary layoff. The number unemployed for one to threee months when the survey was taken was 202,000, and 98,000 were unemployed four to six months.

There were 61,000 unemployed for seven months or longer — the so-called hard core of the unemployed.

The figures result from a sample survey of about 35,000 households representative of the civilian population in the 10 provinces. Excluded are residents of the Yukon and Northwest Territories, inmates of the institutions, and Indians living on reserves.

The February survey covered the week ended Feb. 21. The figures were compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and analysed by the department of manpower and immigration.

The unemployment rate has a history of moderate increases each year between January and February, though it did decline three times in the past 10 years. in 1959, when it was riding high at 9.5 per cent of the labor force, and in 1965 and 1966.

Davidson said he thinks the department can operate more efficiently if we have segregation with the men using Pandora and the women Cook Street."

FUTURE BLEAK

He noted that while the availability of a downtown office would bring relief to the present situation, the future looked relatively bleak.

"The latest projection of unemployment states that the present six per cent will increase month by month," Davidson said. "I haven't heard when it might start levelling off. The period of restraint in Canada, I understand, is two years.

"I fully anticipate that by this fall we shall be using the new unit to full capacity."

City manager Dennis Young noted that as of this morning unemployment figures were up to 6.5 per cent.

"I think the trend is pretty obvious," he said.

were holding the "real power."

Sihanouk, who received word of his ouster just before leaving Moscow, got a red carpet welcome in Peking today that indicated he still has China's support.

The official New China news agency referred to him as "Cambodian chief of state," and the welcoming delegation at the airport included Premier Chou En-lai, Vice-Premier Li Hsiennien, politburo member Hsieh Fuchih and representatives of 42 countries, including the Soviet Union, France and Britain.

The Peking report made no mention of the assebmly action ousting Sihanouk.

An American Broadcasting Co. correspondent in Moscow said Sihanouk told the Cambodian embassy staff there that he would form a government in exile if the Russians and Chinese do not recognize the new regime. But he said if recognition did come from the two powers, he would be finished.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Unlike the beasts that our prehistoric ancestors tamed to serve them, or killed to feed them or let alone because they were too dangerous, earlier man didn't develop a body that could withstand a cold climate without clothing. Our ancestor used his common sense instead.

He used fire for heat, clothes for comfort and shelters with roofs to keep off the rain and to protect him from the weather in general. He kept his body, his hands and feet, warm by artificial means—with animal skins.

Scientists think that our ancestors probably originated in a tropical climate where they had a chance to develop all the things that protected them from the weather. They would have frozen to death in cold country before they had a chance to adapt.

Pacific Pete Will Explore Arctic Areas

CALGARY (CP) — Pacific Petroleums Ltd. has announced it will start a petroleum exploration program this spring in a section of the eastern Arctic using geological and seismic surveys.

The company said the surveys would cover parts of Ellesmere, Axel Heiberg, Graham and Buckingham Islands where the firm holds leases on 2,564,000 net acres.

President Kelly H. Gibson said the Sverdurp basin area has favorable geology and is close to northern shipping routes, but little data has been collected from the region.

The year-end report showed Pacific Petroleum increased its operating profit in 1969 to $14,563,983 compared with $13,257,282 the previous year. It was the eighth consecutive year in which profits increased.

Production of natural gas increased 20 per cent to 341,000,000 cubic feet daily while production of crude oil and natural gas liquids rose about 5,000 barrels to 47,098 barrels a day.

Gold Price Up Sharply

LONDON (Reuters) — The price of gold rose sharply on the London market today to its highest point this year.

It was fixed at $35.30 U.S. an ounce, 17 cents higher than Wednesday and 30 cents above the official price.

Some dealers blamed the increase on the continued reluctance of sellers to let go of what they considered a safe investment.

Chrysler Offers Anti-Smog Device

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. has announced it will offer an antismog device for its pre-1966 cars.

A Chrysler spokesman, who made the disclosure here at a meeting of the state air resources board, said all California dealers should be able to install the systems within a month.

All autos of 1966 and later models already have pollution control systems.

Cost of the device, which would fit nearly 100 per cent of Chrysler's 1955-65 cars, would be $15 plus labor, the firm said.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Volume of trading was not heavy but rapeseed drew renewed exporter interest at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Prices in rapeseed futures were strong near the close.

Flax prices declined slightly and appeared to be under some liquidation pressure and hedging operations.

A domestic shipper and miller trade lent buoyancy to rye but oats and barley were limited to a light domestic trade.

Reports overnight confirmed the sale of 160,000 bushels of rapeseed and partial lots of rye to Japan.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy liquidation in the expiring March options sent most commodity futures prices downward on the Board of Trade today.

All March options expired at noon and holders of long positions turned to selling out, rather than accept delivery.

Soybean oil prices opened a shade weaker, then advanced around 30 points. But they closed 80 points under Wednesday's last figure

No Drop Expected In Pork Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Increased production of hogs by Prairie farmers unable to sell their wheat won't mean pork prices will drop, a Canada Packers Ltd. official says.

C. J. Ryan, general provisions manager for the company, told 250 members of the Ontario Hog Producers at their annual meeting there will be some surplus pork by the fall, but price cutting will not be a satisfactory solution.

Lower prices result in increased buying of pork, he said. But if prices go too low, farmers will cut back production and rising prices will then lead to less consumption.

A Green and Verdant Land, Salt Spring's Lush Burgoyne Valley

'Civilization'—Who Needs It? Say Islanders

Keep Salt Spring Island clean and green.

This is the overwhelming response to a questionnaire-survey undertaken by the Salt Spring Island Community Planning Advisory Committee.

Forty-nine per cent of the island's adult population completed the questionnaire. Grade 8 to 12 students returned 235 questionnaires for a total return of 1,017 of the estimated population of 2,500.

Seventy-nine per cent of the respondents said they like the island the way it is. And they want to keep it that way.

Only 30 per cent favor an airplane landing strip, 11 per cent a bridge to Vancouver Island and less than half want more frequent ferry trips.

●

Keeping tracts of open land for wilderness areas is favored by 94 per cent.

The planning advisory committee said that in spite of constant references to the need for individual freedom and to maintain an informal community, there is an overwhelming demand for stricter controls of every sort.

Almost 80 per cent favor strict control of logging and only 4 per cent would allow offshore oil well drilling. Eighty-four per cent favor control of house trailers, 82 per cent favor a building code and building inspection.

The order of preference for various controls shows: garbage dumping, water pollution, air pollution, subdivision planning and roadside billboards at the top.

●

Residents listed the top five "severe problems" as: pollution, sewers, subdivisions, roads and over-population.

Half the respondents favor a population of no more than 5,000 and a further 38 per cent would set the limit at 10,000, an average density of one person to about four acres.

Eighty-five per cent favor means to assure the continued residence of low-income families and 71 per cent favor development of specialized farming as a source of employment.

The committee said the resistance to urbanization is particularly clear in preferences for employment opportunity in such fields as arts and crafts, boat building, tourist facilities. Clean factories received only 20 per cent approval. Sixty per cent favor primary development as a retirement community.

Planning is supported by 95 per cent and zoning by 74 per cent. Sixty-two per cent favor establishing local government, 44 per cent of them for Salt Spring and 40 per cent for a government including all the Gulf Islands.

Fifty-eight per cent feel more services are needed even if taxes are increased.

With a few exceptions, high school response and attitudes follow closely the general community opinion.

More emphasis is placed on employment and recreation, less on retirement and nursing homes. This appears to be the only generation gap, said the committee.

The Salt Spring report was prepared for the local community planning advisory committee by architect Henry Schubart.

●

Tony Roberts, planning director for the Capital Regional District which includes the Gulf Islands, said a similar questionnaire is being done for the outer Gulf Islands.

His report on the Gulf Islands, under way since last year, is being delayed because "we want to include in the report the views of the residents."

The planning report will be a preliminary one, providing the background which will be required at the next stage—preparing proposals for the islands.

Meeting Shatters Radio Man

The president of radio station C-FAX says it is "incredible" that city police files are still out-of-bounds to his news staff following a meeting Wednesday with Chief Jack Gregory and the police commission.

Clare Copeland, in a statement this morning, said he has "never experienced such an unbelievable situation" as occurred at the meeting.

"We proved to Chief Gregory that C-FAX news did not make any erroneous reports nor in fact were any derogatory remarks made about him or any members of his police department.

"The chief admitted again that he imposed the 30-day ban based on hearsay."

And, at the two-hour meeting, the chief did offer to ease the penalty by cutting the ban to 15 days.

Copeland rejected the offer and Mayor Courtney Haddock, chairman of the commission, said the discussion stood at an "absolute impasse."

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson was to meet this afternoon with Copeland and Gregory. He asked for the meeting after the Wednesday session failed to resolve the situation.

The police chief said his offer to cut the ban in half was made in good faith.

Copeland says this reaction is "incredible," particularly after the chief and commissioners listened to the taped broadcast that prompted the ban.

CUT TO 15 DAYS

The statement continues saying the radio station went over all incidents relating to the story of the altercation involving an official of the attorney-general's department, that prompted the ban, as well as three or four other news stories Gregory did not like.

A rough draft to lift the ban was being prepared based on the apparent "meeting of minds" and Gregory's reaction was to suggest the blackout be reduced from 30 days to 15 days.

Haddock said following the meeting Wednesday the commission had decided to leave the ban to the discretion of the chief and that both the chief and his force were competent in their jobs.

He said there were a series of misunderstandings between the police department and the radio station and added that C-FAX had admitted a breakdown of communications had occurred in previous instances.

"I was trying to act as a catalyst to solve the difficulty," the mayor stated, pointing out he felt badly the meeting had not ended on agreement.

He said as far as he knew the opening up of news sources inside the police station is a privilege.

"I am informed there is no law that compels police to give news to the media."

He thought the chief was too harsh in this instance but that he backed him 100 per cent.

Copeland said this morning the radio station was "definitely thinking of legal action" concerning some statements made by persons involved in the controversy.

Haddock said he didn't think freedom of press had been denied because C-FAX was not the sole news organization in the area.

Russ Ships Skip Pilots In Coastal Navigation

By AB KENT

Russian merchant ships have been visiting B.C. ports regularly without Canadian pilots to guide them through straits and protected coastal waters, a senior naval officer said Wednesday.

Vessels of other nations have done the same thing infrequently, but with Russian freighters the practice has been to sail into west coast ports on their own over the past two years.

Rear-Admiral Harry Porter indicated the Pacific maritime forces are concerned from a security point of view since they regard Russia as unfriendly. Porter, Pacific Maritime commander, spoke to Victoria Chamber of Commerce at the Empress Hotel.

Capt. Victor Fry, chief pilotage officer for Victoria district, who was interviewed later, said the Russian practice poses a navigational hazard since the masters of Soviet ships would be less familiar with local conditions.

Fry said the Russians use radio-telephone communication very little, and therefore other shipping is likely to be unaware of their presence in close quarters or fog.

"Turning a corner in Johnstone Strait (the narrow passage north of Campbell River) a ship could run right into one," Fry commented.

Porter, who in June becomes the Halifax-based commander of all Canadian maritime forces, was referring to the growing presence of Soviet bloc ships in Canadian waters and ports.

He cited instances of Russian intelligence ships offshore, of oceanographic surveys, particularly in a certain area off the northern coast of Queen Charlotte Islands, and the presence of Russian fishing vessels near Canadian shores.

DON'T TELL

The admiral said the survey ship is supposed to have a Canadian scientist and naval liaison officer aboard when it comes into Canadian waters. But even though these observers have been taken on, their questions as to what the Russian ship has been doing are unanswered.

Soviet merchant ships have been more frequent visitors to B.C. ports, and these, although they pay a pilotage fee, which is all the present law requires, have had no Canadians abroad although the ships are considered to be from an unfriendly nation.

"We have no idea what they are doing or why as they sail away from our shore," Porter said.

CAN GET CHARTS

Fry noted the Russian ships have access to navigation charts of this coast, just as any member of the public may buy them. But there is also the possibility that the Russians have hydrographic equipment or other devices in some ships which they could be using to provide supplementary information.

The Russians accept pilotage services when they feel they are in uncertain situations or where traffic runs an obvious risk, the pilot officer said.

Lead Drug Probe, Bennett Asked

Premier Bennett has been asked to head a task force on the abuse of drugs, with special emphasis on tobacco and alcohol.

The request is contained in a brief from the Greater Victoria Association on Alcoholism, passed at a meeting in First United Church Wednesday afternoon.

The association also proposed that Premier Bennett co-ordinate programs for the treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics and other drug addicts.

It endorsed a recommendation by the B.C. Liquor Inquiry Commission that "a co-ordinator of ministerial rank" should undertake a crash program in the areas of prevention, education, treatment and rehabilitation.

THERAPY

The association's brief recommended that alcohol be classified as a drug, in company with marijuana, heroin and tobacco.

"The need of alcoholics who seek treatment is for weekly group therapy sessions. This need is reasonably well looked after by Alcoholics Anonymous, a lay organization that exists in almost every town and village in British Columbia.

"There is probably a need for some minor expansion of treatment resources of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. and of the Provincial Mental Health Centres.

"A small percentage of alcoholics often require hospital beds for detoxication. These beds are most urgently needed in the Lower Mainland and in the Victoria area.

"On the mainland these beds could be provided by building special facilities. In the Victoria area they could be provided by building special facilities.

"There is a need to change the BCHIS regulations on the hospital admission of patients with alcoholism. These regulations now restrict coverage to one a day.

HALFWAY HOUSES

"A further small percentage of alcoholics require halfway house accommodation. The present provincial government policy of providing operating grants to private individuals is working well.

"But there is a need for more facilities and, to provide these, capital grants are necessary."

PEDESTRIAN KILLED IN TRAFFIC MISHAP

A middle-aged pedestrian was killed this morning in a traffic accident in front of 566 Bay Street.

Police declined any details at press time saying they are still investigating. The accident involved a truck.

The fatality was the 10th of the year in Greater Victoria.

Swimmers Face Hot Summer

Victoria will be without a swimming pool for at least three months this year.

The gap will occur when the Crystal Garden's boilers are hauled out and installed in the new swimming-pool complex now under construction on Quadra Street.

City officials were informed Wednesday that the boilers must be removed sometime in June if new construction is to stay on schedule.

But recreation director Jack Morgan said he felt the Crystal could continue to operate throughout July and August without auxiliary heat.

"I think we could gamble that the sun would provide enough heat during those months to keep the Crystal operational," he told the recreation committee.

The committee was informed that alternate schemes to keep the pool heated as well as operational would cost from between $2,000 and $8,000.

For $2,000 the pool could be kept open until the end of September, for $8,000 and temporary heating equipment it could be kept open until the new pool is ready for public use.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay noted that last year the Crystal lost approximately $3,500 a month.

"We'd be making money to close it early," he said.

The committee tabled a final decision until later but members indicated they were in favor of removing the heating equipment in late June and operating two months on solar heat.

After that the re-location of a wax museum would be the last barrier to ultimate demolition of the old landmark.

ON SCHEDULE

The committee agreed that the Crystal "be demolished at the earliest date following evacuation by the wax museum."

In the meantime architect John A. Di Castri reported to the committee that construction of the new pool is right on schedule.

Warning that labor disputes in the construction industry could throw the schedule off target later in the year, Di Castri said expected completion date is Dec. 24.

Losses at the old Crystal this year totalled $42,170 some $2,000 higher than 1968 losses and $5,000 more than the budgeted loss.

'Tell Them About Assessments'

Ald. Tom Christie wants Victoria city council to get some information to taxpayers about assessment increases.

"The latest complaint I've received shows an increase in assessments for land from $2,000 in 1968 to $13,500 in 1970," Christie told the city's land's committee this morning.

"Some kind of statement should be made."

Land commissioner Alf Joyce said he was aware of the case referred to by Christie.

★ ★ ★

"It's a commercial operation in Rockland area," he said. "For some years the provincial government put a ceiling on how much we could increase assessments. During that time land values climbed three and four times as fast as our assessment increases which were held down by the government.

"Now the restrictions are off and we can get things back into line. The man in question is now being assessed at the same rate as other operators of private hospitals."

Christie said he was still unhappy with the situation.

"We're going to have a lot of unhappy taxpayers," he warned.

"Just refer them to us," answered Joyce. "We'll take care of them."

Arthur Mayse . . .

FIVE YEARS AGO, A library board approved the setting up of a young adults division in our Yates Street bookery. Today, that extremely useful department is threatened with the axe as a money-saving measure. I'm all for cutting costs where such action is justified, but there are approximately 10,000 reasons why the present board should stay its hand.

The above figure represents the 15-to-17-year-olds who rely on the young adult section to fill their special reading needs. They are too old for the children's shelves, and in the main section they'd be lost in the shuffle.

That, in fact, is why the earlier board in its wisdom decided they should have their own books and reference material, on their own turf.

Before the young adult section blossomed in a portion of the library auditorium, a great many teen-agers were convinced that books had little to offer them.

Their time was limited. They felt awkward and out of place among the middle-aged and elderly who browsed the adult shelves.

A busy staff hadn't much time to spare them. It wasn't easy to locate books keyed to their hobbies, interests and school requirements.

This condition changed remarkably when the young adult section was established with Mrs. Margaret Toakley in charge.

Here were books that challenged young peoples' interest and supplied their needs. And here too was a librarian of their own, to answer questions and provide help at need.

A slow reader who wouldn't be caught dead in the childrens department finds reading he can cope with.

At the other end of a very wide range are adult books, and some pretty difficult ones at that.

Along with hard cover fact and fiction, there are magazines and reference pamphlets galore, and what amounts to a separate library of pocket books.

Even if she hadn't been aware of its approach, Mrs. Toakley would know when a motion picture of special interest comes to town. Having seen the film, many young viewers want to read the book: The run on 'Gone with the Wind,' when Scarlet O'Hara and Rhett Butler paused at a local theatre, was nothing less than terrific.

One outstanding virtue of the pocket book is that it's cheaper by far than its hard cover neighbor. It can be ordered in duplicate, a fact that reduces the waiting list for titles in demand.

The junior adult section draws its readers from the secondary schools. Junior high students make up the majority, and Mrs. Toakley has found that this group in particular requires assistance.

"They rely on us," she says of the junior high reader, "and we've found that they just flounder without help. They have a very hard time finding books that are both enjoyable and worthwhile."

Response of readers to the service has been more than merely satisfactory. They've taken to it avidly, and they aren't backward in showing that they appreciate it. They like to talk about the books they read, and how they react to them.

What all this adds up to is a community benefit that even expanded school libraries wouldn't come within a country mile of matching.

Parents have reason to be grateful for the library's junior adult section. It has helped open young minds, and it has made competent readers of many a boy and girl who previously read only under compulsion.

This library-within-a-library is no frill. It performs a valuable community service, and one that Victoria can ill afford to lose.

Pollution Committee Increased by Three

DUNCAN COWICHAN

(Duncan Office Ph. 746-6181)

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council voted Wednesday to enlarge its pollution committee by three outside members because "more and more work involved with it will fall on our shoulders."

Ald. Tom Burge, chairman of the committee, said there was tremendous interest in the municipality in controlling pollution and suggested he and committee member Margaret Robertson pick the new members "so they are of the right calibre."

Ald. Don Morton said the new members should be approved by council and Burge amended his statement to indicate he meant that full advantage should be taken of expert advice that was avaialbale in the community.

In other council news, Mayor Gerry Smith said he understood he was in competition with Mayor Kay Grouhel of Ladysmith to complete the Boy Scout Association's annual eight-mile walkathon on Easter Monday.

"I'll beat her too," Smith said, then quickly amended his challenge to tie Mrs. Grouhel. He also cajoled members of Duncan Press Club present to back him for $1 a mile. After consultation the club decided to pledge $8 whether he finished or not.

Less Jolly Note Struck

Earlier, on a less jolly note, Smith apologized to a delegation from the tax court of revision regarding the competence of its members.

Smith said he made the comments in the heat of the moment when ratepayer William Boykowich confronted council regarding his assessment.

Smith was reported in at least two newspapers as saying: "Our council has nothing to do with the court of revision. If we had, maybe we would have a better court of revision."

Two current members of the court and a past member accepted Smith's apology and thanked him for it.

Fire committee chairman Tom Burge said the South End and Chemainus fire departments were on the verge of converting to radio alarm systems and this was a first step for the whole area to do the same.

April Deadline for Voters

He said April 9 was the date for ratepayers to vote on a $50,000 bylaw for a new fire hall at Maple Bay. Council also set April 25 as the date for the $400,000 bylaw for Pioneer Park's covered swimming pool.

Ald Dennis Hogan was supported in his request that a letter be sent to the Cowichan Valley Regional Board asking them to take over Margaret Moss Health Centre.

The centre, located in Duncan near the North Cowichan border, was built from funds raised by local Kinsmen and later turned over to the city to administer with North Cowichan paying a portion of the upkeep.

Council, with the exception of Ald. Don Morton, agreed to pay $400 towards painting the exterior of the building.

Other resolutions passed: school signs to be placed adjacent to Maple Bay kindergarten; two hour parking to be posted in Chemainus on Mill St. between Willow and Victoria; elimination of some parking at James St. and Trans-Canada Highway in Duncan so traffic lights and turning lanes can be installed and elimination of a passing zone on the Chemainus Highway north of the E & N crossing.

N. COWICHAN HOME GUTTED

NORTH COWICHAN — Fire Wednesday gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Sellars of Norcross Road.

There were no injuries and no cause was determined. The family was away at the time, Sellars on Salt Spring Island and his wife and children in Nanaimo.

North Cowichan Fire Chief Jack Scoular said cause of the fire is undetermined.

Four Students Square Off In Contest

DUNCAN — Four contestants from three schools will compete in the Rotary Club's annual Adventure in Citizenship public-speaking contest Monday night at Cowichan Senior Secondary School cafeteria.

Robin Piers, chairman of the club's contest committee, said today the students entered so far are from Cowichan Senior, Gulf Islands Secondary School and Shawnigan Lakes Boys' School.

Eligible students come from Grades 11, 12 and 13 and range in age from 16 to 19. Judges will be three members from the faculty at University of Victoria: Dr. Beattie MacLean, Mrs. Phoebe Noble and Arthur Webb.

The winner goes to Ottawa May 11 to 14 along with other British Columbia winners as guests of the Rotary Club of Ottawa. They will be shown the Parliament Buildings and meet cabinet ministers and possibly Prime Minister Trudeau.

Opon returning to their home towns, the successful competitor is invited by the local club to speak on his or her adventure in citizenship.

CBC to Film Forest Museum

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan Valley Forest Museum will be the subject of a national television program prepared by a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation unit from Toronto which will be shown at 4:30 p.m. on March 30.

The museum announced today the half-hour program is part of the series "A Place of Your Own" and is entitled, "History Is Alive and Well and Living in Duncan, B.C." It is part of a CBC project to produce regional programs on interesting facets of Canadain history.

Television coverage has been obtained previously at the museum, located about two miles north of Duncan on the Trans-Canada Highway, but this marks the first time a full program has been filmed there.

Keep Train Going Under CPR—Mayor

NORTH COWICHAN — Mayor Gerry Smith said Wednesday he favored the continuation of the E & N Dayliner passenger service as long as the CPR continues to operate it.

Council voted to send a letter to the appropriate authorities to support continuation of the service.

Smith told council he was against a suggestion by Mayor Frank Ney of Nanaimo that the municipalities take over the Dayliner service and run it themselves.

"If we are going to do that then the CPR will have to give up some of the timber rights it got for pledging to keep the service going.

Smith said from the profit made by the raw material Canadian Pacific has taken from British Columbia in the past "they can easily afford to keep it running."

Ald. Don Morton said the service should be run as a tourist attraction as suggested by Duncan resident Earl Kidder since few people used it anyway.

"I can look out my window every day and see the passengers — both of them."

Morton complimented Smith on his "winning ways" in getting council support for continuing the service.

"I tried it two years ago when I was mayor and everyone was against me."

Ald. Margaret Robertson said "you took us by surprise. Now we are a little better informed."

Camp Show Friday

DUNCAN — The second annual Camp and Sport Show will be held at Duncan Recreation Centre on James St. on Friday and Saturday.

More than 20 merchants dealing in camping and sporting equipment will show their wares and demonstrate the latest in outdoor gear. About 2,000 attended the event last year.

On display will be boats, motors, fishing and hunting equipment and all types of camping supplies. The show is the only one of its kind for the outdoorsman in the Cowichan Valley.

River Race Scheduled For Easter

DUNCAN — The fourth annual Cowichan Waterbuoys river race will be held Easter Sunday, a club official said today.

The gruelling 14-mile race from Riverbottom Road to the White Bridge is one of the longest river races of its kind in North America.

It draws contestants from Vancouver Island, the mainland, Alberta and United States. The main event was won by a team from Vancouver last year.

Senior events, for swimmers 17-years-old and over, includes free swimming in "A" category and tubes and air mattresses in the "B" category.

A junior event for swimmers 16 and over and a ladies open event also will be held. Completion time is about two hours.

Registration of swimmers will take place March 29 between 10 a.m. and noon at the Safeway parking lot in Duncan.

Weed-Eating Pigs Busted On Roadway

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Farmer Thomas James Boyle of Shawnigan Lake was fined $50 in provincial court for fencing off a portion of Chapman Road to graze his pigs on.

The department of highways charged Boyle under a section of the Highways Act and claimed the road was a public highway on which money had been spent for maintenance.

Court was told Boyle fenced off the road last July to let his pigs have access to the weeds which he contended grew in profusion. He also said he was paying taxes for land occupied by the road.

Judge George Hallett ruled that the department of highways had proved its case in that the road was public and gave him 14 days in which to get his pigs off.

'Electric Power Outage Worse Than Pollution'

WINNIPEG (CP) — An American power company executive said Wednesday problems of pollution caused by electricity-producing nuclear plants must be tackled but a reasonable approach must be taken to avoid trying to do everything overnight.

R. D. Furber, vice-president of Northern States Power Company of Minneapolis, told a Canadian Electrical Association meeting that attempting to do everything at once would be like "hopping from the frying pan into the fire."

"If the people want electricity, there must be generating plants, transmission lines, substations and distribution systems," he told the meeting of general and marketing divisions of the association being held Wednesday through Friday.

★ ★ ★

"All we can do is to build them using the best technology known at the time so that they cause the least effect on the environment, and we must have the co-operation of the regulatory bodies to accomplish this."

Furber said unless governing bodies are reasonable and "not try to do everything overnight . . . someone is going to get hurt and a power outage in my book is worse than the problems we are trying to solve."

Furber also said restrictions that have been placed on his company's Prairie Island nuclear plant set the maximum increase in water temperature caused by the plant.

The company executive said the restriction will add considerably to the cost of the plant just to meet a situation that will occur only a few hours a year.

★ ★ ★

He said the company accepts the restriction but added:

"It seems to me that if a regulatory body has the power to force a utility to install additional investment for environmental reasons, that same regulatory body should have enough authority to assure the utility that it can recoup such expenditures.

". . . I feel very confident that the utilities can and will solve their environmental problems as well as their nuclear problems if the public and the regulatory bodies will be reasonable in helping to work things out."

Pollution Committee Increased by Three

DUNCAN COWICHAN
(Duncan Office
Ph. 746-6181)

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council voted Wednesday to enlarge its pollution committee by three outside members because "more and more work involved with it will fall on our shoulders."

Ald. Tom Burge, chairman of the committee, said there was tremendous interest in the municipality in controlling pollution and suggested he and committee member Margaret Robertson pick the new members "so they are of the right calibre."

Ald. Don Morton said the new members should be approved by council and Burge amended his statement to indicate he meant that full advantage should be taken of expert advice that was avaialbale in the community.

In other council news, Mayor Gerry Smith said he understood he was in competition with Mayor Kay Grouhel of Ladysmith to complete the Boy Scout Association's annual eight-mile walkathon on Easter Monday.

"I'll beat her too," Smith said, then quickly amended his challenge to tie Mrs. Grouhel. He also cajoled members of Duncan Press Club present to back him for $1 a mile. After consultation the club decided to pledge $8 whether he finished or not.

Less Jolly Note Struck

Earlier, on a less jolly note, Smith apologized to a delegation from the tax court of revision regarding the competence of its members.

Smith said he made the comments in the heat of the moment when ratepayer William Boykowich confronted council regarding his assessment.

Smith was reported in at least two newspapers as saying: "Our council has nothing to do with the court of revision. If we had, maybe we would have a better court of revision."

Two current members of the court and a past member accepted Smith's apology and thanked him for it.

Fire committee chairman Tom Burge said the South End and Chemainus fire departments were on the verge of converting to radio alarm systems and this was a first step for the whole area to do the same.

April Deadline for Voters

He said April 9 was the date for ratepayers to vote on a $50,000 bylaw for a new fire hall at Maple Bay. Council also set April 25 as the date for the $400,000 bylaw for Pioneer Park's covered swimming pool.

Ald Dennis Hogan was supported in his request that a letter be sent to the Cowichan Valley Regional Board asking them to take over Margaret Moss Health Centre.

The centre, located in Duncan near the North Cowichan border, was built from funds raised by local Kinsmen and later turned over to the city to administer with North Cowichan paying a portion of the upkeep.

Council, with the exception of Ald. Don Morton, agreed to pay $400 towards painting the exterior of the building.

Other resolutions passed: school signs to be placed adjacent to Maple Bay kindergarten; two hour parking to be posted in Chemainus on Mill St. between Willow and Victoria; elimination of some parking at James St. and Trans-Canada Highway in Duncan so traffic lights and turning lanes can be installed and elimination of a passing zone on the Chemainus Highway north of the E & N crossing.

N. COWICHAN HOME GUTTED

NORTH COWICHAN — Fire Wednesday gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Sellars of Norcross Road.

There were no injuries and no cause was determined. The family was away at the time, Sellars on Salt Spring Island and his wife and children in Nanaimo.

North Cowichan Fire Chief Jack Scoular said cause of the fire is undetermined.

Four Students Square Off In Contest

DUNCAN — Four contestants from three schools will compete in the Rotary Club's annual Adventure in Citizenship public-speaking contest Monday night at Cowichan Senior Secondary School cafeteria.

Robin Piers, chairman of the club's contest committee, said today the students entered so far are from Cowichan Senior, Gulf Islands Secondary School and Shawnigan Lakes Boys' School.

Eligible students come from Grades 11, 12 and 13 and range in age from 16 to 19. Judges will be three members from the faculty at University of Victoria: Dr. Beattie MacLean, Mrs. Phoebe Noble and Arthur Webb.

The winner goes to Ottawa May 11 to 14 along with other British Columbia winners as guests of the Rotary Club of Ottawa. They will be shown the Parliament Buildings and meet cabinet ministers and possibly Prime Minister Trudeau.

Opon returning to their home towns, the successful competitor is invited by the local club to speak on his or her adventure in citizenship.

CBC to Film Forest Museum

NORTH COWICHAN — Cowichan Valley Forest Museum will be the subject of a national television program prepared by a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation unit from Toronto which will be shown at 4:30 p.m. on March 30.

The museum announced today the half-hour program is part of the series "A Place of Your Own" and is entitled, "History Is Alive and Well and Living in Duncan, B.C." It is part of a CBC project to produce regional programs on interesting facets of Canadain history.

Television coverage has been obtained previously at the museum, located about two miles north of Duncan on the Trans-Canada Highway, but this marks the first time a full program has been filmed there.

Keep Train Going Under CPR—Mayor

NORTH COWICHAN — Mayor Gerry Smith said Wednesday he favored the continuation of the E & N Dayliner passenger service as long as the CPR continues to operate it.

Council voted to send a letter to the appropriate authorities to support continuation of the service.

Smith told council he was against a suggestion by Mayor Frank Ney of Nanaimo that the municipalities take over the Dayliner service and run it themselves.

"If we are going to do that then the CPR will have to give up some of the timber rights it got for pledging to keep the service going.

Smith said from the profit made by the raw material Canadian Pacific has taken from British Columbia in the past "they can easily afford to keep it running."

Ald. Don Morton said the service should be run as a tourist attraction as suggested by Duncan resident Earl Kidder since few people used it anyway.

"I can look out my window every day and see the passengers — both of them."

Morton complimented Smith on his "winning ways" in getting council support for continuing the service.

"I tried it two years ago when I was mayor and everyone was against me."

Ald. Margaret Robertson said "you took us by surprise. Now we are a little better informed."

Camp Show Friday

DUNCAN — The second annual Camp and Sport Show will be held at Duncan Recreation Centre on James St. on Friday and Saturday.

More than 20 merchants dealing in camping and sporting equipment will show their wares and demonstrate the latest in outdoor gear. About 2,000 attended the event last year.

On display will be boats, motors, fishing and hunting equipment and all types of camping supplies. The show is the only one of its kind for the outdoorsman in the Cowichan Valley.

River Race Scheduled For Easter

DUNCAN — The fourth annual Cowichan Waterbuoys river race will be held Easter Sunday, a club official said today.

The gruelling 14-mile race from Riverbottom Road to the White Bridge is one of the longest river races of its kind in North America.

It draws contestants from Vancouver Island, the mainland, Alberta and United States. The main event was won by a team from Vancouver last year.

Senior events, for swimmers 17-years-old and over, includes free swimming in "A" category and tubes and air mattresses in the "B" category.

A junior event for swimmers 16 and over and a ladies open event also will be held. Completion time is about two hours.

Registration of swimmers will take place March 29 between 10 a.m. and noon at the Safeway parking lot in Duncan.

Weed-Eating Pigs Busted On Roadway

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Farmer Thomas James Boyle of Shawnigan Lake was fined $50 in provincial court for fencing off a portion of Chapman Road to graze his pigs on.

The department of highways charged Boyle under a section of the Highways Act and claimed the road was a public highway on which money had been spent for maintenance.

Court was told Boyle fenced off the road last July to let his pigs have access to the weeds which he contended grew in profusion. He also said he was paying taxes for land occupied by the road.

Panelists Agree Schools Overemphasize Academic Program

A panel of school teachers, a university student leader and a parent, with a psychiatrist as moderator, sparked lively discussions on education between themselves and the audience at a meeting of the University Women's Club Wednesday evening.

There were quotes from Auntie Mame and Freud, as well as leading educationists, and a warning from the moderator that anyone who criticized without offering at least a constructive alternative would be thrown out.

Panel and audience responded with active participation, and no one was thrown out.

Led by psychiatrist Dr. Charles Gregory, panelists discussed aspects of education ranging from weaknesses in the present school system from kindergarten to university, to the economics of education.

Chief weakness of the system as seen by Sam Dumka, a teacher at Reynolds Road school, is the overemphasis on the academic program, which forces schools "to practise differentiation and discrimination."

GRAVE INJUSTICE

The non academic student is branded by teachers, parents and employers as "somewhat lacking in the upper story, and this is idiotic and a grave injustice," he said.

Dumka suggested that the present system of six programs be reorganized to avoid the stigma attached to the non-academic student, and that students be free to take a full slate of elective courses throughout school.

He reinforced his arguments with findings from research done for a masters degree.

Interviews with 100 drop-outs and 100 stay-ins showed the drop-outs had a high record of failure at the elementary level, which tended to destroy a "healthy self image."

"I strongly recommend we eliminate failure from our schools," he urged.

"Drop-outs must not feel rejected or that they must face society alone. They should be given a chance to return to school, and their careers should be followed up the next year."

Doreen Radcliffe, primary supervisor for the Victoria School Board agreed that drop-outs are influenced in early years.

PARTIAL SOLUTION

As a partial solution to the problem she suggested smaller classes would help, along with greater use of resource people and special services people to help with learning difficulties before the sense of failure becomes acute.

Mrs. Radcliffe suggested that another weak point in the present system is inflexibility in sticking to "the course that doesn't suit the child."

Strides are being made "to find a program in language arts which suits the individual child, and teachers are attempting to see the child as an unique individual, to gear the program to his needs."

Mrs. Radcliffe would also like to see more rigid screening of teachers.

"In some cases people are getting into teaching who do not have what we as parents would choose—a warm friendly, caring, well-balanced personality."

FEARSOME FIGURE

She quoted statistics pointing out that in 12 years of school each student is likely to be taught by at least one mentally disturbed teacher "a fearsome figure."

"The public schools, the mental health authorities and the community" should, she suggested, be on the look-out for early signs of mental disturbance.

Sheila Blake, a mother of four, suggested that schools often failed to help the child fulfil his potential.

"Perhaps children are concentrating too much on their position in the world, rather than on the world itself.

"If I were to state a capsule definition of education, I should say 'open the doors, don't push, don't pull,' but let the child discover for himself."

Mrs. Blake also asked what courses girls could take to help make them good mothers. Mrs. Radcliffe later answered that she felt the new child care classes were a step in the right direction.

Panelist Norman Wright, former president of Uvic's Student Council, described the "fundamental problem of living" as a series of contradictions.

"Education, if it is to be of any value, should help you deal with contradictions."

He spoke of education as opposed to training, "a whole series of sanctions of one form or another, including discipline, conformity, punishment and rewards. And behind it all is the concept of guilt.

VALUES IMPOSED

"Contradictions arise when the values a culture professes publicly become different from social practices of that society.

"We appear to be in such a stage now, when these values are imposed on some but are not practised by those in authority."

Wright also discussed rising costs of university education.

In his opening remarks Dr. Gregory described education as "of paramount importance, for the ills of the world must be attributed to individuals.

"People make decisions on the basis of judgment and of their appraisal of a series of facts tempered by their emotional state.

"This complexity of facts depends on the kind of learning process to which the individual has been subjected. What you are endowed with can be modified by what you learn, so that education is vital as far as the whole world is concerned.

"What kind of values does society seek to inculcate, and how will it go about it: Do you accept the system or do you wish to change it, If you wish to change it, how?" he asked.

These and many aspects of education were discussed by panelists and later by members of the audience.

BAREFOOT ON THE GREENS

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you want to avoid wardrobe sag, you have to work at it. Your collection should have a fresh injection of money and time every season.

If you are a young working woman, you'll need a variety of clothes even if you never go anywhere exotic, and Bev Rosar says you should apply the rules even more carefully than someone with a bigger budget.

Miss Rosar is fashion adviser at a big Toronto department store. Customers in a quandary may make an appointment with Miss Rosar, tell her what kind of clothes they need and how much money they can spend, and she'll try to help.

"You should go through your wardrobe every season to see what you have. Then you should check on your social life, your way of living, what kind of job you have, and your budget.

"The winter coat is the main thing in most wardrobes. If you can only have one, then you must like it, because it goes over everything — office clothes, party clothes, pants.

"You won't get tired of any clothes if you like them."

JOB GOVERNS STYLE

Miss Rosar acknowledges that you may get a bargain at sale times, but she advocates buying early in a season instead.

"Buy your winter coat in August, because it will be the new season's thing. I think you get more wear out of things if you buy them six months ahead and enjoy them."

What you need otherwise does depend on your life style.

"If you are an executive secretary, you will have to wear suits and dresses. In a clerical job, you might not need to be as well dressed.

"You should always have a dress and jacket. You can wear the dress for business with the jacket, and for the evening without. A couple of double-knit and soft wool dresses should carry you through the spring and fall. You can get wear out of them with different accessories.

"You only really need one or two cocktail dresses, and you don't need elaborate ones. If they are simple, you are more likely to get a couple of seasons out of them."

She says you should be willing to experiment with new styles.

"Try every style. A lot of clothes don't have hanger appeal, but look good on you. If nothing suits you, don't buy. Go back and buy another time.

"And remember, sales people can talk you into buying things, though you may just take them back. Don't be embarrassed to say you don't like a thing, but do have an open mind to fashion. A lot of people won't try new styles on because they've been told they should stick to one style and color."

Miss Rosar says you should shop alone. A friend with different tastes might talk you in or out of something.

If you can only afford one or two pairs of shoes, she recommends black or brown patents because they can be worn either as casual or as dress shoes.

RECOMMENDS CARE

When you buy accessories, she says, buy them to go with several things.

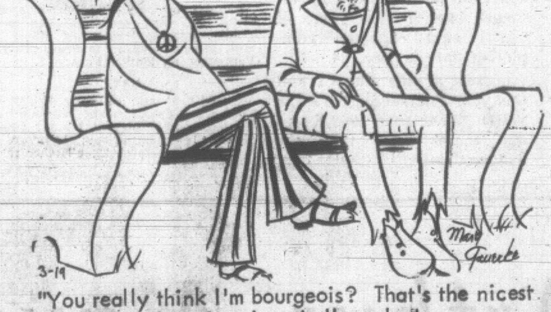
"Even if you spend $15 for a scarf and you can use it with several outfits, it's worth more to you than four or five scarves at $3, each usable with only one outfit."

She says it is no longer true that you must have one good handbag. Today's styles and materials are better than they once were, even in low-price brackets.

She recommends buying good, comfortable underwear and enough of it that you can keep it freshly laundered and in good repair.

The care you take of any of your clothes can keep them looking their best for as long as possible, and will allow you to alter hemlines and sleeves or necklines to add to their lifetime.

Finally, Miss Rosar advises spreading your clothing money over a season. Don't spend it all at once, but use it to keep adding to your wardrobe.



"You really think I'm bourgeois? That's the nicest thing I've heard all week."

Ladies Home Journal Editor Berated by Feminist Group

NEW YORK (AP) — For 87 years the Ladies' Home Journal has been advising "never underestimate the power of a woman." Now 10 feminists have demanded that editor John Mack Carter live by the motto.

All day Wednesday, Carter's fifth-floor office was besieged by women demanding that Carter be replaced by a woman, that he hire an all-woman editorial and advertising staff and that he allow them to put out The Women's Liberated Journal as a replacement for one issue of the magazine.

Carter said—as the women smoked his cigars, sat in his chair and berated him—that they had a point but they could not have his job.

The women said they had singled out the Journal, which has 6,900,000 readers, because its articles are "irrelevant, unstimulating and demeaning to the women of America."

After the initial demonstration, 12 feminists began negotiating with Carter and several other editors.

In the early evening, it was announced that the group had been offered a special eight-page supplement in an upcoming issue and a special women's liberation column each month.

They then went back into closed sessions. The demonstrators had vowed to stay "until all our demands are met."

Some women employees at Newsweek filed a federal complaint against that magazine last week, charging that they were discriminated against. They said there was only one woman on a writing staff of 50 men.

Seven Posts Vacant As One Woman Leaves

ST. GEORGE, Ont. (CP) — Hope Davies is proof that one person can do a lot. When she leaves Canada, it will take seven people to do the jobs she has been doing for her community.

Mrs. Davies and her husband, Angus, are retiring to Wales to paint and raise horses respectively.

Her career of community work ensured this town in the Brantford area a library and provided it with a floating, debt-paying nursery school, among other services.

Mrs. Davies took over the library in 1954. It had been neglected for years because no librarian was available during the Second World War.

On expert advice, she threw away 6,000 of its 7,000 books and took a government-sponsored month-long course in running a library.

Gradually the library took shape, and then Mrs. Davies decided a new one should be opened in the basement of the community hall. To pay for it she started a nursery school in the hall, run on a co-operative basis.

The library's debts have been paid off and the nursery school has moved to a church where it is busy paying off the church mortgage. When that is done, it will move again to work for some other needy organization.

Mrs. Davies is being replaced at the library, as Home and School president, Women's Institute director, member of the community hall board, and the St. George art group, as a horticultural society secretary-treasurer, and as district correspondent for the Brantford Expositor.

View Royal Trustee Spurns Another Sewer Referendum

The answer to another sewerage referendum in View Royal is no.

That is the opinion of Bob Pearce, chairman of the View Royal fire trustees.

He was commenting Wednesday night on the latest letter from senior medical health officer. Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

In a letter, Dr. Whitbread said effluent is seeping into a ditch from 309 View Royal Avenue and the onwer (not identified) had stated before last December's unsuccessful referendum that inexpensive adjustments had remedied the situation.

A system using extra soil to raise tile field sufficiently above ground water, plus an effluent pump, will cost $1,400 on the basis of one example, he said.

"The situation is indeed widespread and serious," he said, and costs of remedying the situation are as stated by health officials.

Dr. Whitbread recommended the View Royal fire protection district resubmit the referendum.

Pearce said planning, zoning and sewers will be discussed at the district's annual meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in fire hall on the old Island Highway. There will be a "complete report" on the whole situation.

'NO INTENTION'

"We have no intention of having another referendum until something is decided by the health and municipal people," said Pearce.

"We want something more definite on cost sharing. It is too expensive at the present proposed costs, it would put a lot of people out of their homes."

Costs have been estimated at $140 per year per property.

"We understand, but we have not been officially notified, that the regional board has made plans to include View Royal in the main trunk to Macaulay Point," he said.

"We realize the area is in a state of pollution, mainly because of lack of controls and directions and indiscriminate building and zoning in the past."

Asked if he is worried about the $1,400 price tag mentioned by Dr. Whitbread for fixing one property without sewers, Pearce said "we are not worried about Whitbread and threats. We have had this for two years."

Also in sewerage news:

- Central Saanich ratepayers will vote in June or July on a second referendum. The first was defeated last December;
- The first five contracts for supply of materials and for construction of facilities at the Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, outfall and the northwest trunk will have tenders called this weekend;
- Engineering consultants are proceeding with work necessary to prepare design of the regional trunk, treatment plant and outfall at Sidney.

$10,000 Waste Study Proposed

The Capital Regional District board will be asked next week to approve a study on solid waste disposal in the region.

Projected cost of the study is $10,000 and would take between six months and one year, board directors were told Wednesday at a committee meeting.

The study will look into types and quantities of garbage and attempt to map out solutions to problems for at least the next 20 years.

Colwood director Richard Emery urged that a start be made in the unorganized (nonmunicipal) areas west of Esquimalt.

He said mill waste and building materials are being dumped in Langford, Colwood and Metchosin by arrangements with private land owners.

One case, he said, involves property near Parson's Bridge.

View Royal director Al Beasley agreed that the "mess" in the unorganized areas should be tackled first.

The only recognized and approved garbage dump is at Hartland Road, just outside the west boundary of Saanich in the Highland district.

In other business:

- Highways Minister Wesley Black said the department will "make every effort" to avoid encroachment on the Elk Lake side of Patricia Bay Highway during road widening;
- Directors recommended that legislation and a grant be provided to regional districts wishing to engage in conservation programs;
- Directors recommended that the Regional Parks Act be amended to included acquisition of regional trails as a permitted function under the act and that grants available for parks be available for trails;
- After hearing there is no subdivision minimum in the Sooke area, directors recommended that steps be taken to extend the 10-acre subdivision minimum west from Metchosin, excluding Sooke village.

CARS TO USE POP-OUT BAGS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Auto makers will have to start tucking inflatable "air bags" under the dash boards of all new American cars made after Jan. 1, 1972, transportation secretary John A. Volpe said Wednesday.

The pop-out safety devices will be required first on the front-seat passenger side. Volpe said they "already have shown a potential for saving thousands of lives and greatly reducing serious injuries in crashes."

A crash sensor would trigger the system, inflating the air bag within milliseconds of a front-end collison.

The transportation secretary called the move particularly important because of recent studies indicating that only 25 per cent of the motoring public bothers to buckle seat belts.

Under the timetable announced Wednesday, the air bags will also be required on the driver's side of all passenger cars made after Jan. 1, 1974.

U.S. Recognizes Cambodia Regime

Times News Services

The United States said today it recognizes the new regime which ousted Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the legal government of Cambodia.

The state department also said it had received a copy of a note sent to all foreign missions in Phnom Penh in which the new Cambodian government emphasized its determination to pursue a policy of "strict neutrality."

Members of Cambodia's National Assembly accused Sihanouk of corruption, murder, nepotism and protecting the Viet Cong before they voted to depose him, Camodian radio reported.

A broadcast recording of the debate Wednesday indicated many deputies joined in the attack before the unanimous vote of no confidence which overthrew the man who had ruled them for 29 years.

Deputy Trinh Hoahn, who called for the no-confidence vote, labelled the 47-year-old prince a dictator and said Sihanouk's wife and mother-in-law had made fortunes selling government jobs.

He accused Sihanouk of running a gambling casino for personal profit, "executing a large number of peasants without trial, wasting national funds and blindly following his wife's advice.

WIFE FLEES

Princess Monique, Sihanouk's wife, has been reported in Singapore, while her mother was in Europe with Sihanouk and arrived in Peking with him today. The resignation of his brother-in-law as police commissar was announced Wednesday.

Another broadcast said Sihanouk had "provoked" the political crisis during which crowds took to the streets of Phnom Penh last week in violent demonstrations against the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops on the Cambodian side of the border with South Vietnam.

Radio Phnom Penh also said Assembly Chairman Cheng Heng, who was named acting chief of state, announced that Cambodia will continue to follow a policy of "independence, neutrality and territorial integrity" and the government will "recognize and respect" all treaties which had been formally concluded.

There are an estimated 50,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia.

Broadcasts said Cambodian peasants were pledging their support for the coup.

SEE GENERAL AT HEAD

It was believed that the assembly acted at the instigation of Gen. Lon Nol, the premier and chief of the 49,000-man armed forces who quarrelled with Sihanouk in 1968 over the presence of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops in Cambodia. A report intercepted by the South Vietnamese government said Lon Nol and Sirik Matak, a high government minister,

Willy Brandt Cheered In East German City

ERFURT (CP) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, after a tumultuous welcome by the people of Erfurt, said today relations between East and West Germany should be regulated in a special treaty but rejected the idea of full diplomatic recognition of the East Berlin government.

At the first session of the German summit meeting here, Brandt replied to East German Premier Willi Stoph's opening statement that a normal situation in the divided country depended on international relations on the basis of complete equality.

"The decisive issue," Stoph said, "is to achieve, in the interest of European security, a peaceful coexistence for the people of our states, a change in the relations between the East German Democratic Republic and the Federal Republic of Germany."

But the West German chancellor called the common interests and quarrels between East and West Germany different from those between other peoples and said "they are directed toward the unity of the nation."

At the morning session, which lasted 1¾ hours, Brandt and Stoph agreed to hold a meeting in an undetermined West German town near the border. Brandt proposed they meet in May, though a specific date was not set.

Their historic meeting began promptly at 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) after thousands of Erfurters had cheerd Brandt on his arrival from Bonn. Stoph himself was on hand to greet the chancellor at the railway station.

Thousands of East Germans, shouting "Willi! Willi Brandt!" broke through police barriers to greet the West German chancellor.

57,000 Jobless In B.C.

Times News Services

OTTAWA — British Columbia alone went against the trend as unemployment jumped sharply across the country last month to 6.5 per cent of the national labor force, the highest point in six years.

But February figures released today showed the B.C. jobless rate was still above the national average although it declined to 6.7 per cent from the 7.3 per cent January level. A year ago it was 6.6 per cent.

The B.C. rate reflected an unemployed total of 57,000 persons last month, down 4,000 from the January total.

GREATER THAN USUAL

The federal manpower department said the nation-wide increase from 485,000 unemployed in January to 526,000 in February was greater than usual for this time of year.

Nearly 40 per cent of those unemployed had been without jobs for one to three months when the survey was taken.

There was little change in February from January figures on the total number of employed persons — 7,505,000, up from 7,499,000. But the total labor force grew by 47,000 to 8,031000.

PEAK LAST YEAR WAS 6

Unemployment reached 6.4 per cent of the labor force in February and March two years ago but then declined. The peak last year was six per cent in February.

The previous high was in the first three months of 1964 when unemployment ran to between 6.8 and seven per cent of the labor force.

On a seasonally-adjusted basis, unemployment last month ran to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, the same as in December after dipping to 4.5 in January. This is the figure economists look to and that the government says might go as high as 5.7 per cent during its anti-inflation drive.

The latest employment picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	Feb. 1970	Jan. 1970	Feb. 1969
Labor force	8,031	7,984	7,911
Employed	7,505	7,499	7,438
Unemployed	526	485	473

BLEAK ALL OVER

In terms of actual, rather than seasonally-adjusted, unemployment rates worsened in all regions of the country except British Columbia, and even there it ran slightly higher last month than a year ago.

The report said employment was down in construction and manufacturing but higher in community, business and personal services; in fire, insurance and real estate; and in transportation, communications and other utilities.

Employment declined from a year ago in the Atlantic region and the prairies.

Regionally, the unemploy-

OTTAWA, QUEBEC RIFT MAY SCUTTLE NIGER PACT

NIAMEY, Niger (CP) — A rift in the Canadian delegation, with Quebec and Ottawa the main foes, threatened today to scuttle plans for the creation of an agency to promote cultural and technical co-operation among French-speaking countries.

New Brunswick and Manitoba, sympathetic to Quebec demands for an international voice, also expressed dissatisfaction with their roles at the conference.

Disagreements between Canadian representatives and France earlier forced delays in final approval of the charter to set up the agency. Approval was postponed to Friday.

The Canadian delegation includes representatives from Ontario, also dissatisfied with its minimal role.

Quebec delegate said the conference of 26 French-speaking countries may be near breakup over the issue.

FOUR ISLANDERS IN SWEEP DRAW

Times News Services

Victoria, Nanaimo and Fulford Harbor residents have drawn horses in the Irish Sweepstakes draw made today.

An earlier list, printed on Page 2, lists the Victorian drawn as Hi-judi (LMD 06370). Subsequent lists include "Waiting" of Nanaimo (LDJ-83258), "Tina" of Fulford Harbor (MRB 85125) and "Never Too Late" of Victoria (LJA 03553).

Additional names were still being released at press time.

Welfare Jam Forces Move

A heavy increase in numbers of welfare recipients has forced the Victoria social welfare department to look for new quarters.

Welfare director Alex Davidson told the city's land's committee this morning that expansion is essential if the growing case load is to be handled efficiently.

The committee agreed to recommend to city council that the section of the welfare department handling male cases be moved to the ground floor of the old Victoria School of Music Building near the Century Inn on Pandora.

EXTRA STAFF

The move will take place as soon as possible after council approves the necessary expenditure of $30,000 to carry out renovations and provide for extra stafff.

Ald. Tom Christie backed the move terming existing conditions at the welfare office on Cook Street "terrible."

On Friday, Feb. 27, the Cook Street office handled 160 applicants for welfare — an all time high in Victoria. The average was 99 a day for the month and Davidson warned that with a minor recession already being felt the numbers could only increase.

"We have to do something," Christie told the committee. "If you go down to Cook Street on any given day you'll

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The Soviet Union will be able to start deploying multi-war head nuclear missiles this year, U.S. Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today.

He also told a news conference the Russians have nearly completed the fourth of eight anti-ballistic missile sites planned for the Moscow area.
